The smoke of large fires continues to be seen far behind the enemy's lines and the movement of long transport columns eastward is considered evidence that it is the intention of the enemy ultimately to retreat to new lines of defense.

OISE BEGUN

Franco-British Attack to Support Franco-American Offensive, Says General.

The anarchists have tried to hide the SURPRISE GIVEN GERMANS

Assaults Are Launched Without A tillery Preparation, but Preceded by Creeping Barrages and Tanks in Open Warfare.

BY GENERAL J. M. G. MALLETERRE, Of the French Army. Copyright, 1918, by the Press Publishing Company (The New York World). Pub-lished by Arrangement. PARIS, Aug. 11.—(Special.)—While he rear guard battle continues between the Vesle and the Aisne a new battle has begun west of the Oise. The English armies in action during the second battle of the Marne had seemed strange It was logical that a Franco-British attack should second the Franco-American offensive between the Marne and the Vesle. Some English divisions did the Vesle. Some English divisions did take part in the battle in the region of Rheims. It would appear as if the inter-allied high command was awaiting the results of the battle of the Marne before launching an offensive in Picardy. An offensive by Prince Ruprecht's army to relieve the pressure on the German Crown Prince was to be feared, although Ruprecht had sent some divisions to the latter's aid. It turned out to the contrary, for in the last few days the Bavarian Crown last few days the Bavarian Crown Prince orders his lines in the Ancre Valley to withdraw.

Retreat Is Hinted At. As the Germans under cover of dithyramble victories had hinted at the eventuality of a new Hindenburg strategic retreat, there was cause for the ailled armies to continue the pres-sure on Fere-En-Tardenois on the Vesle at the same time, in order to get elbow room on the Somme region.

This no doubt explains the decision taken to attack between Albert and Montdidler. The first communiques are interesting, particularly so because they show that the Germans appear to have been taken by sprprise. Surprise, there-fore, is still the order of the day. In the present battle the attacks seem to have been launched as was Mangin's, on July 18, without any bombardment—not even a short one—but simply preceded by creeping barrages supported by masses of tanks. Here we see quite a new form of operation in open warfare. It must be admitted that it was Ludendorff who caused surprise to enter as an essential factor in hat. to enter as an essential factor in battle and the rupture of armed fronts.

During three years the dogma of the insolubility of trenches and barbed-wire entanglements had been included in the minds of headquarters staff. However, on the Somme in 1916 and 1917, the German commander—who was still obliged to divide his forces between the western and the eastern fronts—realized that in the end its de-fense would be shattered by the terrible hammering of the Anglo-French gunners. It escaped from this danger by resigning itself to the great with-drawal of March, 1917, behind the Hin-pare new methods of attack by gathering anew, as in 1914, almost all its forces on the western front Perhaps it would have felt its way, hesitating between the old and new forms under consideration, if the two surprises at Caporetto (Italian front) and Cambrai (French front) had not suddenly illumed it regarding the possibilities of breaking through the strongest lines of trenches by action as violent as rapid, based on the secret massing of troops in force for a shock against a well determined weak point.

Front South of Somme Becomes Stabilized as Huns Fight to Save Stores.

ALLIED LOSS IS SLIGHT

Entente Forces Overrun Teuton Positions at Outset; Large Fires and Long Transport Columns Tell of Big Retreat.

LONDON, Aug. 11 .- Today the situation south of the Somme was becoming more stabilized. There has been no important allied advance in the last 12 hours, and at some places a slight retirement has been necessary.

The fighting has been desperate and of a ding-dong character, and for the

At noon today the allied line was as follows, starting from the north: West of Meaulte, which is still in German hands; thence to Etinchem, Framerville and Lihons, which are still German; Hallu station (the Germans hold Hallu), Parvillers, L'Echelle and Armancourt, both of the latter still be-ing German, and thence through Tillooy Park and through the station of loy Park and through the station of Roye-Sur-Matz to Marcuil-Lamotte to Samson and Machemont, from which it joins the line on the Oise.

In the area before Vauvillers the enemy has been supported by heavy artillery, but further southward the French first and third armies have advanced slightly, and in this neighborhood the Germans do not appear to be too well supplied with artillery.

Large Fires Noted.

Large fires and long transport columns in the enemy's large back areas tend to strengthen the belief that his heavy counter attacks against the British are intended to afford him time to

"After having to lay off from my work for a month on account of rheu-matism and other troubles, Taniac has fixed me up so that I am able to get back on my job again feeling like a new man," said O. Welberg, who resides at the l'arden Hotel, Third and Couch streets, and is employed by the Silver Falls Logging Company of Silverton, the other day.

"For over a year," he continued, "my stomach was in such an awful fix that nothing I would eat did me any good.

I had no appetite and what little I forced down lay in my stomach like a lump of lead, and the gas that formed from my undigested food would bleat me up as tight as a drum. I suffered terribly from an awful pain in the pit of my stomach that would go clear through me to my back and kept me in misery for hours. My kidneys worried me all the time, and I was so restless at night that I could hardly sleep and would get up in the mornings feeling just as tired and fagged out as I did on going to bed. I had frequent ator two, when my back would ache like or two, when my back would are like it would break in two, then the trouble would go down into my legs and feet and into my right shoulder and almost put me out of business. I had terrible headaches, too, and I was getting so weak and rundown that I be-came alarmed, for I had got to the point where I couldn't work.

"Nothing in the way of medicines did me any good, but when I read so much about Tuniac helping others I decided to try a bottle. Well, sfr, I began to to try a bottle. Well, sir, I began to improve right away, my appetite picked up so I could enjoy my meals batter than I had in some time. I can now eat most anything I want and nothing hurts me at all. I am entirely relieved of those rheumatic pains, my kidneys never worry me any and that misery in my back is all gone. I haven't had a headache since starting on Taniac. I sleep like a log at night and get up in the mornings feeling rested and refreshed. I am growing stronger every day and it sure does make me feel good to be working once more. I am so to be working once more. I am grateful for the good Tanlac has do me that I am telling all my friends what a wonderful medicine it is."

Tanlac is sold in Portland by the Owl Drug Co.—Adv.
