Following are the rules that the public is asked to observe: The American flag is the symbol of the brotherhood of man...

It may not be used as staff or whip or covering its position is aloft.

It shall not be marked by advertisement.

When the National color is raised on a parade or in review, the spectator should, if walking, stand at attention, with arms at attention and uncovered.

When displayed with other flags, the National flag should be placed on the right.

It has floated since June 14, 1777, over a country of benevolence, refuge and progress.

To bear the Star-Spangled Banner is an honor to own one a sacred trust.

It is the emblem of freedom, of equality, of justice for every person and creature as if humanely advanced to a higher plane of the open door of free education.

This is the pledge the school children all know and all groupings are supposed to have memorized.

Flag salute—I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands, one, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.
