EXPORT FLOUR SALES NOT LARGE ENOUGH

Northwestern Mills Can't Turn Out Sufficient Feed.

OTHER MARKETS CLOSED

Government Purchases Should Be Heavier Than Last Year's to Keep Milling Industry Occupied.

shipments have been awarded to mills in the Northwest by the Food Administration. The quantity bought is practically the same as for October shipment, but represents only about a third of the total amount offered to the Government by the mills. The orders will enable the export mills. The orders Clipped oats run to about 60 per cent of their capacity. Mixed corn a volume of business unsatisfactory to the millers, the wheat farmers and the users of mill feed.

So far this season Government flour purchases in the Northwest have averaged only about 550,000 barrels a month as against 550,000 barrels a month bought by the milling division of the Administration last year. A year ago the milis not only had large Government orders, but also enjoyed good markets in South and Central America and made large shipments to the Southeastern states. This season they are shut out of those markets and the only outlet for their flour is the reduced Government business and the small trade available in local territory. They are hoping the Government will be more liberal in its orders during the remainder of the Winter, but there is no results of the control of the c during the remainder of the Winter, but there is no assurance that such will be the case. If the milling business continues as it has in the past feur months the supply of milifeed will remain inadequate.

The following bulletins to millers have been issued by M. H. Houser, sonal agent of the cereal division of the Food Administration:

"Inquiries are being received from millers as to whether they may use the actual cost of cotton sucks rather than the current cost. Attention of millers is called to rule M. S. 12, which includes the following:

Ic to $1.25 up.
Uncertainty in regard to armistice conditions for Germany led to numerous bulges and breaks in the value of corn, but the price changes were kept within a narrower reage than of fate and the upward tendency of the market became more pronounced.
Opinion appeared to prevail that bearish devalopments concerning the war had been discounted sufficiently for the time bbling, and this view was borne out by the fact that bulletine, which told of the complete withdrawal of Turkey as a tembatant, had only a temporary weakening influence.
Outs showed independent strength based
