RADIATORS NOURSE CERTAIN ASPIRANTS

Candidacies of Senator McNary and Governor Withycombe Receive Approval.

MEETING HELD IN SECRET

A. A. Bailey and Philo Holbrook Receive Indorsement for County Commissioners, but Will H. Daly Meets With Opposition.

At a closed meeting held in the Woodmen Hall on Eleventh street last Thursday night, nearly 300 members of the Radiators, a secret political organization, endorsed the candidates of United States Senator McNary and Governor Withycombe for re-election and also gave assurances of their support to other candidates.

The main excitement, it is understood, came over the indorsement of two candidates for County Commissioners, A. A. Bailey, who is one of the active spirits of the Radiators, is a candidate for Commissioner and he was indorsed unanimously.

After Daly's name had been thrown into the discard, other aspirants for indorsement were considered briefly and finally Philo Holbrook, candidate to succeed himself, was selected as the Radiators' main man. This was brought about partly by County Commissioner A. A. Muck, who is on good terms with his fellow Commissioner, Holbrook. Muck was backed by the Radiators when he was elected County Commissioner two years ago.

Sanderson Reed was indorsed for State Senator. His only opponent in the primary election is John Gill, who is a candidate for re-election. A. E. Barnes, former business agent for the Laborers' Union, received the indorsement for State Representative.

Further indorsement of legislative candidates was put off owing to the fact that at the time the Radiators met some of the prospective candidates had not filed.

The Radiators are not agreed as to the extent to which they should go in indorsing candidates. Some would indorse candidates for every office to be elected while others think the better plan would be to concentrate their efforts toward the election of a few men.

The secretary read a letter at the meeting from C. F. Swigert in which he expressed his regrets at being unable to attend. Representatives from several of the labor unions were present and made reports as to the political activity in their respective organizations.

Jack Day, chairman, let it be known that he wanted to be retained at the head of the County Central Committee and to that end he proposed bringing out candidates for precinct committees in every precinct. It was largely due to this same preliminary work by the Radiators that a sufficient number of committees were chosen in the primary election to put Day in as chairman of the county organization.

Working in conjunction with the Radiators is a woman's auxiliary, the members of which are doing more or less active work in their respective precincts. The plan is not only to support the candidates indorsed by the Radiators in the primary election but also to see that they are elected.

Selected members of the County Central Committee in the interest of the retention of Jack Day as chairman.

Driving his motorcycle at alleged excessive speed yesterday afternoon, Nick Cristie, of 390 West Tenth street, Vancouver, Wash., smashed into an automobile driven by E. A. Kline, who was the fender from the auto. Cristie was going west on Mill street, and in attempting to pass in front of the machine, which was going south on Park, struck the rear fender, the crash throwing him to the pavement and knocking him unconscious.

Cristie was brought to the Emergency Hospital by Policeman Crane, where it was learned that he had sustained a lacerated scalp and several painful body bruises.

According to Cristie, the machine went on after the collision. An eye-witness took the license number of the car and came to police headquarters with Cristie and the policeman.

Later Kline appeared at the police station to report the accident, asserting that he had offered to rid the motorcycle of Cristie, who was reprimanded by the police for not bringing Cristie in his car to the hospital.

INTERESTS BACKING LOCAL POLITICS

Chief Contest Probably Will Center About Election of Two Commissioners.

NINE CANDIDATES IN RACE

Sheriff Hurlburt, Who Is Seeking Third Term, Will Be Opposed by John Cook—Two File for Auditor—Judgeship Attractive.

Now that the time for filing by candidates for National and state offices has expired and the lists for the primary election are closed, interest has been turned to aspirants for the various county offices to be nominated in the same election. Candidates for county offices, including precinct committees, must file their announcements in the office of County Clerk Beveridge before 8 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Compared with some previous elections, there is a noticeable scarcity of office seekers for places in the county government. As usual, the chief contest will be furnished in the election of two members of the Board of County Commissioners. Philo Holbrook and Irtus C. Holman, members of the board, whose terms expire this year, are candidates to succeed themselves.

Will H. Daly, George R. Thomas, J. T. Wilson and A. A. Bailey have already filed for Commissioner. Among others who have announced that they will seek this office are Ralph W. Hoyt, Benjamin R. Perkins and L. G. Carpenter. They are expected to complete their filings before Wednesday night. County Clerk Beveridge has filed for re-election to a second term. W. W. Hall, a former clerk of Marion County, some time ago announced that he would oppose Mr. Beveridge, but has not yet actually filed his candidacy.

Sheriff Hurlburt, who is seeking a third term, will be opposed by John Cook, a clerk in the Water Bureau. County Auditor Sam B. Martin, candidate for re-election, will be opposed by E. H. Collins, also an expert accountant of the county. County Treasurer John M. Lewis, County Surveyor R. C. Bonser, County Coroner Earl Smith and Constable Mark W. Peterson, all filed for re-election. Thus far neither has any other term. It is rumored, however, that before the time for filing expires Wednesday afternoon opposing candidates will appear for the offices of Coroner and Constable.

The principal interest in the approaching nominating election, so far as Multnomah County offices are concerned, will be supplied in the contests for three Circuit Judges. The incumbent, Judge Morrow, Stapleton and Gantenbein, whose terms expire, have announced that they will seek re-election. Judge Morrow, in Department No. 2, will be opposed by the nomination by District Judge Dayton. For Department No. 4, Judge Stapleton has four opponents—Arthur I. Moulton, A. W. Orton, B. C. Wright and Wilson T. Hume. Circuit Judge Gantenbein, of Department No. 6, also faces a field of four contestants for the nomination—W. A. C. Taylor, W. W. McCredie, James N. Davis and John E. Owen.

The foregoing discussion relates entirely to Republican candidates. Confronted by a 3 1/2 to one registration against them, Multnomah County Democrats never have been very keen about contesting for district or county offices. And they are evincing even less interest than usual in these jobs this year. Emerinus Versteeg is the only Democrat thus far who has assembled sufficient courage to file for his party's nomination for any county office. He is a candidate for County Commissioner.

Ecoscoe P. Horst, prominent young lawyer of this city, will probably be unopposed for the Democratic nomination for Circuit Judge, Department No. 4, Multnomah County Circuit Court. Mrs. Maria L. T. Hilden and John S. Smith, both of this city, will contest for the Democratic nomination for Representative in Congress from the Third Congressional District.

L. J. Simpson will leave today for a tour of the West Side counties for the purpose of carrying his candidacy for Governor to the Republican voters of that section of the state. He will be gone several days, making the trip by automobile, and upon his return will go to Eastern Oregon, visiting those counties he called to reach on his last trip.

Enrollment for Coming Primary Election May 17 Will Close at 9 Tomorrow Night.

Approximately 100,000 voters are registered in Multnomah County, the registration offices at the Courthouse. Enrollments in recent weeks have been heavy, it was reported. Of the voters now listed on the books 44 per cent are women and 56 per cent men.

Registration for the coming primary election, to be held May 17, will close at 9 o'clock tomorrow night. In the compilation of registration figures last made the grand total of voters was 99,067. Additions not yet tabulated constitute an increase of about 19 per cent, registration workers estimate. These are the figures shown by the official check:
