SENATE INQUIRY HELD UP

Smoot Resolution Laid Aside—Jones of New Mexico Defends Raids That Have Been Conducted in East.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Cries of "slackers" and "deserters" greeted 256 alleged evaders of the draft when they were escorted into court from Army trucks and furniture vans which drew up in front of the Federal building in Brooklyn today.

Within a short time 25 of the men had been inducted into the Army at the request of draft boards, and the others were arraigned before United States Judge Chaffield.

Judge Chaffield examined the other 231 suspects personally and announced that there seemed no doubt they were slackers.

Their local draft boards for induction into the Army, and that from other cities were sent to jail—until their boards could be notified.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Controversy over draft slacker roundups broke out again today in the Senate. Senator Smoot, of Utah, Republican, called up his resolution proposing an investigation by the Senate military committee of the arrests in New York and elsewhere.

Defense of Raids Made. Senator Jones, of New Mexico, said the raids have accomplished much in identification of slackers. In Chicago, he said, 600 were found, and in New York 1500, besides several hundred deserters from the Army.

For us to investigate efforts with as few results as that is unworthy of the Senate," said Senator Jones. "In view of criticizing, we should commend these actions."

In the midst of the discussion, the Smoot resolution was automatically laid aside under the rules to give place to the pending emergency bill with its prohibition rider. The resolution goes to the calendar, where it must remain until taken up by majority vote.

Senator Chamberlain, chairman of the military committee, resented the suggestion that the resolution be referred to any other than the military committee, in view of the participation of soldiers and sailors in the New York raid. He said he was glad to see that the President had ordered an investigation and referred to the raid as the work of "some meddlesome agent of the Department of Justice of some other meddlesome person."

Use of Soldiers, Sailors Restated.

What he particularly resented, Senator Chamberlain said, was the use of soldiers and sailors and the arrest of persons not within the draft age.

Senator Jones, of New Mexico, said soldiers and sailors are used in the rest deserts, but Senator Chamberlain replied that they have no authority to round up civilians.

The round-up of 10,000 New Yorkers, Senator Chamberlain continued, with the result of apprehending only a few hundred slackers, was a test of New York's patriotism.

"There was no necessity for this proceeding," he continued. "The draft law has practically put the slacker out of business. I predict that if a round-up was held in every city of the country they couldn't get 10,000 men for the Army. I resent any such Prussianism as is being attempted and I venture that the President also will resent it when he gets full information."

Spy Bill Recalled.

Referring to the spy bill he proposed last Spring, extending power of military courts-martial, Senator Chamberlain suggested that at that time the Department of Justice was inactive in rounding up pro-Germans, but now has suddenly active in rounding up slackers.

Senator Polindexter, of Washington, who yesterday praised the Government's activity against slackers, said citizens should regard it as a pleasure to suffer some inconvenience in the searching out of slackers.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 6.—Roundups of draft evaders in Northern California and Nevada were suspended late today pending instructions from Washington.

This action followed President Wilson's order that recent raids for draft evaders in New York be inquired into as a result of legislation in Congress against such raids.
