

OLD PIONEER DIES

Hiram Terwilliger Passes Away at Age of 75.

OREGON RESIDENT 70 YEARS

Father, James Terwilliger, Took Donation Land Claim in Densely Forested District, Where Beautiful Boulevard Now Located.

Hiram Terwilliger, pioneer Portland citizen, who typified the spirit of the West and whose family name is known throughout the state, died at his home in South Portland early yesterday from causes due to advanced age. For 70 years he had lived in Portland, arriving with his parents after an eventful trip across the plains. He then was 5 years old.

His father, James Terwilliger, took up a donation claim in a densely forested district, through which the Macadam road now passes and which in recent years became widely known by the beautiful Terwilliger boulevard, which skirts the hills above the west bank of the Willamette, in South Portland.

Hiram Terwilliger, Citizen of Portland 70 Years, Who Died Early Yesterday.

Home Was at First and Morrison. The father later bought a piece of property, one corner of which subsequently was designated as First and Morrison streets, and there erected a cabin and a blacksmith shop. The elder Terwilliger plied his trade there for many years and in that vicinity the son grew up as a child with mostly Indians as playmates. For a while no white neighbors were closer than on the next claim and Hiram learned to speak the jargon fluently.

In 1836 the Terwilliger family removed to South Portland, and 230 yards from where the modern home of Mr. Terwilliger now stands was built the homestead log cabin. The son lived there a number of years and engaged in a variety of pursuits. He mined, worked as a logger, operated a dairy and worked in a tannery built by his father.

In 1859 he married Miss Mary Edwards, of Tillamook, and together they lived in that city for nine years. Later they returned to Portland and lived continuously here until his death.

Career in Politics Brief. Like most of the first settlers of the state, Mr. Terwilliger was a thorough Republican. He was interested always in the political development of Oregon, but never took much active part in politics. He was a candidate for one session of the Legislature, but after being defeated by one vote decided that he would not take active part in politics thereafter.

He decided the modern trend of social and political conditions and often wished that the whole scene could be changed and he could "live again the days when every one was a neighbor to every one else."

Mr. Terwilliger is survived by his widow, Mrs. Mary Edwards Terwilliger, two sons and two daughters. The sons are James H. and Joseph H. Terwilliger, and the daughters are Mrs. Charlotte Butts and Mrs. Virtue Rodgers. James P. Moffett and Frank Richardson are nephews.

Arrangements for the funeral will be completed today.

ROSE BOURBON FIGHTS CITY

Writ of Mandamus Against City Commissioners Asked.

Alleging that she has been denied a license to operate a "board-house" without any just or legal cause, Rose Bourbon, manager of the Fargo Hotel, 715 North Second street, yesterday filed a petition for a writ of mandamus against Mayor Baker and the City Commissioners. She asks the court to compel the City Commission to grant her a license in order that she may operate the hotel.

The plaintiff alleges that her application for a license was denied April 4, although she has had always conducted her hotel in a "proper, decorous and orderly manner," and has been willing to comply with any and all regulations the city of Portland might impose.

DOGS AND BIRDS DESTROY

Numerous Complaints Made by Makers of War Gardens.

With the general planting of war gardens the dog, pigeon and China pheasant problem has bobbed up as an issue before the City Council. Numerous complaints of dogs tramping newly made gardens, of pigeons digging up seeds and of pheasants doing all sorts of damage have reached Mayor Baker's office.

Just how to handle the problem is a question now being considered. Many people would force dog owners to keep all dogs penned up. Dog owners on the other hand are up in arms against such a proposal and the license law which licenses dogs to run at large stands as a stumbling block.

LICENSES ARE IN ARREARS

Proprietors of Hotels and Lodging-Houses Called Upon to Pay Up.

Hotels and lodging-houses that have failed to get their licenses from the city must do so at once. Notices were sent out yesterday for all proprietors to report at once.

There are 505 of these places in the city and so far only 88 have obtained their licenses. Out of the 505 all applicants for license have been approved except 39. Twenty-eight of this number are to have hearings before being finally refused licenses and 12 have been finally refused.
