 the "Trio in G opus 33" (Gouvy) — re-cuted fine, pollshaf renditions.

 Director Davidson, in charge of the outer-state campaign, issued the fol-lowing summary of counties, showing their original quotas, present subscrip-tions and percentages in the war work drive:
 These chamber concerts of the Pipes-Konrad-Huuchison trio are of such a high class character that they are eagerly anticipated by educated music people, and they are just as much en-joyed. To duplicate them in artistry one would have to travel far, and it is established that they are not equaled in excellence of performance anywhere else in the Pacific Northwest. The three instrumentalists in this trio have rehearsed together several seasons, and three instrumentalists in this trio have rehearsed together several seasons, and in consequence their playing of the Brahms and Gouvy trios show better, more easy grasp of ensemble effects, and unanimity of musical agreement working toward a composite whole. The Brahms trio is stamped with that composer's graceful, melodious style of composition, the second move-ment being the gem of the collection. It is a succession of dafuty musical It is a succession of dainty musical surprises. In the Gouvy trio the theme is one of pleasant, sunshiny appeal, and is one of pressant, sumsminy appeal, and reflects the dainty French school of music concept. Gouvy is not so well known in this city as a composer as his merit deserves, and concert audi-ences can stand more of him with great pleasure and profit. The rendition of all the movements of the trices mean concluder and of the trios were cordially received and the audience was loud in its praises. The next chamber concert of the series will take place some evening next month, the exact date not having yet been determined.

SOME WELCOME NEWS.

Many Men Will Rejoice Greatly. Doing the unusual thing is one of the characteristics of the Brownsville Woolen Mill Store of Third and Morrin. Nowadays practically all store are busy marking up goods especially if they are made of wool. At the Brownsville, however, the "mark-down" Brownsville, however, the "mark-down" man is at work, marking down a large number of short lengths of cloth—one or two suits in each—from $50 to $40. Nothing wrong with the cloths at all, excepting that they are remnants, in a way of speaking, of our best sellers. Yes, indeed, there are blue serges and bankers' grays included in the line. Every one in the lot is an old woolen— made when pure woci was plentiful and
