

GERMAN EX-CROWN PRINCE MAY RETURN

Exile Hopes to Go Back to Fatherland.

CHANGE COMING, IS HINTED

Former Kaiser's Stay in Holland Is Uncertain—All Depends on ex-Empress's Conduct.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—The former German Crown Prince had not been seen or heard from his father for weeks up to the time he was taken to the island of Wieringen, according to an interview he gave to newspaper men while on his way through Holland to his present home in the Zuyder Zee island. He said that his wife would remain in Germany.

"A change is coming in Germany, but one has to be careful about prophesying," he replied to questions as to what he thought of the revolution in Germany.

Crown Prince Would Return. "Will you return to Germany?" was the next question. "Yes, when the situation changes, but when?"

Here Frederick William broke off to testify to the excellence of the food in Holland. "Many people here do not think so, someone interjected.

"Oh, I think it is fine," said the former Crown Prince. "Anyhow, I am a small eater and do not wish to get fat."

Frederick William was quite accessible to the newspaper men and said he did not know how long he would remain on the island of Wieringen. When he reached the main depot at Amsterdam he partook of coffee and biscuits.

Cold Reception Accorded. The party was in charge of a Dutch lieutenant and included, besides the former Crown Prince, Majors von Muller and von Muldiner and Captain von Helldorf. He was accompanied by his mother, the former Crown Princess, who was dressed in a simple, comfortable, brown sporting suit with a gray cap and brown leggings and occupied a first-class compartment in the railway train.

The tug bearing the former Crown Prince to the island of Wieringen arrived at Amsterdam, where he received an icy reception at the hands of the stolid islanders.

Burgomaster Deetboom, who is also chief of the local police and will exercise direct supervision over the person of the former Crown Prince, conducted him to an ancient cabin, in which he was driven to the Oesterland parsonage, his place of refuge.

Frederick William is not supposed to leave the island without special permission by the Home Office at the Hague. He gets food cards the same as an ordinary citizen.

Ex-Kaiser's Stay Uncertain. William Hohenzollern will have to leave Holland if his presence there becomes perilous to that country. Premier Ruijs de Beerenbrouck is quoted by the Amsterdam correspondent of the Daily Express as saying in the second chamber of the Dutch Parliament.

"The Kaiser is in Holland as a private person," said the Premier. "The hospitality of the country is extended him in accordance with a century-old tradition. But it goes without saying that the moment his solium becomes a danger to the state he will have to leave."

William Has No Message. William Hohenzollern's entourage has been asked by the Associated Press if the former Emperor has any message to send to the American people. The following reply was received: "His Majesty's suite regrets that it is unable to deliver this demand to His Majesty."

Herr Hohenzollern is in constant communication with the German Legation at The Hague.

Kaiser's Extradition Puzzles. LONDON, Nov. 27.—The foreign office confirms the report that British law officers of the crown, in co-operation with the French authorities, are considering the question of extradition of the former German emperor. The foreign office says that the law officers have not yet made a report and consequently no action has yet been taken.

ANARCHY IS UPON RISE (Continued From First Page.) These men carried their rifles, but on being loaded into the cattle trains waiting for them at either Kienzenfurt or Laibach they had to leave their arms behind and, ipso facto, threw off all restraint.

Men Take to Plundering. On the way from Vienna to Laibach we saw perhaps 20 such trains, each one looked like a crawling snake covered with ants, the soldiers lying on the tops of cars, crowding the platforms, clinging to the windows and even riding on the axles, all beset with one idea—to get home. They have to pass through one, two, three or four belts of hostile territory, according to whether they are Germans, Czechs, Poles or Ruthenians. Long before they reach home they take to plundering.

Washing Won't Rid Head of Dandruff. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arsenic and sit at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

Do this tonight and by morning most, if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single grain and trace of it, no matter how much dandruff you may have.

You will find too, that all itching and digging out of the scalp will stop at once, and your hair will be fluffy, lustreous, glossy, silky and soft, and look and feel a hundred times better.

You can get liquid arsenic at any drug store. It is inexpensive and never fails to do the work.—Adv.

BELGIAN PRIESTS KILLED

HUN CRUELITIES ARE TOLD BY CARDINAL MERCIER.

German Governor-General Laughs at America's Threat to Enter War on Side of Allies.

MALINES, Belgium, Nov. 27.—(Havas.)—Forty-nine Belgian priests were tortured and put to death by the Germans during the occupation. Cardinal Mercier, the primate of Belgium, declared in an interview today.

The cardinal related that in the early stages of unopposed German submarine warfare, the Marquis of Villalba, the Spanish Minister to Belgium, called on the German Governor-General in Brussels and asked him to intervene with Berlin to limit the submarine warfare to the belligerents. The Spanish Minister gave the Governor-General this advice:

"The Americans are exasperated and are on the verge of joining the allies, which will mean the defeat of the central empire."

"We have no fear of the Americans, who will never be able to help the allies," the Governor-General replied haughtily, the cardinal said. "An army cannot be raised in a few months, and it will be necessary for them, and France and her modest ally, the British, will be crushed long before that."

An International Service Built on Tiny Profits Per Pound

Some industries have been able to get in step with war demands more quickly than others.

In many cases mighty plants have sprung up—but at a prodigious cost.

The packing industry was able to adapt itself to unheard of demands more quickly, perhaps, than any other industry. And this was because the vast equipment of packing plants, refrigerator cars, branch houses, etc., had been gradually developed to its present state of efficiency, so that in the crucial hour it became a mighty international system for war service.

And how had this development taken place? Not by making vast inroads into the capital wealth of the country, but largely by using, from year to year, a portion of the profits, to provide for expansion.

Swift & Company's profits have always been so tiny, compared with sales, that they have had practically no effect on the price of meat, (amounting to only a fraction of a cent per pound)

And yet the owners of the business have been content with reasonable returns on their capital, and have been able, year after year, to put part of the profits back into the business to provide for its expansion.

These fractions of tiny profits have been repaid to the public many fold in the form of better service, and better and cheaper meat, and made it possible for Swift & Company to meet, undaunted, the sudden cry for meat for overseas.

Could any other method of financing a vital industry involve less hardship to the people of the country? Could there be a better instance of true "profit-sharing" than this return in added usefulness and in national preparedness?
