

A BACK COLLEGE CUT BY SECRETARY

Statement of Lane Candidate in Voters' Pamphlet Held to Be Objectionable.

AUTHORS PROTEST ACTION

Objectionable Matter Filed in Behalf of James Fullerton Refers to Alleged Questionable Conditions at State University.

SALEM, Or., April 30.—(Special.)—Secretary of State Olcott today stopped the printing of the Republican party primary voters' pamphlet for the Lane County district to eliminate matter from the statement of James Fullerton which the Secretary deemed objectionable. Fullerton is a candidate for Representative from Lane County and the matter submitted for the pamphlet included a bitter attack on the morals of the University of Oregon.

The two paragraphs which Secretary Olcott ordered eliminated from Fullerton's statement and which refer to Mr. Fullerton's alleged activities relative to the university are as follows: "He has worked to do away with the immoral conditions at the university so that parents might feel safe to send their sons and daughters there, and if elected will introduce a bill remedying the present awful conditions. If given the chance he will make the University of Oregon a fit place to send the youth of our state and do away with the graft and rottenness that now exist."

Mr. Fullerton Protests.
The statement for Mr. Fullerton was submitted for the pamphlet over the names of W. J. Williams, Sam Spores, Mary A. Woods and E. B. Parks.

Before eliminating the paragraphs referred to Secretary Olcott telephoned to Mr. Fullerton and explained his intention of eliminating the matter. Fullerton protested and Secretary Olcott asked him to advise with the people who signed the statement. Mr. Fullerton said later that he had seen three of them and they all protested against any of the matter being eliminated.

"That is what they paid for," they said, asserted Fullerton, "and they insist on its being printed."

Secretary Olcott said that he, under the authority vested by law to edit the statements in the pamphlets, intended to eliminate the objectionable matter as being improper, a portion of a candidate's statement, regardless of the objections of Mr. Fullerton and the signers.

Objectionable Matter Cut.
Fullerton intimated that if Olcott pursued that course he would fight him to the last ditch and that such action might swing the election against his candidacy for Governor.

Secretary Olcott secured an opinion from Attorney-General Brown as to the authority to edit the statements in the pamphlets, "by eliminating what you deem objectionable matter before you deliver the statement to the State Printer."

"The law has imposed upon you the responsibility of editing the matter published in the state campaign pamphlet, and has vested in you power and discretion to omit the following paragraphs if you deem them contrary to public policy and to the welfare of the state."

Here he quotes the two paragraphs mentioned as objectionable.

Secretary Olcott declares that the paragraphs in question will not be printed.

Sixteen Carriers Floated.
In April alone there were nine of the Government wooden fleet to leave the ways. In addition there were three wooden hulls launched by the Foundation Company for the French government and one for private account by the Columbia Engineering Works, also one steel ship by the Columbia River Shipbuilding Corporation, another by the Albion Engine & Machine Works and one by the Northwest Steel Company, so during the month there were 16 carriers floated in what is known as the Oregon district. If Coos Bay was included there would have been 18 credited, as two were launched on that waterway, but they are figured in the California district and the machinery is installed at San Francisco.

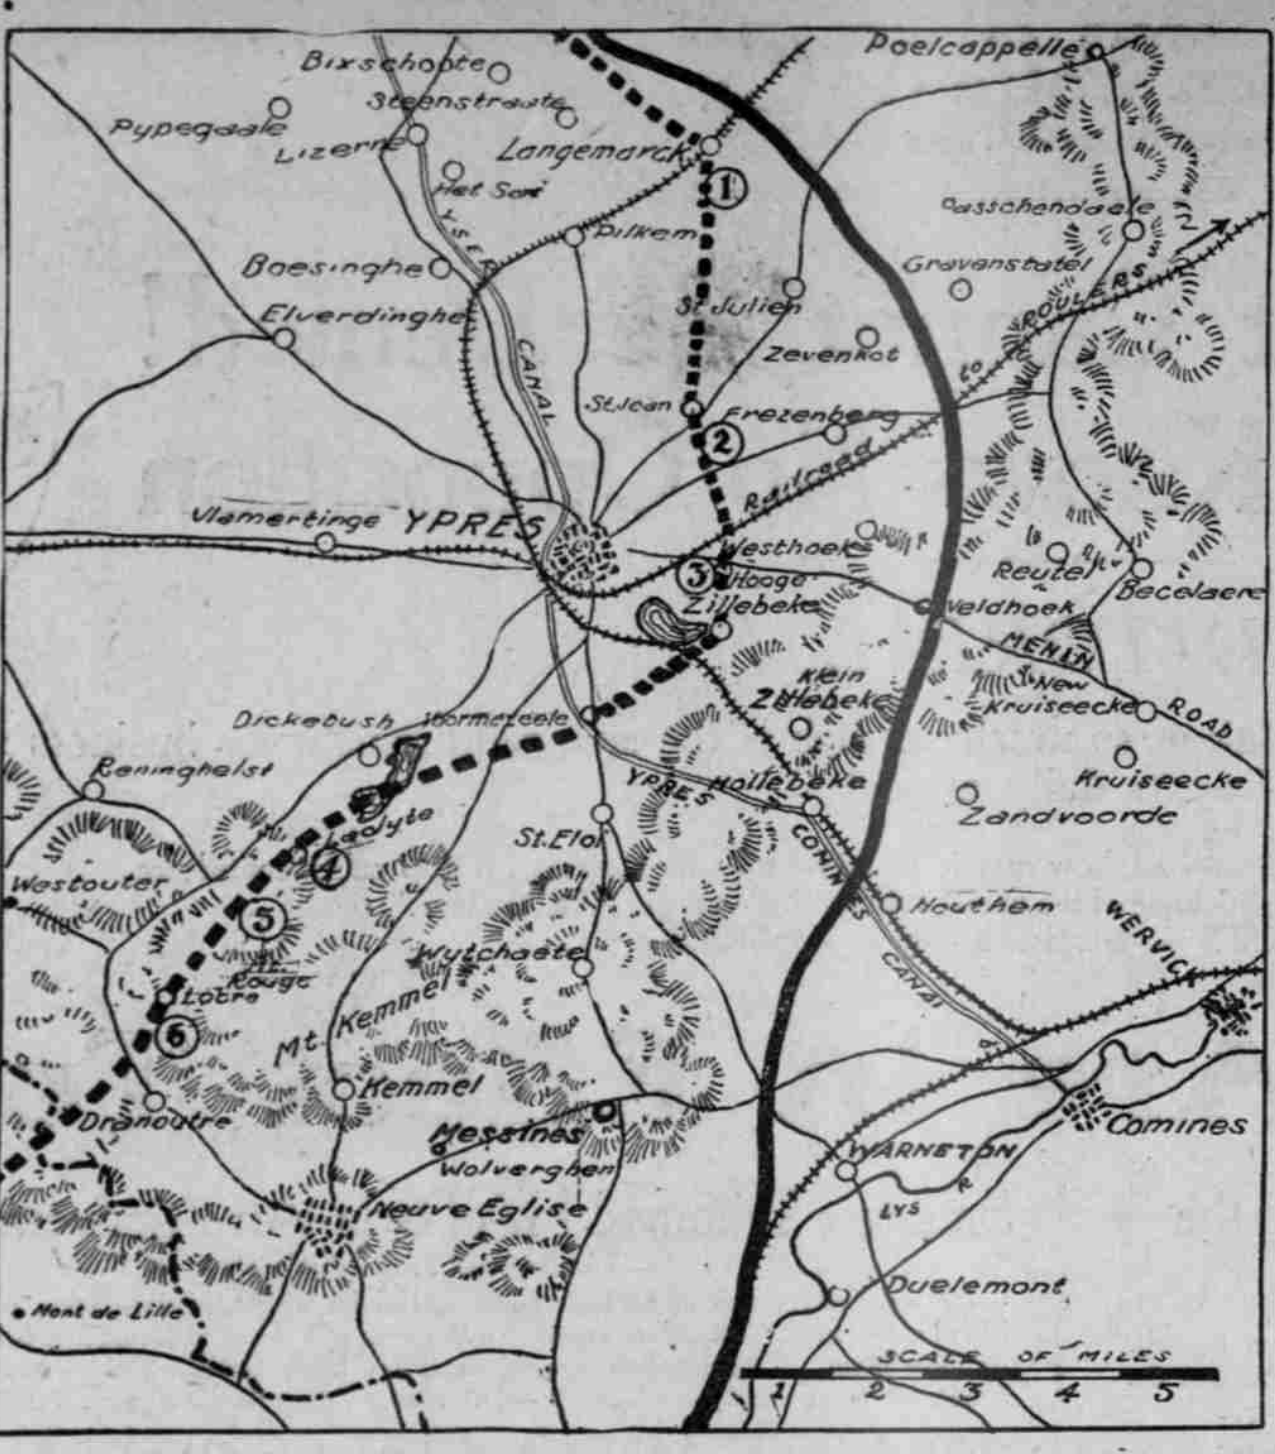

Another feature in the cap of Oregonians during April was the completion of the six-ton steel ship Westgrove in 23 working days, a world's record. She was in possession of the United States Shipping Board 37 working days after her keel was started, the interim between the date of her completion and delivery being occupied in loading a part cargo and undergoing her endurance run. Her builder was the Columbia River Shipbuilding Corporation.

Pair Get Jail Sentences.
United States Judge Wolverton yesterday sentenced Charles Tooley and Isabel Bent to six months and 25 days, respectively, in the County Jail. The Bent woman had represented in a sworn statement in Tooley's questionnaire that she was his wife, when the fact is that they are unrelated and she was living with him illegally. The purpose of this deception was to enable Tooley to claim exemption from military service on account of dependancy.

YOUR LIVER NEEDS

Stirring Up and Stimulating in the Spring.
Its sluggish lack of vigor is a large factor in causing the dullness, depression and weakness that hang on to you like lead in your shoes from morning till night.
Hood's Pills are the best liver stimulant and family cathartic because they do their work well and do not deplete the blood like purgative salts and waters, which often leave a woeful train of catarrhal discharges that are unnatural and weakening.
Then you may get the splendid blood-enriching qualities of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the iron-building effects of Peptonin into the combination, and the three medicines working together give the grandest health-boost it is possible to have from medicine.
Any one of the three medicines will do you good—the use of all three will accomplish wonderful results for you. Try this treatment this spring.—Adv.

MAP SHOWING BATTLE LINE IN YPRES SECTOR, WHERE ALLIES HAVE DISASTROUSLY REPULSED GERMAN ATTACKS AND HAVE THEMSELVES SCORED GAINS.

1, 2 and 3—Region Where Belgians and British Repelled German Attacks. 4, 5 and 6—Where Germans Met Especially Disastrous Check. Between La Clytte (4) and Loere (5) the Allies Beat Off All German Attacks and Advanced Their Lines. The French Are Now in Complete Possession of Loere. At Mont Rouge (5) the Enemy Attacks Were Especially Fierce, as This Elevation Dominates Mont Kemmel, Now Held Precariously by the Germans.

allies, and today those divisions which were in the sanguinary struggle received a message commending them for the magnificent defense. Not only was the allied line virtually intact today, but the latest reports show that the British, during the counter attack yesterday afternoon north of Kemmel, reclaimed considerable ground which the Germans had held since Kemmel was taken.

At the crossroads between Scherpenberg and Mont Rouge and about Loere the fighting was particularly fierce. Loere changed hands several times and at nightfall the Germans had a hold on the place. In their counter attack during the night, however, the French cleared the Germans from between the two hills and thrust them back from Loere, regaining ground for nearly a mile.

The French, during the day, repulsed many attacks on the initiative of officers commanding smaller units. Time and again French Captains organized counter thrusts and drove the enemy back after they gained a footing in advanced positions.

Attack Is Broken Up.
The German attack against the British was from the southeast, toward Ridge Wood, between Dickembusch Lake and Voormezele. At Ridge Wood, where the fighting was very bitter, the Germans advanced with fixed bayonets, but came under an intense machine gun fire and were never able to employ their steel.

The work of the British troops all along the front was magnificent and especially noteworthy because some had been fighting steadily since April 9. They still had a hold on the northern ridge of Voormezele today, as they had at the beginning of yesterday's assault. Their line also was maintained at Ridge Wood.

Gun Nests Cleared Out.
The spirit of the British troops is shown by an incident on Sunday near Voormezele. Three German machine gun companies were causing the British trouble. Three parties, each composed of six Tommies and a lance corporal, were assigned to clear up these posts. The corporals planned the campaign, which they carried out so successfully that the Germans were surrounded and 58 were captured by 21 men. The machine gun posts were cleared.

North of Kemmel the British and French, countering in conjunction, also pushed forward somewhat during the night and bettered their positions. At one time yesterday the Germans actually had some men on the lower slopes of both Mont Rouge and the Scherpenberg, after they succeeded in driving a small wedge into the French line between these two elevations.

Fierce fighting continued about Loere all day, and the enemy sacrificed great numbers of men in an attempt to push through here.

In the meantime the flanks were holding brilliantly against successive shocks. A particularly bitter battle was waged astride the Kemmel-La Clytte highway, near the junction of the French and British. Here the enemy tried his favorite trick of trying to divide the two forces, but he found no weak spots.

At Ridgewood, west of Voormezele, heavy fighting also continued throughout the day, the Germans losing great numbers of men, both killed and wounded. It is impossible to say how many attacks the enemy made at this point during the course of the day. They came forward in waves throughout long hours. There was no cessation of the terrible battle. The wonder is that the allied troops were able to hold in the face of such onslaughts by superior numbers.

Big Gun Duel Terrible.
The German artillery, which had been greatly augmented for this attack, pounded the back areas incessantly, and the duel between the opposing guns of all calibers from Saturday evening until last night was appalling.

The British improved their position slightly before Villers-Bretonneux. The enemy artillery was very active in this region, and the enemy guns were increasingly busy from Vimy northward.

Thus far the German capture of Kemmel has done them little good, for the allied artillery has kept the crest of the hill so smothered with shell fire that it has been impossible for the enemy to occupy it in force.

Yesterday's attack was the biggest effort the Germans have yet made in the Flanders offensive, the enemy employing about 30 fresh battalions of reserves, in addition to the large number of divisions in position at the beginning of the battle.

A satisfactory feature of the struggle is that the British and French employed relatively small forces to defeat the enemy.

At one point the French were forced to yield a little ground, but supports promptly arrived and drove back the Germans.

Counter Attack Is Successful.
By 11:30 o'clock in the morning the Germans had forced their way through near Loere as far as Hyde Park Corner, between Scherpenberg and Mont Rouge. This was one of the critical moments of the day, but the French counter attacked fiercely and an hour later had pressed back the enemy on the flank and held him in the center.

By 3 o'clock the French were holding the ground east of Kenderhet farm and Loere chateau and also part of Loere village, on the southern slope of Scherpenberg. Thereafter the position became steadily more satisfactory, and by 5:30 o'clock the French had retaken all the lost ground except a narrow strip at Hyde Park Corner.

VERDUN TACTICS ATTEMPTED

Huns Hit on Flanks and Then Drive at Allied Center.

WITH THE FRENCH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 30.—The enemy's tactics in the present battle bear a very close resemblance to those used in the battle of Verdun in 1916, but on an immensely larger scale. After the opening rush along the entire line, for the purpose, if possible, of overwhelming the defenders by pure strength of numbers before they are able to recover from the first great shock, each flank is attacked separately with the

FEDERAL CORD TIRES

DOUBLE CABLE BASE

Better Built

Each cord lies flat and carries its full share of the service strain.

Their built-up diagonal layers flex readily and prevent side-wall breaking.

Each cord is impregnated with live, supple rubber and insulated against internal friction and heat which is so destructive to tires.

Their resiliency saves power and gasoline and insures greatest comfort.

The Double-Cable-Base construction, exclusively Federal, contains staunch steel cables which hold the tires firmly on the rim, under severest strains.

The tread is highly non-skid, and the whole tire constructed in perfect balance.
