The success of Portland's system of handling the social evil question has attracted the attention of other cities. City Health Officer John B. Anderson

City Health Officer John B. Anderson and City Commissioner Charles A. Fleming, of Spokane, were visitors in the city yesterday making a study of the system employed here.

In a conference with Mayor Baker and City Commissioner Mann in charge of the Health Bureau, the details of Portland's system of detaining and treating women suffering from social diseases were explained. In the afterliseases were explained. In the afternoon the two visiting officials were taken to the Detention Home for Wom-en at Kelly Butte and were shown the workings of this institution which has been a big factor in the protection of soldiers and sallors and others.
