16000. The jury that found them guilty recommended the indictment and prosecution of Riddell on the ground that from the evidence offered at the trial he was implicated in the fraud. The indictment of Riddell followed, and he was brought to trial and found guilty in January, 1918. On March 29, following, he was sentenced to four months in jail and fined $2500. Riddell appealed his case and lost, and an application for his pardon is pending before the President.

Wonderful floats, each depicting some phase of war activity, will be interspersed throughout the parade. The spruce division will enter from six to eight floats depicting the preparation of timber for the airplanes of America's fighting forces. The Royal Legion of Loggers and Lumbermen will have a battalion of husky young men in the lead of the parade.

Robert A. Booth, of Eugene, one of the state's leading men, today was named by Governor Withycombe, as State Highway Commissioner to succeed E. J. Adams, whose term expired last Sunday.

Robert A. Booth is heavily interested in lumber and other interests of the highest order. He was one time candidate for United States Senator on Republican ticket, and has been widely noted for his charitable and philanthropic activities. He has been particularly active in his work for Willamette University of Salem, with which he has been connected in an official capacity for many years.

Mr. Booth has accepted the appointment tendered to him a few days ago. "The Highway Commission is one of the most important bodies in the state, and it is constituted of splendid men who have the right vision, the necessary force and integrity and industry to know the needs of the state and see its future. These men are above any influence politically."

It is considered that Mr. Booth might not satisfy all sections politically, but the appointment is not made for political reasons. It is made for the purpose of securing the best possible system of highways obtainable at the least expenditure of funds and with the idea of serving the state in the largest possible manner. I am highly delighted that Mr. Booth has agreed to accept."

Miss Hempel justified the nice things that were said about her in advance. She is a skillful singer and actress, and lost no time in putting her audience into good humor. Miss Hempel makes no concealment of the fact that she was born in Germany. Her first number on the program was announced as an "Invited" from Verdi's "Ernani." But instead of opening with the "Ernani" number, Miss Hempel sang suddenly, "The Star-Spangled Banner," and she sang it heartily, but with a slight trace of a foreign accent. The audience at once looked upon Miss Hempel as a friend, and broke into delighted applause.

Miss Hempel's concert may be described largely as a charming ballad one. It contained love songs that were played, yet the most florid and beautiful parts of her programme, in which she showed the amazing flexibility of her golden soprano, consisted of the "Ernani" number, the aria, "Theme and Variations" (Proch). The latter number fairly bristles with vocal difficulties, including trills and flailing runs, and Mr. Elster, the accompanist, said afterwards that in the Proch number Miss Hempel sang up to E-flat in the note with beautiful taste, and it had a real silver ring of marvelous clarity.
