With the renewal of sporting activities in most of the colleges of the country, it seems possible that the intercollegiate Golf Association will look with favor on the restoration of its nual feature in the golf world. A lays ago golf enthusiasts of Columbia University, New York, sent out a questionnaire to several Eastern colleges in an attempt to find out the sentiment of the different institutions regarding golf. Sevofal replies have been received and in almost every case the reply favored an intercollegiate golf

The last college battle on the links was held at the Oakmont Country Club near Pittsburg, in 1916, and it brought out a score or more of golfers who played far beyond their usual ability. D. Scott.

The new nine holes will be opened for the use of the members next Decoration day, May 30. This addition will give the Portland Institution one of the best 18 holes on the Coast.

Chairman Beckett, of the house committee, is making arrangements whereby a "jazz" orchestra will be in attenddual meets may be the outcome.

> More Will Compete. It is certain that when the inter-collegiate golf championship is re-newed, if not this year, it will be more epresentative than ever. For a number of years the golf championship was attended by only a few collegians and most of them came from Harvard, Yale and Princeton. Occasionally Pennsylvania, Columbia and Cornell would send a representative to take part in the individual championship, but rare-ly would there be enough for the team ompetitions excepting from the big

Georgia Tech is said to have written to officials of the association asking for membership and guaranteeing a team in all the annual fixtures. It may be a wise move on the part of the association to peak into the request of Georgia Tech, as the Atlanta institu-Pullman Wrestling Champion Vanquishes All Comers.
