

ALLIES TAKE 10,000 BULGARIANS IN DAY

Cavalry Pursues Beaten Foe Over Cerna River, Gaining 17 Miles.

ENEMY COUNTER-ATTACKS

Heavy Assaults Made in Effort to Check Entente Forces and Some Ground Is Retaken—Two Bulgarian Flying Machines Felled.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—Ten thousand Bulgarian prisoners were sent to the rear September 18 alone, says Marcel Rutin in the Echo de Paris. The pursuit of the retreating enemy continues with great success, the article adds.

LONDON, Sept. 20.—In Macedonia, the Serbians have extended their front westward to the Tzerna river and it now is 25 miles wide. The total depth of the advance is 15 to 17 miles. Five thousand prisoners and 50 guns have been captured.

Cavalry Chases Enemy.

All the Bulgarian trench systems on the Serbian front have been penetrated. Allied cavalry has taken up the pursuit and one cavalry unit has crossed the Cerna, 20 miles north of the Sokol position. Another force of horsemen has moved the same distance northeast. British and Greek troops in an attack on a 10-mile front south of Lake Doiran have made some progress. No details yet have been received.

SALONKI, Sept. 19.—The British and Greeks in their attack against the Bulgarians on both sides of Lake Doiran are meeting with stiff opposition, but have carried the enemy's outpost lines south of Doiran, a gain of 2000 yards has been made. More than 700 prisoners have been captured, says the British official statement issued today.

Outpost Lines Carried.

The statement says: "On the morning of September 18, British and Greek troops carried the enemy's positions west and east of Lake Doiran. West of the lake and south of the town of Doiran, the trench system was captured and our lines were advanced about 2000 yards. Heavy Bulgarian counter attacks regained part of the ground captured on our left but on the center and right our positions were maintained. "East of the lake after a night advance, we carried the enemy's outpost line. Up to the present more than 700 prisoners have been counted. "The Greek troops fought with great gallantry. "Four of our scouts engaged 14 enemy machines and crashed two of them to the ground. One of the machines is missing."

Dr. George Fisher, of the University of Oregon, will deliver the lectures of the course. Applications should be made to the latter at the headquarters in the Corbett building.

NEW SYSTEM PROPOSED

Fresh Marking Plan in Schools Is Presented to Principals.

D. A. Grout, superintendent of schools, has presented a new system of marking to principals of the city schools, which planned to credit children for their school work on a larger scale than the former system allowed. "The office found from a series of tests given last year," said Mr. Grout, "that no nearly uniform standard of marking prevailed. There should be a broader basis, including more factors than memory. "Many factors might be considered, but there are only three that I suggest: quickness, accuracy and retentiveness. "Type" students should be selected from each class and other students should be properly classed with each 'type' student."

DRAFT LOTTERY IS NEAR

Drawing of Numbers Probably Will Take Place Next Week.

Unmistakable signs that the draft lottery will be conducted in Washington next week have been detected in messages received at state selective service headquarters. Instructions were received yesterday that all registration cards received on or before today be assigned serial numbers and that no cards coming to the exemption boards after today be given such numbers. "The order is given as an 'imperative' one. Reports that it has been obeyed are called for and it is expected that within these reports have reached Washington, the day for the drawing of master numbers will be announced.

PIRATES GRASP EAGERLY AT UNDESERVED MERCY

Crew of Crippled Submarine Glad Enough to Surrender to Americans. "Kamerad" Is Cry of Huns in Distress.

BY RALPH D. PAINE. (Copyright 1918, by Ralph D. Paine.)

THE SUBMARINE THAT SURRENDERED.

IT WAS wholly superfluous for the U-boat commander to pass the word to his men that they had better surrender. They waited not for any such formality, but concluded, unannounced, to do this very thing. There was no desire to be dead heroes. They wished very much to convey their intention to the destroyers before shells, torpedoes and depth-charges should spoil their amiable programme. They came swarming out of an open hatch as if violently propelled from below. Like so many jacks-in-the-box, never was a large, populous German submarine emptied so rapidly. And as they madly erupted on deck, every Hun flung his hands above his head with the most passionate sincerity and held them upraised while he bawled: "Kamerad! Kamerad! Kamerad!"

"Kamerad, hell! What kind of a word is that to use in war? Somebody ought to tip these poor boobies off. We are sure-enough enemies." "They behave as if they expected us to shoot 'em in cold blood," growled another petty officer. "What do they think we are? Germans?"

Crowded along the wave-washed deck of their pirate craft, the Huns were outlined against the sky in these grotesque postures of humble supplication. 20-odd men who had forfeited all right to be regarded as prisoners of war because the work they did violated every decent instinct of humanity and every hard-won precept of civilization. This particular group of German criminals may not have slaughtered women and children at sea or blown up helpless merchant seamen in open boats or wantonly drowned them, but they would have done so had the opportunity offered and had their commander so decreed it. Prisoners of war they were, however, to be treated far better than deserved. The sea had spared them up alive and it was their good fortune to be rescued.

Teuton Settles Diver.

Resolved that the enemy should not tow his U-boat into port as a prize to gloat over, the German commander hastened to scuttle her and his crew might sink or swim. It was impossible for the destroyers to thwart his intention, for he had remained in the conning-tower while his men fled on deck. The clamor of "Kamerad" still rent the air when he stole below, unobserved and opened the sea-valves which let the water gush in.

This was a sad disappointment to the American bluejackets who were fondly hoping to make it a perfect day. In fact, "Chips" had already begun to break out in a five-inch hawser to guard the stern of the Fanning. "The swimmer had sunk her, damn their eyes!" he mourned, in great disgust. "Stow that hawser away and step lively. We won't need it. And I had bright visions of jerking that sub clear across the pond and mooring it alongside the Battery. Oh, boy!"

Sub Settles Under Crew.

The submarine filled and settled beneath its crew before the destroyers could lower away boats. As it foundered, the men were washed from the deck and two or three were caught under the aerial wire and carried down until they managed to struggle free.

Only one man of the lot was missing. The scene was in many ways, such like that of the tragedy of the British steamer Belgian Prince, torpedoed and sunk, whose crew was transferred to the deck of a German submarine which closed her hatch and ran several miles before submerging and deliberately drowning all but three of the prisoners. There was a similarity in the fate of these two scenes, as I say, a submarine dropping from under a crew massed on deck and men fighting for life in the sea, but the difference was immensely vital and significant. These German captives experienced a kinder fate. There was no idea of employing their own infamous doctrines against them, but an instant readiness to save them from drowning and to give them decent care.

Fanning Rescues Castaways.

The Fanning now swung in closer to rescue the castaways, while the Nicholson, which had stood by in case of need, hastened to rejoin the convoy, having been in at the death. Thirty-odd German sailors and very odd they looked, all bobbing about in a haphazard manner, were hoisted to the bottom and the whole affair, from start to finish, had lasted less than ten minutes. In the war-zone there was a similarity in the fate of these two scenes, as I say, it is tough and go, hit or miss and if you miss the other fellow he is very likely to get you. (To be continued.)

German Intimidation Holds Up Food Deal With U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The acquiescence of The Netherlands government in German threats which kept 400,000 tons of Dutch shipping idle in port, while the people of Holland suffered for want of the food these vessels might bring, is commented on in a statement issued today by the State Department. The statement is issued to clear up misapprehension as to the attitude of the United States toward exports to Holland.

The department expresses the hope that The Netherlands government will permit the export of 100,000 tons of its ships, which constitute the only considerable unit of idle neutral tonnage and in effect gives notice that appeals for American foodstuffs will be met on the same basis as the example of the Scandinavian countries, Switzerland and Spain and enters into equitable agreements with the United States and the allies.

Reviewing the efforts of the American Government to lend its assistance the statement discloses that after refusing to approve a tentative understanding for the export of food, petroleum, metals and other supplies reached in London last winter, The Netherlands, bowing to the German threat to torpedo even ships sailing between neutral countries, failed to avail itself of the offer of the United States and the allies to permit the export of 100,000 tons of bread cereals as an emergency measure. In spite of the free licensing of bunker coal for ships other than those originally stipulated and which carried 50,000 tons of cereals to Holland, an additional 50,000 tons, largely in Argentina, has been left untouched for more than six months.

While Holland is apparently at Germany's mercy in sending her idle ships to sea, The Netherlands government could, it is pointed out, by refusing to VLADIVOSTOK, Sept. 11.—(By the Associated Press.)—The Czecho-Slovak battalions in European Russia, according to the chief of staff of General Gaida, Commander-in-Chief of the Czecho-Slovak forces in Siberia, extend from Yekaterinburg, on the Asiatic side of the Ural Mountains, to Krasnoyarsk, 100 miles west of Yekaterinburg, to Kaban, 430 miles east of Moscow, to Smara, 200 miles south of Kaban, and then to Nikolayev, on the Black Sea, 100 miles east of Odessa.

Saratov, on the right bank of the Volga, is in the hands of the Russian Red Guards, but Tsaritsyn, on the Volga, 200 miles south of Saratov, has been occupied by the Cossacks of General Smara, an anti-Bolshevik leader. West of Yekaterinburg the Czecho-Slovaks are reaching out in the direction of Perm.

Horvath's Men Re-Armed.

On the recommendation of the entente allied Consuls at Vladivostok, the weapons of General Horvath's troops, who recently were disarmed, have been restored. The guns were given back to the troops on the understanding that the men would join General Semenov's Cossack forces.

CATTLE BRANDS REQUIRED

New Livestock Law Now Being Enforced in California.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 20.—(Special.)—Brand inspectors will soon be established at cattle shipping points in this state, according to James B. Newsom, of the State Cattle Protective Board. No cattle will be accepted for transportation unless a certificate of inspection has been issued by inspectors from the Cattle Inspection Board. This action, according to Newsom, will make it difficult for those who have not yet recorded their brands with the state board to ship stock and has been found the most effective way of preventing cattle stealing.

PETTY PROFITEERS SCORED

Special Committee Delegated to Protect Soldier Boys.

Protection is to be given the soldier boys of this vicinity from being preyed upon by petty profiteers through the work of a special committee delegated to this undertaking by the war camp community service organization of the city. Chairman Emory Olmstead, at the last meeting of his workers, named a committee to investigate and take necessary action, with City Commissioner Bigelow at its head. Food and clothing costs and prices on such things as tobacco, shins, barber services and laundry, have been lifted at the expense of the soldiers on occasion, if reports are credible. The new committee proposes to apply adequate remedies.
