Dr. J. Whitcomb Brougher will be paid to keep still. A member of his congregation, who he says, is interested in his welfare, has given him a check for $1000 on the promise that he will do no lecturing this summer. And so Dr. Brougher is spending the summer at Gearhart and declining all invitations for lecture courses. He will, however, occupy the pulpit of the White Temple for three Sundays beginning tomorrow. "Preaching doesn't count," said Dr. Brougher, "but if I lecture I break my contract."

Dr. Brougher, now pastor of the Temple Baptist Church at Los Angeles, but formerly pastor of the White Temple here, will go to France in November to talk to the soldiers. He is under orders to save his strength for that occasion.

CHEER BOYS, IS PLEA

Kathleen Burke Stirs Crowd at White Temple.

RED CROSS WORK IS TOLD

Irish-Scotch Visitor Warns Americans to Investigate Credentials of So-called Collectors for Charity.

"Get a smile into your letters that you send overseas to the soldiers," said Kathleen Burke, addressing a free public meeting last night at the White Temple, under the auspices of the Red Cross.
 "Don't write letters saying your hearts are sad, or you're lonesome for their returning and, above all, don't admonish 'em to take care of themselves. The greatest thing any woman can do when her writes to her man overseas is to tell about the little everyday happenings, the funny things that happen in her neighborhood; clip out humorous stories and anecdotes from the papers and put them in with the letter, tell about anything on earth to keep that boy cheery."
 "He can fight twice as well if he thinks his beloved folk in America are brave and cheerful."

A demonstrative and attentive audience paid tribute to Miss Burke's oratory and the power of her dramatic presence, gave additional value to the message she brought of the Red Cross activities in each of the allied nations she told graphically of the humorous glimpses of life in camp in France, Italy, Serbia, England and America she related, and into each acquainted the audience with the Red Cross she represents.
 "A mistaken idea is prevalent that since women cannot be nurses there is no need for their enlistment with the Red Cross," said Miss Burke. "Hundreds of women eager for service as nurses at the front are rejected for lack of training or physical disabilities, but there are an hundred other important and approved departments of Red Cross work for them to do."

Red Cross Field Large.
 "Thousands upon thousands of willing women and patriotic girls whose training may consist of nothing more than a knowledge of sewing, darning, mending, and knitting are integral parts of the tremendous machine, the Red Cross."

"To the onlooker their scattered efforts may seem puny, but it is only because they are not directed into the direct and capacious channel which the established and co-ordinated Red Cross activities afford."

Miss Burke's statement that when the war is over she is going to "become an American and live here, with occasional week end trips to France, which country she dearly loves," was received with cheers. Recital of a few of the thrilling events in which she has personally participated were peculiarly appealing. She paid splendid tribute to the American soldiers, saying that all England and France worship their men.

"Although I have collected more than $5,000.00 for the Red Cross I have never received one cent of salary in all the four years I have been working in war activities," said Miss Burke, in a brief chat yesterday.

The remark was occasioned by a discussion among the group surrounding the petite Irish-Scotch visitor, relative to the prominent gathering of funds by unauthorized people. Miss Burke had not read of Ethel Langdon Drake's ambulance fund movement and would not be quoted as venturing the opinion that the fault lies with the American public. "Generous to a fault," she calls us, "and trusting."

Hospital Work Is Told.
 "You should investigate promptly the credentials and authority of every person who asks for any contribution. You should communicate immediately whenever any movement starts, with the Embassy which the charity represents."

"The Embassy will know—or it can learn instantly by communicating with the Washington headquarters—exactly the standing and mission of the charity." Miss Burke is merely "loaned" to the Red Cross, as she says, and her first love, the Scottish woman's hospital, is resting a while. "I don't like to appear elated that any of the dear American soldier boys are hurt," she said, "but I can't help being glad that 150 of the injured lads are in one of our Scottish women's hospitals. I mean since they are injured, I am happy they are in the hospitals which the generosity and splendor of American contributions make possible."

TOMORROW DAY OF PRAYER

Plan for Setting Aside This Sunday Comes From War Zone.

Churches of this city, people of the community at large and especially friends and relatives of men in the Army and Navy will tomorrow join with the boys "over there" in a day of prayer. Uppermost in the thoughts will be the intercession praying for the continued welfare of the men under arms and the speedy coming of victory.

Denunciation of widespread reports, seemingly emanating from propagandists, that a percentage of the receipts at the Oaks Red Cross day next Tuesday would be paid to the Oaks was made yesterday by Julius L. Meier, chairman of the Oaks Red Cross day committee.

"I cannot make it too strong," said Mr. Meier, "that this is a 100 per cent benefit for the Red Cross."
 "Both Mr. Cordray, the manager, and all the concessionaires have not only donated every penny of the receipts to the Red Cross, but have gone to a great deal of expense to make the day possible."

to the cause of justice and democracy. The plan for setting aside August 4 as a day of prayer has come from the war zone and the people of America are taking the opportunity of definitely joining with the men of the colors in the seeking of divine guidance. Every church service will have at least a part of the programme set aside for this purpose. Many will devote an entire programme to the theme of prayer for the allies. In every camp and cantonment, military post and naval training station the church representatives under the insignia of the Y. M. C. A. war work, churches and other organizations, will lead the men who are in training in similar prayer services.

All ministers and Christian laymen are asked to assist in carrying out this programme for the day.

WOMAN BRUISED IN CRASH

Automobiles Collide and Occupants Are Thrown to Pavement.

In a collision last night at East Sixth and Shaver streets, between a machine driven by Inspector E. F. Smith, 415 Prescott street, and a car driven by Sam Day, of St. Johns, Mrs. Smith and Miss Effie Libby were thrown to the pavement. Miss Libby suffered a broken vertebrae, sprained ankle and bruised arm. Mrs. Smith was bruised. The injured women were taken to the residence of Inspector Smith for medical treatment.

Inspector Smith said he was going south on East Sixth street and Day west on Shaver. At the street intersection it is said that Shaver crashed into the rear of the machine driven by the inspector. Both machines were damaged. Mr. Day was arrested by the officer charged with reckless driving.

SEATTLE MAN IS HONORED

Chehalis Citizens' Club Hears Interesting Talk on War.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Aug. 2.—(Special.)—A smoker was given at the Chehalis Citizens' Club rooms last evening in honor of Phil Norton, publicity secretary of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and Commercial Club. Mr. Norton and family have been spending a few days in this section.

Lieutenant Raymond Bartholomew, of Chehalis, son of Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Bartholomew, spoke of conditions in China, where he was stationed for considerable time. He enlisted in the marines about three years ago as a private, later being promoted to a lieutenant. He is stationed in Cuba, being home on a brief visit.

Sea, Sky and Land

The U. S. Marines! The Three-in-One Service for the One-in-Ten Man!

You know these "Soldiers of the Sea" by the bronze Globe, Anchor and Eagle, on cap, hat or helmet. And the wearer is one whose manhood is attested; who has been selected from ten—or more—less perfect men.

This device, or insignia (shown above) is the distinguishing mark of men whose every inch and ounce has been trained for war efficiency on land and sea or in the air.

A recently-authorized increase in the Marine Corps opens the door to ambitious men, to whom active service and adventure are attractive. Not all men can qualify: acceptance is an opportunity and an honor worth striving for.

AIDES NEEDED FOR ARMY

APPLICANTS FOR SERVICE MUST GIVE PERSONAL HISTORY.

Surgeon-General Places Emphasis on Clinical Experience of Women Now Training at Reed.

At the request of the Surgeon-General of the United States Army, personal history and special question blanks have been filled out by all applicants for reconstruction aides now taking the training at Reed College. These blanks will be sent to Washington for reference when appointing women to serve in military hospitals. Although the aides were selected for training before they were accepted by Reed College, another rigorous physical examination is undergone before the applications are sent to Washington, and the results will help determine the women who will receive appointments from the Government. In many cases, women have come to Reed College with slight defects of posture and other things that could be corrected by remedial exercise. All aides are asked to state whether they will be willing to go into service immediately upon completion of the course on September 6, and also if they are willing to go into the service of the allied nations. There is a crying need for reconstruction aides in the Canadian, French, British, Italian and Belgian military hospitals and it is possible that if the United States Government does not immediately accept women who are anxious to go into service at once the allied nations will use them.

COALMAN TOO ILL TO SERVE

Government Camp Employee Explains Why He Resigned.

Eljah Coalman, who for many years has been in the lookout station at Government Camp and who resigned recently, has written a letter to T. H. Sherrard of the forest service setting forth the reasons for his quitting the service. Two years ago he fell through a crevasse above Crater Lake. Since that time he has had heart trouble. Recently he started up the snowbank at the point where Crater crevasse will soon break through, and was crushed by an avalanche. His heart trouble was made more acute by this latter accident. Mr. Coalman expresses his regret at leaving the forest service and characterizes his work in it as a source of lifelong pleasure.
