CENSOR PLAN URGED

Newspaper Publishers Want Voluntary System.

U. S. CO-OPERATION SOUGHT

President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo Send Messages of Appreciation of Services to Association in Session at New York.

NEW YORK, April 26.—As the result of a suggestion made before the American Newspaper Publishers' Association on Tuesday by Hopewell Rogers, its retiring president, the organization decided to seek co-operation by the Government in establishing a voluntary censorship bureau composed of practical newspaper men.

Mr. Rogers in his address alluded to "wasted efforts" in the preparation of Government publicity matter and classed the head of the Government's publicity department as "incompetent and disloyal."

Under the plan proposed today, a committee of trained journalists would be selected to gather from the various departments such news as would be of interest to the public and of value in the prosecution of the war and at the same time eliminate such material as publishers regard as unimportant, thereby saving the time and effort now used in sending out "copy" which goes to waste baskets.

Glass Elected President.

Frank P. Glass, of the Birmingham (Ala.) News, was elected president of the association at the final meeting of the convention today.

Other officers elected are:

George A. MacAneny, of the New York Times, vice-president; John Stewart Bryan, of the Richmond (Va.) News-Leader, secretary (re-elected); Edward F. Call, of the New York Journal of Commerce, treasurer (re-elected).

Telegrams were read from President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo thanking the publishers and their newspapers for the generous support given to war measures.

President Wilson's telegram to Hopewell L. Rogers, of the Chicago Daily News, follows:

"May I not express to you and through you to the publishers of the daily newspapers of the United States assembled at the meeting of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association my very deep and warm appreciation of the generous message sent me under date of yesterday (Wednesday)?"

"It is indeed stimulating and deeply encouraging to receive such assurance, and I beg that you will convey to the members of the association my hearty greetings, not only, but my sincere hope that our united efforts may bring to the world the peace and justice which we all desire and for which we are all ready to fight to the utmost."

"WOODROW WILSON."

McAdoo Values Appreciation.

Secretary McAdoo telegraphed to Mr. Rogers as follows:

"Will you be good enough to express to the members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, now in session, my sincere and warm appreciation of the great service they have rendered the country by their consistent, unselfish and patriotic support of the successive liberty loans which have been offered by the Treasury Department?

"These loans could not have succeeded without the support of the newspapers and it gives me great pleasure to make this acknowledgment."

"An enlightened public opinion is the chief asset of a democracy. By keeping the people of America informed on public events and transmitting to them word of the financial and other needs of the Government, the American newspapers are performing a public service of incalculable benefit to the Nation."

"I know that the service will be continued and that the newspapers will do their full share in assisting America to win this war for democracy and justice."

NEW YORK, April 26.—Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, yesterday read to the board of directors of the association a telegram conveying the thanks of the liberty loan committee for the help given by the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in the selling of liberty bonds. The text of the message follows:

"Frank B. Noyes, president the Asso-
