SERMON IS HELPFUL

Rev. R. W. Rogers Discourses Upon "Everlasting Life."

CALVARY HAS NEW PASTOR

Emphasis Laid Upon Statement "Eternal Life" Is Present Possession, Recognized in Character Those Who Have It.

An earnest, helpful sermon on the understanding of the term "Everlasting Life," was the discourse of the new R. W. Rogers, the new paster of Cavalry Presbyterian Church, who occupied his pulpit yesterday morning for the first time as the official minister

In charge.

That everiasting life is something that can be assured now, in this life and world, was emphasized by Rav. Mr. Rogers. "Elernal life is a present presention," he declared. "We can have it with us now. We recognize it in those who have accepted Christ and who love God and His word. We know it in a song of a believer; we recognise it in the moral character. It shines in the human eye and is revealed in the personality of those who have it. It is free to all who will account and believe

If we have the idea that everlasting life means a monotonous eteruity, let's get over that idea. Nor is everlasting life something that begins after we are dead. It is something grander than the obliteration of individuality in which some believe. There is in eter-nal life as we should know it, progressive growth. Faith is not something we have merely at conversion and then forget or set aside. Faith is a con-stant attitude toward God and so, as atant attitude toward God and so, as Paul said, 'Fight the good fight' and there shall be rewards indescribable. 'The fellowship with God in this life and throughout eternity—this is everlacing life. I can conceive of no worse hell.' declared the pastor, 'Than to be shut off from God. The doctrine of assurance is not preached as much as it should be. For the Christian there should be no fear of death. When we trust the guide, the soul should not be trust the guide, the soul should not be

Man or a Nation" was the subject of Bishop Matthew Simpson Hughes' sermon to a large congregation in the First Methodist Episcopal Church yeaterday morning.

"The mind that sees only difficulties is a small mind," said the bishop. "If there's one thing this Nation is suffering from it is that some of its people see too many difficulties. There is too much criticism and not enough constructive effort. If we want the best for curselves and for humanity, we must have great faith.

"I could argue along this line all day and some might say, 'Oh, he's a preacher; of course he talks faith,' But let me tell you what William James in The Will to Believe' says." And then the bishop quoted several passages from the works of the great psychologist.

"If you are sitting in a room and doubt whether it is getting cold, you delolds what others do not see. It is beholds what others do not see. It is of observation. The poet thus inspired beholds what others do not see. It is this insight that makes the philosopher So we look upon the church, when diffi-culties spring up as mountains before us, we are able to smile at them be-cause we know they are short-lived and we have a vision of the things that we have a vision of the things that never perish.
