nette and Paramount predicts for her a future as brilliant as her dark eyes. French Babes. American skill in the motion picture has been drafted to aid in saving the babies of France. The American Red Cross has imported a number of American educational films and now the peasantry of Normandy, of Champagne and other provinces in the shadow of the firing line are being taught first lessons in the care of children, according to modern hygienic standards. The Red Cross aims, in co-operation with the French authorities, to reduce infant mortality in France from 80,000 to 40,000 a year and is in a fair way to do so, thanks partly to the campaign of the motion picture.

Flight Local Censorship.

MOTION picture exhibitors of Portland who have been campaigning against local censorship of photoplays, and favoring the adoption of regulation following the rulings of the National Board of Review, believe that within a few weeks the City Commissioners will pass an ordinance in harmony with their views. A few months ago the film men had an ordinance drafted dealing with the perplexing censorship situation. This was submitted to various people in authority, and with a few changes, seemed to meet with general approval. The ordinance was not introduced as scheduled, and Mayor Baker is making an examination of censorship in Eastern cities, comparing the results of local or state and National regulation, and the results of this investigation largely will govern the Portland action upon his return.

Screen Gossip.

Sergeant Arthur Guy Empey, of "Over the Top," has enlisted with the 27th Division of the United States Army volunteers. Polly Moran, the "sheriff girl" in Mack Sennett comedies, has been granted a divorce from Robert Sandberg. Sandberg is an actor, but he didn't work at it, says Polly. "He would go out in the yard, pull a few weeds, then come in the house and take a bath. Then he would pull a few more weeds and take another bath." She says she couldn't induce him to go to work.

Those Talmadge Sisters.

"When Norma was 10 and I was 8," says Constance Talmadge in the July Motion Picture Classic, "we came to New York City to live and we were both educated here. When she went to work over at Vitagraph I used to follow her around all the time. Finally somebody gave me a 'bit' to do and after that I had some more and I finally achieved the magnificence of some real parts in comedies. Just as I was beginning to dream of a real job and real salary, Norma had an offer from Vitagraph, out in California, and we all packed up and moved out there. I was disappointed; but, of course, I had to make the best of it. I played around out there for a while and finally somebody noticed me and they gave me some scenarios and let me be a star. I was agonizing, having visions of being somebody on my own hook, when Norma had an offer back here in New York, and we all had to pack up and come back. I cried a little then, but of course I came along. But when I got here I was given a real star job and my name was put out in electric lights. I had arrived! I wasn't just 'Norma's little sister' any more. And I didn't have to give up my own ambitions and follow along every time she had a new offer. And now that Norma's married, mother follows along with me, and we are going to make a star out of Natalie, our youngest sister, and then everything will be lovely."

New Paramount Star.

Paramount has announced a new star, one of the youngest stars in the world—Lila Lee, who is not yet 16. She is best known as Cuddles, under which name she is known throughout the vaudeville circuits, which she played under the Gus Edwards management. Edwards was first attracted to her by seeing her play with a lot of other children in a street in the Bronx as he was passing in his automobile. Her discovery for the movies was even more unusual. She was visiting at the Marsh home in New York, when Anita Loos saw her and was struck with her charm and talents. Miss Loos suggested that Jesse Lasky see her and the outcome was that she engaged her and "Lila Lee" is now on her way to California. She is a diminutive but

When you wash your hair, be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain mulified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats the most expensive soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful of all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Adv.
