HUNS' VICTIMS HERE

Canadian Soldiers to Speak at Lincoln High Tonight.

MARKS OF KULTUR BORNE

Veterans of Service Sniffed First Gas at Second Battle of Ypres and Tell of Horrors Experienced in German Prison Camps.

That first Hun gas attack, an unnamed terror that rolled over the field of second Ypres, driving the Algerian troops before it, was sniffed by three Canadian soldiers who are now in Portland.

They are Sergeant J. Davey, Private C. Burk and Chief Petty Officer S. J. Chiversall, of the first Canadian expeditionary force—and each of them bears the indelible marks of Prussian brutality, for all were prisoners of the Hun.

"I had just a sniff of the gas," said the sergeant, speaking of that triumph of "kultur" first broached at the second battle of Ypres.

"On the morning of April 24, the Germans broke through. I was shot in the left knee. When the Germans took me prisoner I had lain in the field for two days and nights.

A scanty chunk of black war bread, sticky with some unnamed ingredient, and thin soup, served twice a day, was the hospital ration, said Sergeant Davey.

Through the Red Cross, by devious ways, he sent word to the French military authorities of his plight, and the message was passed on to the British, so that, in course of time, the wounded man came home as a "stretcher case," with the operation imperative.

But Private Burk is one of the few who have won back to freedom by escape from the barbed and electric wires of the German prison camps, choosing death in the hazard rather than to remain in the hands of the Hun.

Like his present comrades, he was taken prisoner at the second battle of Ypres, and was slightly gassed in addition to being wounded.

Through in the East the state war savings committees have based their campaigns largely on appeal to the more wealthy class of citizens, by the organization of "1000 War Savings Stamps" clubs and the like, the organization in Oregon has been built up along lines of special appeal to the great body politic—the working classes, and those of more limited means.

Latest Sweetening Substitute May Retail at 4 Cents a Pound.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—"One lump of Fame and fortune are within reach of the lucky individual who can put kaong, sugar's latest rival, on the American market and in the home, at 4 cents a pound, if kaong is as good as the promises of the scientists interested in the development of the industry, the ban on sweets can be torn down for keeps.

The day of 4-cent-a-pound sweeteners will dawn when an inventor can solve the problem which now keeps kaong from the pantry shelves.

A RAW, SORE THROAT

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole.

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest (it often prevents pneumonia). Nothing like Musterole for croupy children. Keep it handy for instant use.
