MAGAZINES FOR SOLDIERS WANTED. Send your magazines to the Public Library, and there will be no danger of the wrong sort of magazines being sent to the soldlers in camp. Two committees of the Association of Collegiate Alumnae have full supervision of all magazines that are given for this purpose. The magazines are sorted in magazines that are given for this purpose. The magazines are sorted in the Library, the recent and appropriate ones are tied in bundles and sent to Vancouver and other posts and camps as needed or are placed in quantities upon the troop trains as they pass through the city. Old magazines are looked over and suitable pictures are cut from them and laid to one side for the scrapbooks which are being prepared by another Association of Collegiate Alumnas committee, to be sent later to convalescent hospitals. Magazines that are absolutely worthless for either purpose are sold and the funds used in providing scrapbooks. It is used in providing scrapbooks. It is true that the soldiers do not want old magazines—the reason is that they are men from civic life and they have read these magazines months or years ago just as you have yourself, but the old magazines have their use, for the money received from them is put to good pur-

BREACH OF CONTRACT ALLEGED .-Breach of contract is alleged by the Cranmoor Manufacturing Company in a sult brought yesterday against H. Kerslen and Frank J. "in the round" or is cleaned and beheaded by wholesaler or retailer.
Careful attention is paid to the law of supply and demand in fixing prices for the consumer. A deputy of the State Fish Exchange every afternoon visits each wholesale establishment, taking an inventory of the amount of fish held over. The deputy then visits the docks and makes an inventory of the catches of the day. These combined data, showing the visible supply of fish data, showing the visible supply of fish for the following day, are in the hands of the price-fixing committee, which establishes cost figures for the ensuing day. The wholesale prices are sent to the dealers by 3 o'clock each morning. The California official says this system of price regulation has proved quite satisfactory to fishermen, dealers

C. H. Draucher Serves in Army Rather Than in Prison.

ESCAPE MADE JUNE 6, 1916

In Letter to J. W. Minto, Former Warden of Penitentiary, Draucher Says He Has Reformed and Will Seek Pardon.

Secreting himself beneath an automobile truck in the state prison yards at Salem, C. H. Draucker, known as convict 7365, serving from one to 10 years for burglary, eluded the guards and made his escape from the penitentiary June 6, 1916. Having previously done time at San Questin Drawley. done time at San Quentin. Draucker was regarded by the prison officials as a dangerous man and a thorough search was made for him without re-Sult.

Yesterday J. W. Minto, warden at the penitentiary when Draucker escaped, received a letter from him written somewhere in England, October 12. Draucker writes that after escaping from prison he went to Canada, enlisted in the artillery service and has seen active service in France. As evidence of his contention that he has undergone a reformation, his letter is written on Y. M. C. A. stationery that was furnished the Canadian forces. On the strength of his change of heart and his record as a soldier, of heart and his record as a soldier, Draucker says he expects to return to this state and apply to the Governor or a full pardon.
