Caring For The Soldier's Teeth
IMAGINE a soldier aiming a great gun behind the trenches—piloting a swift aeroplane above the clouds—with a badly aching and decaying tooth. Uncle Sam sees to it that his men take care of their teeth. He has a staff of dentists in each camp who care for the teeth of the defenders of our country. It's the man behind the gun who must be kept in trim, otherwise the gun becomes useless.
In a short time, in the Boer war, England had to send home more than five thousand soldiers, useless, because of bad teeth. Bad and neglected teeth vitally affect the nation's health. Yet many go through life under the foolish belief that artificial teeth are "something they can always have." Dentists have proved that artificial teeth, at best, do only one-tenth of the work required of natural teeth.
Many teeth, sound in outward appearance, are being undermined by decay. Often the pulp (nerve) becomes infected and dies; pus forms, which, taken into the blood, menaces your entire health.
