BY LEONE CASS BAER.

A theatrical miracle is "The Wanderer," which opened a week's engagement at the Heilig last night. A beautiful story of Jerusalem, 1000 years before Christ, and the hills of Hebron have been brought to us in a splendid and stirring manner. The picture with its presentation of illusory character that has graced our stage since scenic artists and costume designers established for themselves and their art places of prime importance in the theatrical field.

At first you are dazzled by the sheer beauty, the exquisite details of the scenery, then you grow gradually accustomed, until finally you become yourself a participant in the simple country life of the shepherds on the hills of Hebron, or a participant in the exotic pleasures in the palace of Nadina, who is keeper of the secret of the prodigal son. Thereby is illusion carried to its greatest height. Thereby is the theater's supreme function being achieved. Scenic Effects Gorgeous.

Through a series of exquisitely beautiful pictures the characters of the aged patriarch of Judea and his devoted wife, Huldah, and Gaal, their firstborn, and Jether, the young son of their old age, experience a dramatic story as told in the great parable of the Prodigal Son, in the Gospel of St. Luke, chapter xv.

A certain man had two sons: "And the younger of them said to his father: 'Father, give me the portion of goods that falleth to me.' And he divided unto them his goods."

"And not many days after the younger son gathered all together, and took his journey into a far country, and there wasted his substance with riotous living."

Jether was the younger son of Jesse, of the tribe of Judah. With his eyes set on the distant city of Jerusalem, tired of his sheep and the peaceful Hebron hills, unheeding his father's pleas, he wandered away, and flinging aside the soft arms of his young cousin, Naomi, Jether became the Wanderer. He took his portion of his father's goods and set out with high fine hopes of returning laden with wealth at some later day, when he had seen the city.

The story is 1000 years B. C., but its application is modern. Jether fell into evil hands. He wasted his substance in riotous living.

Story Appalls and Thrills.
 A stranger took him to the lodging house of Nadina, in Jerusalem, and for a kiss from her daughter, a wanton, over whom men gambled and fought and killed, Jether squandered his patrimony.

He sacrificed the love he held for his people, he renounced the God of Israel for a shining, sneering, brass idol of the Babylonian faith, and when he was penniless, scorned by the wanton and her friends, when he was alone and stripped of even the fine raiment he had purchased, he wandered back to the peaceful home of his father, but to seek aught of that father, but to ask forgiveness of his mother.

Dramatically, the story is one that appalls and thrills and rivets attention. The first act is purely a dramatic episode, the work of a poet with deep insight into the philosophies of the family life and tribal lore of ancient Judea, supplemented by the work of an artist who has instilled life and verity into its scene. Four impersonations stand out with vivid distinctness; the role of Jesse, the father, played with fine dignity and touching pathos by James O'Neil, veteran artist of characterization.

Audience Moved With Emotion.
 Naomi O'Neil, the mother, is a character of singular beauty and heroic in her woman's woe. In her scenes with Jether the quality of her tenderness, her brooding maternal spirit was so sincere that the audience sat in rapture mixed with genuine emotion. Nothing more finely dramatic can be imagined than her scene when she carries Jether from the goat stable and laid him, half dead, bruised and starved, at the feet of his father, while Gaal stands sneering by.

EMINENT STAGE FOLK WHO ARE IN SPECTACLE DRAMA "THE WANDERER" AT THE HEILIG FOR WEEK.

other character that is impressive throughout is Jether, as played by Frederick Lewis. He achieves the effect of a powerful impression by the co-ordination of all the elements that went into the development of Jether's life.

The transition of Jether, a goat-herder, dissatisfied and eager for the city; Jether, drunken in riotous living; Jether, a fraud, a waster; Jether, an outcast, seeking repentance at his father's home, was a revelation in dramatic art.

Roles Are Ably Handled.
 Charles Dalton ably plays the role of Gaal, the elder brother, and Olga Newton is the gentle Naomi. She has a vivid second scene in the palace of Nadina, possesses dramatic intensity and has the qualities of a pageant, with a bewildering variety of characters, dancing girls and slaves, merchants, Egyptians, Arabs, Nubians, servants in waiting, all of such warmth and animation, while the picture with a riotousness of color, vitality of characterization and a riotous joy of living.

The scene itself is one that delights and ravishes the senses. Jean Robertson, as Tisha, the wanton, played with appropriate abandon and sensuousness. She has a vivid personality and her work is memorable. Florence Auer is impressively sinister as Nadine, Sydney Herbert, as a Judah friend of Jether, and Lionel Braham, as a wicked old sea captain who outbids Jether for Tisha's smiles, both stand out in excellent relief. For that matter, so do they all, a lengthy, colorful cast.

"The Wanderer" will continue all week, with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Fourth of July Parade to Be Big Demonstration.

WILLIAM McMURRAY HEAD

Organizations of Naturalized Citizens Will Be Given Particularly Prominent Part in Pageantry of Independence Day.

Genuine enthusiasm has been evoked by preliminary announcements of the nature and scope of the Fourth of July parade and demonstration Portland will witness. Organizations among the foreign-born citizens, who are to have particularly prominent parts in the pageantry, are fast reporting that they may be counted upon to participate.

Tomorrow, noon representatives of the allied nations and of organizations which are urged to join in the parade will meet at the Chamber of Commerce, Oregon building. At this time details of the event will be further worked out.

Representatives of two nations will hold gatherings this evening to begin elaboration of the parts they are to play in the big spectacle. Those of British and Canadian descent will meet at 8 o'clock in the council chamber of the City Hall. Citizens and ex-citizens of Holland will convene at the same hour in the gymnasium of the Oregon building.

Women of the allied nations are to have important place in the parade, this section being in charge of Mrs. Alice Benson Beach.

Civic, patriotic and military bodies are to co-operate. Headquarters of the parade committee will be maintained in the Liberty Temple, where societies, orders and nationalities may report details to participate in the parade or obtain desired information.

"The parade promises to be a wonderful exhibition of patriotic fervor," declared William McMurray, chairman of this feature of the day's celebration. "While I have as yet received but few reports from interested parties as to participation, due to the fact that they have not had time to meet, I am confident that the men and women counted on to take part in the parade will be a splendidly representative group in the plans. 'Foreign-born residents are thoroughly enthused over the plans in which they are to have an important part.'"

GREAT WHITE WAY DOOMED BY RAIDS

Mayor George Baker Returns From New York and Other Far Eastern Cities.

SHADES DRAWN AT NIGHT

Executive Says War Industries Are Humming and Many Boats Loaded With Supplies Are Hurrying Overseas.

There isn't any great white way in little old New York any more. Since the submarine raids visited the Atlantic seaboard the American metropolis is a stygian after sunset.

Mayor George L. Baker, who returned to Portland last night after a month's absence in the East, where he visited many cities and attended the Shriners' convention at Atlantic City, says that lights in the big city after nightfall are as scarce as lightning bugs in mid-Winter.

Aside from this phenomenon of war near at home, he was impressed by the hurry and bustle of war activities in the East, where every industry is running full blast to do its bit for the cause and for victory.

"I visited and conferred with the Mayors and officials of different cities," said Mayor Baker, "and made a number of inquiries concerning civic matters in which we are interested—traffic, police and fire problems, and received a great deal of valuable information. But I may safely say that no city of the East is in any way superior to our own."

Eastern Plants Are Busy.
 "Take shipbuilding, for instance. We have heard a lot of the performance and record of eastern shipyards. I made personal investigation. They are working night and day and are contributing largely to the bridge that spans the seas to France—but Portland is among the foremost and need not fear for her position as one of the first cities of America in this regard."

"Although I had read and heard of the various war activities of the East, the reality surprised me. Everywhere is activity beyond conception. From all quarters troop trains are rushing to the Atlantic seaboard. Criss-crossing trains, the de luxe editions of various lines, are casually sidetracked to make room for the war effort."

"By high passenger fares, and by other means, the Government is seeking to discourage all save necessary passenger travel in order that the movement of troops and supplies may be facilitated to the utmost. They do not hesitate to sidetrack all passenger trains for anything that pertains to the war. The war activity in the East is tremendous—we on the Pacific Coast have no conception of its magnitude."

Washington Is Live City.
 "At Washington many acres on the Potomac flat are being laid out for the Quartermaster's Department. There are three buildings there, each housing 15,000 clerks. This city is humming with life and the streets are rife with varieties of uniforms—our own and our allies."

"In New York harbor I counted 41 ships, transports and vessels loaded with supplies for the other side. One of the transports was devoted wholly to colored troops. And New York is not without its labor trouble. Owing to a strike and the inability to get men, the streets are filled with construction material where the city is attempting to build a subway."

"New York is dotted with the submarines came. All lights are out, about the streets, and by police order all shades are drawn after sunset. There are no electric signs, and no neon. When the theaters close, there are black throngs of people pouring out, where a few days ago was the bright glare of electric light. The old-time gaiety of nighttime in New York is vanished."

Supplies Hurried Overseas.
 "I was at Atlantic City when a lifeboat came in from the steamer Carondelet, a transport of the United States Navy. It had been 46 hours in an open boat, with only sea biscuits for food. The Shriners' band of Lulu Temple, Philadelphia, was on board. The lifeboat was at once raised $1000 for their relief. Members of Lulu Temple took the boat to Philadelphia, declaring that they would fill it with money for patriotic causes."

Mayor Baker said that assurances were received that the first Shriners' convention to be held after the war would be held in Portland, but that no imperial session would be attempted until hostilities had ceased. All kind of business sessions, summing about 500 members, whereas the convention held in Chicago last year drew more than 10,000 delegates from the many shrines.

During his month's absence Mayor Baker visited Washington, New York, Chicago, New Orleans, Philadelphia, San Francisco and Los Angeles, as well as many other cities.

PASTOR WARNED IN LETTER

"Stop Speaking Against Germans," Says Anonymous Letter.

LOS ANGELES, June 23.—Anonymous threatening letter, warning him to "stop speaking against the Germans," and signed "Hoch Der Kaiser," was read in the course of the evening services by Rev. Charles Edward Locke, pastor of the First Methodist Church, whose denunciation of what he termed the "diabolism of Prussian militarism" has been pronounced.

"Any contemptible coward can write a denunciation letter, but it is a cowardly deed," said the minister in commenting upon the note. Then he proceeded to read a letter from a German and a letter from a Frenchman, both of which were signed "Hoch Der Kaiser."

Emerson of Pullman, Wash., lost their lives in the Snake River today while attempting to save the life of Miss Shelona Winton of Moscow, and save beneath the current when he handed the drowning woman to friends on shore.

THIS MAN ABLE TO WORK FIRST IN 2 YEARS

Says Tanlac Gave Him Biggest Surprise of His Life. Gains 20 Pounds.

"Well, I have just finished my third bottle of Tanlac, and do you know I had the surprise of my life. The very day when I got on the scales and found I had actually gained twenty pounds already," said W. S. Hukill, a well-known carpenter, living at 7308 Park avenue, Tacoma, Wash., recently.

"I hadn't been able to hit a lick of work in two years until now," he continued. "My appetite went square back on me, and what little I did manage to eat soured on my stomach, causing gas and intense suffering. My kidneys bothered me something awful and my back pained me so bad it was torture for me to have it rubbed. I was so nervous and miserable during those two years that I never knew what a good night's sleep was, and for seven months of that time I was flat on my back, hardly able to move. If, of course, was under treatment, spent some time in the hospital and took all kinds of medicines, but with it all I kept getting worse."

"I kept dropping off in weight until I lost forty-seven pounds, and was almost a living skeleton. When I left the hospital and decided to see what Tanlac would do for me, I weighed only ninety-five pounds. But Tanlac certainly has made a wonderful change in me. I sleep fine, and really it's the first time in two years I have been able to sleep the night through. My back and kidneys don't bother me any more and my stomach is in such a good condition that I can eat just anything I want without suffering a particle afterwards. The way I am getting back my lost weight is astonishing. As I said, I have already gained twenty pounds and am still gaining. Not only that, I feel better than I have in years, and I am going back to my work, and feel strong and well in every way, and I just can't praise Tanlac enough for what it has done for me."

Tanlac is sold in Portland by The Owl Drug Co.—Adv.

Domestic Science

By LILIAN TINGLE.

BAKER CITY, Ore., June 5.—Will you please publish in The Daily Oregonian a recipe for uncooked ice cream? Is gelatine added to give a body? It seems so watery, and how and when do you add the gelatine? Also a recipe for strawberry preserves, not too rich, and for utri-fruit. Thanking you.

MRS. A. J.
 TO my mind the best "uncooked" ice cream is a "mousse" made with whipped, flavored and sweetened cream placed in a mold and frozen without stirring in equal measures of ice and salt.

Gelatine is sometimes used to give "body" when the cream is thin, but an excess of gelatine must be avoided. Gelatine would be soaked in a little cream or water heated over hot water until melted and then mixed with the rest—usually one teaspoon gelatine to one quart cream is enough for the cream.

At this time honey or corn syrup should be substituted for all or part of the sugar in making ice cream. Philadelphia Ice Cream—One quart cream, 1 teaspoon gelatine, 1 cup honey or 1 cup sugar and 1 cup corn syrup, 1 tablespoon vanilla. Dissolve the gelatine as described above and mix with the rest of the cream. Whip the cream, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup strawberry juice (or raspberry juice or grape juice), 1 teaspoon gelatine, 1-3 cup sugar, 2-3 cups cream. Whip cream, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup strawberry juice (or raspberry juice or grape juice), 1 teaspoon gelatine, 1-3 cup sugar, 2-3 cups cream.

Soak the gelatine in 3 tablespoons water, then dissolve over hot water, add to the rest of the juice and the syrup, sugar stirring well. Whip cream, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 cup strawberry juice (or raspberry juice or grape juice), 1 teaspoon gelatine, 1-3 cup sugar, 2-3 cups cream.

Only a limited quantity of rich preserves should be made this year, and that, think, bars out "fruit-fruit" which calls always for rather more than equal weights of sugar when alcohol is out of the cream.

Strawberry Preserves—You can make some fairly good strawberry preserves using 2 pounds white Karo or corn syrup, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 4 cups fruit. Use small, firm, fresh strawberries, stem, wash, drain, weigh and arrange in the preserving kettle in layers with the syrup and sugar. Let stand to draw the juice a little, then heat to boiling point and let stand over night. Reheat and let stand over night. Reheat and let stand over night. Reheat and let stand over night.

Before the arrival of baby knowing women for over half a century have used with regularity the time-honored preparation, Mother's Friend.

Here is a most wonderful application for the abdomen and breasts. It penetrates the muscles, ligaments and tissues, rendering them pliant to readily yield to nature's demand for expansion.

By its use the anxious weeks of pregnancy are made comfortable. The usual wrenching strain, bearing-down and stretching pains are counteracted. The system is prepared for the coming event, and the use brings rest, repose and happy anticipations.

By the regular use of Mother's Friend during the period the muscles expand easier when baby arrives, and naturally the pain and danger at the crisis is less.

Mother's Friend is prepared after the formula of a noted family doctor by the Bradford Regulator Co., 435 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. It is for external use only; is absolutely and entirely safe and perfectly effective. Write them for their instructive and interesting booklet, "The New Mother's Friend," a wealth of instruction and comfort to be derived from this little book. It is plainly written, just what every woman wants to know and will be glad to get. Next book of guidance not only for yourself but will make you helpful to others, and in the meantime obtain a bottle of Mother's Friend from the druggist, and thus fortify yourself against pain and discomfort.—Adv.

NERVOUS RUN-DOWN WOMAN

 Dukes, Tenn.—I live on a farm and keep house for six in my family. I got into a nervous run-down condition so it seemed as though I would die. A friend advised me to try Vinol. I have been greatly improved by its use and am better and stronger, in every way."
 —Mrs. H. H. Goodwin.

The reason Vinol was so successful in Mrs. Goodwin's case is because it contains beef and cod liver peptones, iron and manganese peptones and glycerophosphate, the very elements needed to build up a weak, run-down system and create strength. The Owl Drug Co. and druggists everywhere.—Adv.
