MORE POULTRY NEED

Food Administration Urges Increase in Production.

100 HENS ON EVERY FARM

Great Surplus of Eggs Required That Other Foodstuffs May Be Saved—Instances of Serious Waste in Texas.

The Food Administration is urging that poultry production be pushed vigorously. It has adopted a slogan of "One Hundred Hens On Every Farm," and this fits in aptly with the restrictions of the Administration on the marketing of hens.

This regulation caught some poultry raisers with a surplus of breeding hens, although there is no surplus in the country at large, for the shortage of feeds and the high price of poultry tempted breeders and the owners of small flocks to sell their hens.

Even those inconvenienced by the restriction on the sale of hens can easily see the point of the regulation. If the hens are killed off the 100-hen movement has little chance, nor will there be hens enough to supply the backyard flock for the man with the bit of land who is trying to make his own stronghold hunger proof.

The present situation offers an opportunity to live wire poultry men to start a piece of community work that will connect the surplus of breeding hens to the 100-hen movement and the backyard flock. Community organization and the gospel of "feed yourself" will dispose of surplus hens and convert possible roasters into food producers for the Winter of 1918-19.

Agents of the United States Department of Agriculture report that between January 1, 1918, and February 11, 40 carloads, each of about 6000 hens and pullets, were shipped from the state of Texas alone. This means that 160,000 birds that were laying or about ready to lay were prevented from turning into eggs the food they had consumed without return during the Winter. Had these birds been kept until April 30, as urged by the Department of Agriculture and as required by the Food Administration for those remaining on the farms on February 11, it would have meant an estimate an addition of 600,000 dozen eggs to the food supply of the Nation, with little added expense for food, and would merely have postponed use of the birds themselves as food until after May 1.

PRINT BUTTER NOW ONE CENT HIGHER

City Creameries Now Quoting 53 and 54 Cents—Eggs Are Steady.

An advance of 1 cent in prints was announced by city creameries yesterday, which puts the market at 53 cents in plain wrappers and 54 cents in cartons. The buying price of butter fat was not changed. Cubes continue scarce and are firm at 50 cents for extras, though the demand is not quite as sharp as early in the week.

The egg market was steady and unchanged at 35 cents, case count. Several cars are promised today for out-of-town shipments, which will relieve the congestion. Storing by local firms continues.

Dressed pork was in strong demand at 21½ cents with only moderate receipts. Veal was steady. The supply of poultry on the street was small.

SMALL TRADE IN MOHAIR MARKET

Prices Are Barely Holding Their Own at Boston.

The mohair market at Boston continues inactive. What sales are made from time to time are in driblets and prices are barely firm at quotations, says the Commercial Bulletin. Advices from Bradford and the Cape indicate little business at either point with prices unchanged. Alpaca has been quieter in Liverpool latterly. Coarse (Y, C, in Triangle) has been sold in Liverpool at $1.10; seconds at 94 cents; skins at $1.16 and locks at 72 cents.

COALERS IN DEMAND

Advances of 1 to 4 Points in Leading Eastern Carriers.

GAINS HEADED BY READING

Transcontinentals Are Also Firmer. Steel and Other Investment Industrials Hold Within Restricted Limits.

NEW YORK, March 14.—Revival of last week's inquiry for rails, especially the coal carriers, contributed in large degree to the occasional activity and variable strength of today's stock market.

The movement took certain of the professional element by surprise, because it was thought that overnight news from abroad, particularly in the fresh Teutonic offensive in Russia, might precipitate moderate liquidation.

Reading was again the conspicuous feature at an extreme gain of four points, to 84½, the maximum quotation thus far this year. Dealings in that issue so far exceeded all other issues as to excite much conjecture. Other strong coalers included Norfolk & Western, Chesapeake & Ohio, Baltimore & Ohio, Lehigh Valley and Erie first preferred, gains ranging from one to two points.

Transcontinentals, grangers and trunk line shares moved forward later. Union Pacific, Atchison, St. Paul, Illinois Central, Rock Island and New York Central leading these divisions by a point or more.

Seasoned industrials, including United States Steel, held within restricted limits, and shippings and metals were much less prominent than usual. Sales amounted to 285,000 shares.

Bonds were irregular to heavy, including liberty issues. Sales, par value, aggregated $3,475,000. United States bonds, old issues, were unchanged on call.
