Dreadful as were these massacres of unarmed soldiers, they were mercy and justice themselves when compared with the treatment which was now visited unarmed soldiers. They were mercy and justice themselves when compared with the treatment which was now visited unto this desolate and inhospitable region. Had they undertied in would have represented the height of cruelty and injustice. As a matter of fact, the Turks never had the slightest lidea of re-establishing the Armenians in this new country. They knew that the great majority would never reach their destination and that upon those Armenians who were suspected of concealing arms. Naturally the Christians became alarmed when placards were posted in the villages and cities ordering everybody to bring all their arms to headquarters.

Although this order applied to all citizens, the Armenians well understood what the result would be, should they be left defenseless while their to a whole race, they understood this Moslem neighbors were permitted to retain their arms. In many cases, however, the persecuted people patiently obeyed the command and then the Turkish officials almost to the content to conceal the fact.

> Most of us believe that torture has long ceased to be an administrative and judicial measure, yet I do not believe that the darkest ages ever presented scenes more horrible than those which now took place all over Turkey.

Nothing Sacred to Turks.

Nothing was sacred to the Turkish gendarmes; under the plea of searching for hidden arms, they ransacked churches, treated the altars and sacred utensils with the utmost indignity, and even held mock ceremonies in imita-tion of the Christian sacraments. They would beat the priests into insensi bility, under the pretense that they were the centers of sedition. When they could discover no munitions in the value. Sewing machines would bring only $1 or $2, a cow would go for $1. a houseful of furniture would be sold for a pittance.

In many cases Armenians were prohibited from selling or Turks from buying even at these ridiculous prices; under pretense that the government intended to sell their effects to pay the creditors whom they would inevitably. churches, they would sometimes arm the bishops and priests with guns, pintols and swords, then try them be-fore court-martials for possessing weapons against the law and march them 'in this condition through the streets, merely to arouse the fanatical wrath of the mobs.

The gendarmes treated women with the same cruelt, as their husbands. There are cases on record in which women accused of concealing weapons were stripped naked and whipped with branches freshly cut from trees. Violations so commonly accompanied these searches that Armenian women and girls, on the approach of the gendarmes, would flee to the woods, the hills, or to mountain caves.

As a preliminary to the searches everywhere, the strong men of the villages and towns were arrested and taken to prison. Their formentors taken to prison. Their formentors here would exercise the most diabolical ingenuity in their attempt to make their victims declare themselves to be "revolutionists" and to tell the hiding laces of their arms. A common pracplaces of their arms. A common practice was to place the prisoner in a room, with two Turks stationed at each end and each side. The examination would then begin with the bastinado. This is a form of torture not uncommon in the Orient; it consists of beating the soles of the feet with a thin rod. At first the pain is not marked; the process room slowly on it regular practice to separate the volume. but as the process goes slowly on, it develops into the most terrible agony, the feet swell and burst and not infrequently, after being submitted to this treatment, they have to be ampu-

The gendarmes would bastinado their Armenian victim until he fainted; they would then revive him by sprinkling water on his face and begin again. If this did not succeed in bringing their victim to terms, they had numerous other methods of persuasion. They would pull out his eyebrows and beard almost hair by hair; they would extract his fingernails and toenails; they would apply red-hot irons to his breast, tear off his flesh with red-hot pincers almost hair by hair; they would ex-tract his fingernalls and toenails; they would apply red-hot irons to his breast, tear off his flesh with red-hot pincers tear off his fiesh with rea-not pincers and then pour bolling butter into the wounds.
