CAMP LEWIS AGAIN READY

Men Are Classified. It sometimes happens that not enough men from one community arrive at once to form a complete company and a sufficient number from the next arrivals are taken to fill up. Following the first step in organization the cards of the men are classified by occupations and the latest innovation is a practical testing school for men claiming to know the various trades.

Many to Follow Trade. This classification is the answer to many of the folks at home who have occasionally heard of their relatives leaving camp after a seemingly short period of training. Uncle Sam in his vast Army organization needs men of many callings and once in a while the call comes West for so many carpenters, machinists, etc. The cards are examined and the men needed leave camp now as infantrymen, but to do the work of their trade.

Oregonians having become members of such a company in the Depot Brigade now begin to learn their first duties as soldiers. Starting in with the simple formations, learned probably only before in high school days, they assimilate with pencil and papers the theory of war as it is taught in this year of 1918.

Field Work Taught. Then comes the trench work and the maneuvers in the field, the day and finally the night firing at the A or stationary rifle range. Then the B range is used with hidden targets at unknown points and distances bobbing up unexpectedly to test the marksmen.

ship as well as the quickness of eye and mind. Some men, of course, show more proficiency than others in the school of the soldier. The advanced student is the first to be transferred from the Depot Brigade to some organization of the division, being chosen generally for work for which he has shown the greatest adaptability during his initial training.

Should the order ever come for the formation of another division, it is these men of the Depot Brigade into which Oregonians this week are going, that will by their present training become by a slow process of transferring, the nucleus of that division.

Camp Well Organized.

Companies now known as the 10th Company, 6th Battalion, for example, will awake some fine morning to learn that they are now Company A or whatever the case might be, of the regiment. Some will be infantry, some artillery, some machine gunners and so forth and from that day, with the foundation of training already received, will start their intensified training along the lines to which they are assigned.

As before stated the men will find things much easier than did Oregonians who preceded them. The camp is thoroughly organized now and furthermore foreign officers have come to aid in the work. Before long it is quite probable that Yankee officers will return from the front on leave or incapacitated by wounds for active duty to tell of the latest and best methods of meeting and beating the Hun at his own game.

Efficiency Is Watchword. Camp Lewis is divided into the Depot Brigade, the Auxiliary Remount, the Base Hospital, the Quartermaster Corps and the division in training itself. All these units are separate unto themselves, although all work toward the same end. Transfers from one to the other are made, as square pegs found trying to fit into round holes, for the Government is on the lookout to have each man deliver his maximum efficiency.

So the cantonment is never idle, never still, but in the seething movements of the thousands of humans the final goal is always in sight. The men move in, are trained and find their niche, forming the fighting whole that moves on as a division, leaving behind new men to come in, repeat the process, and take their place in their forefathers' shoes.

GOAL TO BE CONSERVED

RADICAL FUEL REDUCTION TO BE ORDERED SOON.

Manufacture of Electricity and Gas Said to Show Waste in Every City in United States.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Reductions in the quantity of coal consumed in the manufacture of electricity and gas will be put into effect soon by an order which the fuel administration announces is in preparation. The fuel administration's announcement that details have been worked out, says in this city and village electricity is wasted.

"The country needs now and for the whole period of the war will need more coal than it can possibly produce and transport," says the statement. "Confronted by this condition, the fuel administrator will order radical reductions in the quantity of coal consumed in the manufacture of electricity and illuminating gas used for the purposes specified. While the official order has not yet been signed, it is expected that it will provide for closer restrictions in the New England States, New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, District of Columbia and Maryland than in other states where the transportation of coal is not such a tremendous problem.

It is expected the order will provide that no theater or other outdoor lights shall be turned on until the street lights shall have been lighted. Unnecessary daylight use of electric lights and electric advertising displays probably will be shut off altogether. The order will deal also with store window lights and will extend to all kinds of fuel, including gas and oil.

I. W. W. WORKERS JAILED

Three Alleged Agitators Caught in "Neutrality Squad" Net.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 30.—In a raid late last night on an apartment-house in the downtown district, the "neutrality squad" of the police department took three men, said by police officials to have been among the most active I. W. W. propagandists on the coast.

They were: Herbert Stradwick, secretary of the Pacific Coast headquarters of the I. W. W.; Fred Landers, awaiting the outcome of a deportation charge laid by United States Commissioner of Immigration Edward White; John Dymond, under indictment in the Federal District Court at Fresno in connection with the burning of hay barns in the Modesto district.

Dymond is said by Police Captain J. J. O'Meara, head of the neutrality squad, of being the chief sabotage propagandist of the I. W. W. in this section of the country. The men probably will be arraigned Monday.

WAR PROFIT TAX TO BE CONFISCATORY

Federal Trade Commission's Revelations of Profiteering Basis of Legislation.

SENATOR BORAH TALKS

Fight Made in Senate to Take 80 Per Cent of Surplus for Government Will Be Renewed in Next Revenue Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—(Special.)—Practical confiscatory taxation of war profits under the forthcoming revenue bill is assured as a result of the Federal Trade Commission's revelations of profiteering by many large industries producing necessities of life and war materials required by the Government.

An extension of price fixing and an overhauling of the existing price fixing machinery which failed to prevent profiteering are also among the measures that Congress will consider in connection with efficient methods of findings. Some leaders in Congress are giving their attention to the possibility of enacting a drastic anti-profiteering law.

Food Administrator Hoover, who was out of the city today, will be called upon for an explanation of the trade commission's evidence that there has been profiteering by the packers, the flour millers and other food producers despite the regulatory powers conferred upon him by the Food Administration law.

Conflict With Commission Possible. Mr. Hoover's explanation may bring him into conflict with the trade commission, with which he has not been on the best of terms for some time.

Mr. Hoover does not deny that there has been profiteering by certain food producing industries, notably some of the flour millers, but he does contend that adequate measures have been in effect to deprive the offenders of their swollen profits and prevent a repetition of the offense.

Senator Borah, of Idaho, whose resolution called upon the Federal Trade Commission to furnish a statement of excess profits and profiteering, said: "The report is very interesting. It deserves consideration from every standpoint."

Both Sides to Be Heard. "First of all we should of course listen to what the companies mentioned in the report have to say. We should certainly hear both sides. But after both sides have been heard and all facts are considered, the Congress will likely have sufficient grounds for legislation. The most effective way to deal with such a situation is through taxation."

"If these companies are making anything like the profits indicated they should be called upon to turn them into the Treasury of the United States. No business institutions should desire more than a modest profit in these times and if the Government does its duty toward the people no business institution will be permitted to enjoy more than a modest profit."

Fight Will Be Made Again. "Last year a small group of Senators endeavored to place our revenue law upon a war profit basis and to take 80 per cent of all war profits in the way of taxation. That fight will be made again this year and we believe successfully this time. We were charged that time with seeking to break down our industries and to embarrass the prosecution of the war. But such charges will not avail at this time in my judgment."

"I have no sympathy with an attack on big business simply because it is big and successful. But every man in these days must serve according to his ability. Until this war is over and until the war debt is paid, those who have the genius and ability to make money should gladly contribute of their ability and genius in the way of turning over all profits above a reasonable profit to the Government. Hundreds of thousands of people are denying themselves the comforts and necessities of life in order to save and to contribute to the Government. Under such conditions no one should wish and no one should be allowed to take for his private gain money which is the profit of the Government."

NAVAL BILL COMPLETED

Matter of Bonus Payments to Workmen Left Unchanged.

WASHINGTON, June 30.—Congress completed the $169,900,000 naval appropriation bill late Saturday and sent it to the President for his signature. Senate amendments proposing the rank of Lieutenant-General, the commandant of the Marine Corps, authorizing payment of bonuses to Government employees on naval work and providing for promotions from the Navy staff to the line were stricken from the bill in a conference report adopted by both houses.

An agreement on the question of bonus payments to workmen leaves in effect the present law which provides both the bonus and stop-watch system of speeding up work.

STUDENTS WILL TRAIN

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY TO BECOME SCHOOL FOR SOLDIERS. Compulsory Military Instruction Will Be Instituted, Men Being Trained for Officers.

NEW YORK, June 30.—Columbia University, said to have the largest student enrollment in the world, is about to become "a school for the soldier." President Nicholas Murray Butler, in an announcement today, outlined the plans for introducing compulsory military training for the university's under-graduates and for enrolling all students of Columbia College in the reserve officers' training corps next fall.

Men not physically fit for army life will be put through a course of training carefully devised by Colonel John P. Finley, United States Army, retired; Professor George L. Meylan and Dean Herbert E. Hawks, that will, it is expected, develop them physically and by the end of the complete course make them eligible for commissions as officers in the Army.

The plan, as announced, differs somewhat from that adopted by other big colleges, which divided the student body vertically by giving two distinct curricula, one consisting solely of military work and the other of the studies normally leading to the bachelor of arts degree. Columbia men, on the contrary, will be trained quickly for military service and made eligible for further camp training leading to shoulder bars and spurs. At the same time they will be fitted for civil life after the war. The students, in other words, will not be divided by the choice of courses into those who sacrifice civil education for military training and those who sacrifice military training for civil education.
