The conference closed tonight, one day earlier than usual, to permit some members to get home in time to vote.

An outstanding feature this year has been the splendid harmony which has prevailed, not only on the floor of the to hold back the invasion of Germany conference, but also in the cabinet, Bishop Stuntz said.

Following is the list of appointments in the five districts:

of history, and it is a necessity. No matter what the chances and the hardships of battle, the war must continue without truce and without respite. As Marshal Foch has said, it must be carried beyond the frontier; it must not stop or spare German soil.

Germany Must Yield All.

We must not let ourselves be impressed by perfidious attempts of the German armics must retreat along the roads by which in 1814 they started out to devour France and to subjugate the nations. They must be forced back across the Rhine by the allied guns. The Rhine must once again become the barrier of safety between the west and German lust.

This is necessary because it will have the sanction of justice. Germany, in her turn, must know what invasion and occupation mean. I know she will not suffer as we have; that the allies will respect the population and the land, but there will be battles in Germany and their physical entailments. At last voices calling for just chastisement are rising in Americas as well as in England. We have too many soclety of a Nation in dealing with the settlement of a situation in which wolves could enter camouflaged as lambs. We want, as President Wilson has ably said, a reign of justice, in which all men may carry their heads high and think broadly. But this reign can come only when justice shall have chastised crime.

Americans Yet in Reserve

American reserves have taken part in the battle in the north, and yet the great bulk of the American Army has not yet participated. Yes, the victory is incontestable, but it must be complete. Let nothing hold the allies from going to the Rhine. Germany is preparing new diplomatic machinations. Don't let us see victory spoiled by the in-ternationalists and the agents of Ger-Have the allies won a battle in Rus sia? The disappearance of Lenine is quite equal to a victory. He must perish sooner or later through some patriot's blows or in just retribution for the treason into which he led the Boi-sheviki. When will Trotzky's turn

One can but disapprove of political assassination, but the attempt on Lenine's life is an event of war. It is to be hoped that the wretched government he incarnated will succumb with him, as well as the astonishing paradox of official Russia at war with her former allies.

Russian Eyes May Open. The Red Guard, a majority of whom are re-armed German and Austrian prisoners of war, are fighting against allied troops, come to liberate Russia. There have been violent encounters in Siberia, no longer with the Czecho-Slovaks alone, but against the Japa-

Slovaks alone, but against the Japanese and allied attachments. In the Archangel region the German-Pinns are opposing the allied advance.
Will those who had strange illusions about the Russian revolution at last open their eyes? It might have been easy a year ago to avert the events which have since occurred if the allies had intervened immediately, with political, military, financial help. Now we must await events. must await events.

MAINE ELECTION ON TODAY

Campaign Just Ended the Quietest Known in Years.

PORTLAND, Maine, Sept. 8 .- After the quietest political campaign in recent years in the state, Maine will hold its biennial election tomorrow for the checice of Governor, a United States Senator, four Congressmen and the State Legislature. The President's an-nouncement of the adjournment of politics for the period of the war has been taken almost literally by both parties.

For the first time in 60 years the subject of prohibition has hardly been mentioned as an issue.

Bombarded towns on the Rhine are crying out in distress.

We know it is said in America that, led by Americans, the allies are marching toward the Rhine. It is the fatality of history, and it is a necessity. No matter what the chances and the hardships of battle, the war must continue without truce and without respite. As Marshal Roch has said in America that, led by the company, and a packed theater at both matinee and night performances, attested the interest of Portland theaters.

Theater is Smart Dress. harm. Flowers, in huge bouquets and in big tress everlasting credit that she suc-cessfully and artistically presents both sides of Annie's personality, one by suggestion and the other in vivid dramatic intensity.

Albert McGovern Is Favorite. Albert McGovern is a big favorite here and he received an ovation on his return. He plays a lovable role—that of a crook who helps Annie while she is a crook, and nobly gives her up when her reason returns. Mr. McGovern plays with his accus tomed sincerity, and all the gay little moods and the dramatic punch we have learned to admire in his work. Members of Cast Clever.

Lee Millar is a splendid acquisition to the company. As a detective he is uncannily natural. Verna Felton is a delightful reformed adventuress, smartly gowned and clever in patomime. Lora Rogers, dependable actres and with a loyal following, received a tremendous ovation, which must have warmed the cockles of her heart. She has one of her characteristic old nosey landlady roles. Lovely Geraldine Dare was a dainty and demure French maid was a dainty and demure French maid who turned out to be de-teck-a-tive. Ben Erway was a dashing second hero, George Webster was a gay dog of 70 who had young ideas, Walter Gibert provoked a riot as an overgrown hired man, Walter Siegfried portered in ebon and William Lee, Frances Randall and Guy Reynolds were the Pullman tour-ists who heard the story. ists who heard the story.

LACK OF HELP AND PROFITLESS PRICE CAUSE, SAYS LEEHEY.

Resolutions of Gold Conference Are Sent to National Committee for Action.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 8 .- (Special.) That gold mines over the country are closing down because of inability to se cure help and a price commensurate with the cost of production is the opinion of Maurice D. Leehey, of Seattle in an interview given out here today. Mr. Leehey, who has been a mining operator in Alaska for years, was the Alaska representative here for the gold conference called by the Northwest Mining Association and chairman of the committee on resolutions. Plans and resolutions were forwarded to Hennen Jennings, chairman of the National Committee, to study gold situations in

Nip Van Winkle not perfect

Neither was the Old fashioned Razor - But

IP lacked some of those qualities which society demands-yet, year after year, people kept the great and good Joseph Jefferson playing the part of that lovable vagabond.

Like Rip, the old-fashioned razor was not perfect eitherbut it was a real razor-an efficient shaving tool developed by centuries of use and workmanship, and entitled to be kept for its good points. In fact, it was old-fashioned only in that it lacked two modern things-the two-edged, detachable blade and-safety.

To add these, but to retain the good of the old, is real progress in razor development.

The razor that has both what the old style had and what it lacked is the

A Real Razor — made Safe

An evolution, not a revolution in razors—all the good points of the new idea, all the good points of the old. The shape, balance and blade-angle-on-the-face of the old style razor have always been recognized as unbeatable. To these, the Durham-Duplex adds a guarded, detachable, double-edged blade-the longest, strongest, keenest blade on earth. Furthermore, it is the best-tempered blade you can buy. There is also a stropping attachment that gives you the luxury of a fresh edge at a moment's notice. These advantages added to the conceded virtues of the old-style razor have led Seven Million Shavers to change from other razors to the Durham-Duplex. Why don't you, too, change-today?
