AMERICANS ARE IN 27 PRISON CAMPS

Red Cross Collects Information of Location and Conditions in Germany.

FOOD SUPPLIED TO ALL

20-Pound Food Parcel Distributed Weekly Through Switzerland. Supplies Withheld as Punishment for Violating Rules.

Information collected by the Portland chapter of the American Red Cross shows 27 prison camps in Germany and Austria in which Americans are now held, Tuchel, near Danzig, at present being the principal one for Americans in uniform.

Despite the meagerness of the German ration, the American Red Cross wants to assure every relative of a captured American that there is not the slightest danger of his starving, or even of needing food or clothing in any manner.

Twenty Pounds Weekly Sent.

Every American prisoner in Germany, whether a civilian or a member of the army and navy, will receive weekly from the American Red Cross a 20-pound food parcel, and, in fact, the Red Cross now has in storage at Berne, Switzerland, supplies sufficient to send a 20-pound parcel a week to 26,000 soldiers for six months.

At Tuchel, in addition, is a stock of Red Cross packages of food and clothing, waiting for prisoners. It is in charge of three captured American soldiers, who are appointed the Red Cross relief committee for that camp. Similar reserve stock will be placed in other camps as soon as it is learned that they in turn will be used to house Americans.

The supplies sent to the uniformed men in Germany are provided by the Army and Navy, and simply dispatched by the Red Cross. Those sent to civilians originate with the Red Cross.

Withholding Parcels Punishment.

While the Germans sometimes withhold these parcels as punishment for violations of rigid prison rules, yet it does not appear that they rob them. Each contains a postal card, mailed to Berne, which acknowledges the receipt. In return for this arrangement the Red Cross performs certain services for American prisoners in Germany.

In each of the camps shown in the map, and in one small camp not located, there are either American soldiers or else American seamen taken from submarined merchantmen. At the beginning of June the Red Cross had direct reports from 231 men in these camps and to each it is sending, in addition to the 20-pound food package, clothing, comforts, tobacco and, in fact, everything the men need.

Money May Be Sent.

Those who have been notified that relatives are in prison camps may send messages or funds to them through the American Red Cross. Arrangements to this end may be perfected at the Portland chapter. The chapter suggests that in sending funds it is better to make arrangements to send a small sum, such as $5 to $25 monthly, rather than a large sum at one time.

In addition to the prisoners on its records, the Red Cross believes about 200 have not been located and will take care of them immediately it learns of their disposition.

"The Red Cross will endeavor to see that no American soldier, or sailor, in Germany suffers for the need of anything that can be supplied," is the heartening message the "greatest mother of them all" sends out.

SOLDIERS ATTEND MASS

FATHER LARRITY, OF VANCOUVER, PREACHES STRONG SERMON.

Mrs. Patrick Bacon, Assisted by Committee of Women, Serve Breakfast to About 300 Fighting Men.

Five hundred soldiers of Vancouver Barracks, with heads bared, celebrated open-air mass yesterday morning on the grounds adjoining the Knights of Columbus Hall. Thirty members of the Immaculate Heart Choir of Portland sang high mass under the direction of Mrs. Catherine Colvach Frederich.

Father Powers, Knights of Columbus chaplain, stationed at the barracks, said mass, and Father Larrity, of Santa Clara College, California, now a chaplain at Bremerton Navy Yard, preached a sermon teeming with patriotic fervor. Many of the men now stationed at Vancouver Barracks were former students of Santa Clara College when Father Larrity was an instructor there.

Breakfast was served to 300 soldiers after the 7 and 9 o'clock mass. Mrs. Patrick Bacon, of Portland, had charge of serving breakfast. She was assisted by a committee of Vancouver women.

If the weather permits, out-door services will be held next Sunday, with a choir from one of the Portland churches assisting.

E. J. ABBEY FOUND GUILTY

Newport Hotelman Fined $100 for Having Liquor in Possession.

NEWPORT, Or., June 30.—(Special.)—The case against E. J. Abbey, one of the proprietors of the Abbey Hotel, for having liquor in his possession was tried yesterday before Police Judge Harding. F. M. Robinson, formerly public defender of Portland, prosecuted the case. Evidence was introduced to prove that the liquor complained of was a lot of cordials and light wines left over from the hotel bar when the state went dry and had been in Mr. Abbey's possession ever since.

The case was tried without a jury and Judge Harding found the defendant guilty and fined him $100. Attorneys for the defense gave notice of an appeal to the Circuit Court.

Mr. Robinson instructed Corporal Ishaw to file a state charge against Mr. Abbey.

Statistics Show Prosperity in All Lines Here.

GAIN OVER 1917 ENORMOUS

Records for First Six Months of Year in Bank Clearings, Livestock Receipts and Other Lines Are Significant.

More business, higher prices, better wages—in a word, the war prosperity of Portland is reflected in the statistics now available for the first six months of 1918. In practically every line business has far exceeded that of last year.

Statistics by which the prosperity of Portland may be judged are bank clearings, livestock receipts, building permits and postal revenues. In each one of these lines there has been substantial increase for the first six months of this year over the corresponding period of 1917.

Portland's bank clearings for the half year ending June 30 exceed clearings for the same period in 1917 by $151,608,396.74. The total clearings for the six months are given by the Portland Clearing-house as $542,580,416.73, while the clearings for the first six months of last year amounted to $390,972,019.99. The gain amounts to nearly 40 per cent.

Clearings Show Big Gain.

The clearings for each month exceed last year's clearings by amounts ranging from $18,000,000 in January to $33,000,000 in June. Clearings in the month just closed averaged $4,037,137, which exceeded by $350,475 the average in May.

Permits for buildings show an increase of 90 per cent in the value of the buildings constructed this half year over the total for the first half of last year. High cost of labor and materials contributed largely to the increased cost of buildings, and additional shipping facilities, including the building of the municipal grain docks, are included in these figures.

There was an increase in the number of cattle shipped this year, but a decrease in hogs and sheep, owing to the scarcity of these animals this year.

Postal Revenues Increase.

Postal revenues increased 26 per cent over those of last year. The advance in rates took effect last November, so this partially explains the increase. Another factor is the large amount of oversens and soldiers' mail matter sent out every day.

The following tables show bank clearings, postal revenue, livestock receipts and building permits in Portland for the first six months of this year as compared with the showing for the first half of 1917:

Miss Mary McMillan, of Liverpool, England, Who Comes to Portland to Head the Reed College Reconstruction Clinic.

CLINIC HEAD HERE

Miss Mary McMillan in Charge at Lewis House Hospital.

WAR WORK TRAINING LONG

Local Reconstruction Plant Declared to Be Well Equipped and Capable of Turning Out Splendid Aides for Government.

Miss Mary McMillan arrived in Portland Friday night to take charge of the Reed College reconstruction clinic, Nineteenth and Glisan streets, and to teach massage to the hundreds of young women who are enrolled in the Reed College school for reconstruction aides.

No better qualified woman could be found than Miss McMillan. Her long experience with wounded soldiers in England and lately in Army hospitals in this country has given her especial training for the work which Reed College is undertaking.

"This reminds me of the hospital in Liverpool," said Miss McMillan, as she looked around the great, softly lighted, high-ceilinged room of the Lewis house, where the reconstruction clinic is located. "The Liverpool hospital was just like this—the beautiful home of a wealthy English family donated to the relief of the Belgian soldiers who poured into Liverpool in a steady stream in October, 1914.

"We had 50 beds in that residence hospital and they were filled all the time, because London was already overcrowded. Most of the soldiers hadn't had their clothing off for four or five weeks. They were gory, grimy, caked with blood and mud. It was impossible to take their clothes off—they had to be cut off and burned. They couldn't speak English, and we women—the hospital was completely manned by women—could not speak their language.

"I've looked over the Reed College clinic and let me say that it is better than 'well equipped.' With the splendid equipment we have here, we should be able to turn out splendid reconstruction aides."

Miss McMillan is the holder of the St. Johns ambulance medal, and is probably the only woman in the United States who has had such varied experience in reconstruction aid work. She is a graduate of Liverpool College for Girls, and has had long experience studying massage and nervous diseases in London hospitals. She has been in charge of work in this line in the National Hospital for Nervous Diseases in London and at various other English hospitals before the war. Since its outbreak her work has been entirely with wounded men.

Miss McMillan will be at the Lewis House clinic every day for instruction and for supervising treatment of cases. She will also lecture at Reed College. She is expert in massage, remedial exercises, hydro-therapeutic and electro-therapeutic treatments, and has had the advantage of contact with all kinds of cases where these methods of treatment are valuable. Portland and Reed College are fortunate to have her services.

TACOMA COMMITTTE STUDIES HOW TO IMPROVE CAR SERVICE.

Problem Is to Obtain Enough Revenue to Enable Company to Pay Employes Union Wage Scale.

TACOMA, Wash., June 30.—(Special.)—A resolution proposing that the Tacoma Railway & Power Company be allowed to charge a seven-cent fare and pay the union wage scale to its employes as a temporary arrangement to improve streetcar service here, was presented yesterday to the committee of 25 citizens, named by the Mayor, which is endeavoring to solve the city's transportation problems.

The resolution was framed after discussion at two meetings when a number of the members of the committee declared they were convinced that the only way speedily to improve the service was to enable the company to obtain more revenue to hire more and better men.

Discussion of the bearing of section 25 of the Public Service Commission law, which limits the charge for streetcar rides within the limits of a city to five cents, occupied much of the session. Former Supreme Judge O. G. Ellis, member of the committee, and Scott Z. Henderson, chairman of the inquisitorial body, declared they believed there would be no legal obstacle to putting into effect the raise in wages and in fare to afford temporary relief.

THE NEIGHBORS ALL SEE GREAT CHANGE IN HER

"I Really Feel Like Tanlac Made a New Woman of Me," Says Mrs. Gallagher.

"I feel so grateful for the relief Tanlac has given me that I believe it to be my duty to make the facts known, for this was the way I found out about this wonderful medicine myself," recently said Mrs. M. J. Gallagher, of 113 Bancroft avenue, who has lived in Portland for thirty years and whose husband has been connected with the U. S. Collector's office for the past twenty-five years.

"About three years ago," she continued, "I had a bad spell with my heart, which acted so strangely that I became greatly alarmed, as it continued to trouble me this way for several days. Ever since then I have had frequent attacks of the same trouble which distressed me very much. I was in such an awful condition that I could hardly eat a thing that didn't sour and cause my stomach to swell. I suffered such agony from indigestion that I was actually afraid to eat anything at all and would only risk taking the lightest kind of nourishment. I was badly constipated and my head ached all the time. I was so nervous that the least little thing would excite me. I lost eighteen pounds and was so weak and rundown, and felt so tired and worn out that I couldn't do anything but lay around the house all day long.

"I took all kinds of medicines for my trouble, but nothing did me any good. Then we read in the papers about a man in Alabama whose symptoms were like mine and who was relieved through the use of Tanlac, and that decided us to try it. I was down in bed at the time, and my husband went and got me a bottle to take. By the time I had used up half my first bottle my appetite had picked up and I was eating a greater variety of food than I had been before, and that gas trouble and swelling were leaving me. Since finishing my third bottle I eat anything I want and never have any trouble at all with my digestion. I haven't been affected with those palpitations since I started on Tanlac and I have already gained several pounds in weight. Several of my neighbors have spoken to me about my improvement and telling me how much better I look, and I really feel like Tanlac has made a brand new woman of me."
