

LAST DRAFT CALL TAKES HARVESTERS

Reports From Several County Exemption Boards Complain of Farm Help Loss.

CLASS ONE MEN SCARCE

One Cause of Shortage Said to Be Due to Granting Permission to Registrants to Enter Navy or Marine Service.

Filing Oregon's quota of 2500 men in the draft call of July 25 will seriously interfere with the harvesting now going on, it is indicated by reports from several county exemption boards received by Captain J. E. Cullison, selective service executive in Oregon.

Class 1 men, now at a premium, will be practically a negligible quantity after the next enrollment, according to present indications. Re-classification of men, as ordered by General Crowder, will mean about 400 more class 1 men, but will not entirely relieve the situation, it is said.

Skilled Farm Workers Taken.

In a communication just received by Captain Cullison, the head of the Sherman County draft board reports that the taking of 16 men in the next call will exhaust class 1 and seriously hamper the harvest which will be at its height July 25. Every one of the 16 prospective selects is a skilled farm worker, he says, and it will require at least 40 ordinary farm hands to replace them.

A deferred call or deferred classification for these men is not now possible, according to Captain Cullison, who says many county boards are short of class 1 men because of their granting permission to registrants to enter the Navy or Marine Service.

Shifts Made Necessary.

In Portland several shifts of quotas between the various local boards have been made necessary by the scarcity of class 1 men. The ruling which refuses permission to call men employed by the Emergency Fleet Corporation also has cut down the number of available registrants. Several ship workers anxious to do their full duty and realizing that their work could be performed by others, have asked to be inducted into the service, according to draft board clerks.

More stringent physical regulations recently put into effect is another factor responsible for the pruning of lists for the call.

Tentative lists of the men called for July 25 in districts 1, 2, 3 and 11 follow:

Agnes Cain-Brown. Musical comedies of a few seasons ago will be remembered by the reappearance of Agnes Cain-Brown, the noted prima donna, who plays the role of "the girl" in Harry Girard's dramatic play of the Far North, "The Girl" has a role in which her splendid soprano is heard with excellent effect. The interpolated songs are all of Alaskan theme.

is putting forward every effort to make the day worthy of the event which it recalls—the birth of the French republic. France's demonstrations in honor of the Fourth of July make the celebration July 14 of particular note at this time. Appreciation of France to Be Shown. "We have no time to arrange meetings, parades, dinners or demonstrations of that kind," said Dr. Tucker yesterday, "but we would like to see every patriotic American put forward his best efforts to show his appreciation of what France has done for this country and to voice his determination to support France until peace shall have been achieved by victory. "We are suggesting the flying of allied flags and particularly that of France. We expect all ministers to cooperate with us and enliven France and her people from the pulpit. A prayer for the success of allied arms would also be appropriate. If there are any band concerts on that day, we suggest that the "Marseillaise" be played along with the "Star-Spangled Banner." Mass meetings in honor of the day have been organized in many cities of this country. Speakers of National prominence have been selected to address these gatherings. Patriots Fight Side by Side. Resolutions in support of President Wilson's determination to stand by France until the last will be put before these meetings, according to present plans as announced by Owen Johnson, chairman of the National committee in charge of the events. With a million and more Americans now fighting on French soil side by side with the French patriots, it is expected that the celebrations in some degree will express the deep feeling which this country holds for France. Every family with a representative across the seas and every family with an interest in the success of allied arms is expected to join in making the celebration Sunday—and each succeeding July 14—an event worthy of both countries. two companies of which have been formed already in Pendleton.
