SHIPYARD FOREMAN VICTIM

Judge Rossman Imposes Sentence of 30 Days in Jail and $100 Fine on Unwise Imbibler—Appeal to Circuit Court Taken.

Wine made out of dandelion blossoms, mixed with apple cider, has one peculiar and pronounced effect on the imbiber, especially if the partaker thereof happens to be driving an automobile. And that is that the driver's judgment of the width of Portland's streets becomes biased, his vision becomes blurred and the established geometric rule defining a straight line becomes slanted.

According to evidence submitted in Municipal Court yesterday, A. M. Johnson, foreman in a shipyard, started out on a tour of the East Side Saturday after drinking two glasses of dandelion wine and two glasses of cider. Along East Burnside street his car suddenly became unmanageable and he collided with a car parked in front of the Masonic Temple.

Three Automobiles Damaged. The impact shoved the car into another machine parked alongside, with the result that three automobiles were more or less damaged.

Johnson was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Hurlburt and turned over to the police. After hearing the evidence Judge Rossman sentenced Johnson to serve 30 days in jail and imposed a fine of $100. Attorney John Manning, appearing for Johnson, served notice of appeal and a cash bond of $300 was posted.

S. Joseph drove his car at the rate of 27 miles for several blocks on Willamette boulevard Sunday. He passed nine automobiles and crowded one car and a motorcycle off the boulevard.

Motorcycle Officer Horack was witness to the fast and reckless driving and placed Joseph under arrest. The speeder was fined $25 and sentenced to serve 120 days in jail.

Few Minutes' Fun Costs $20. W. R. Dempsey, a youth of 18, raced in front of a fire engine for several blocks on Union avenue Sunday afternoon and was fined $20 for his fun.

Jack Cavetto, aboard a motorcycle, persisted in gazing at the eclipse as he was coming down Union street Saturday afternoon and narrowly escaped colliding with an automobile. He was arrested for reckless driving and received a fine of $10.

A. J. Webber, haled into court for speeding his car at a 40-mile clip, explained that as a foreman in a foundry he was in a hurry to reach the plant to turn out some emergency work. A $40 fine followed the explanation.
