"Pending the determination of a complete programme, Mr. Hoover before leaving arranged for the purchase and dispatch of 270,000 tons of food to meet the most urgent calls. The first of the ships carrying this food has been reported as having passed Gibraltar, carrying supplies to Southern Europe.

"The pressing demand for food is obvious, but the formation of a definite programme must await further conferences abroad. Our point of view has now changed from a war necessity to a humanitarian appeal. The need for yoluntary co-operation, as distintum to Salem to make their home.

A DIVERSITY of affairs made last evening more than usually interesting. The principal affairs were so arranged that society could attend both. are rumors of just such a campaign now being piayed, and, as the Burdickites admit, with some hope of success.

Mr. Jones says he cannot understand why Mr. Burdick wants to continue fighting. Mr. Jones would like to have Mr. Burdick admit defeat and then, without further ado, Mr. Jones can leisurely prepare his list of committee appointments. So far as Mr. Burdick is concerned, he is not overawed by the 32 Jones pledges, and is as industrious as ever in conducting a campaign for Speaker.

Burdick Still Hopeful.

"It isn't over," observed.

The home of Mrs. A. B. Cummins at the Buena Vista apartments was the scene of a happy gathering Thanksgiving day, when a number of guests enjoyed Thanksgiving dinner. Toasts and after-dinner speeches enlivened the dinner hours, after which dancing was enjoyed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Derr, on Kearney street. Those who enjoyed the evening included Lleusho enjoyed e Burdick Still Hopeful.

"It isn't over," observes Mr. Burdick.
"Just wait. Something may break. I have very excellent reasons for my contention that the Speakership contest has not been settled. Yes, I have seen Mr. Jones' list of names, but what of it? Will they remain with him? It is a long time before the Legislature organizes, more than a month, and much can happen in that time. Tou can say that I'm still on deck."

Less than 200 feet separates the headquarters of Mr. Jones and Mr. Burdick. The former is at the Hotel Oregon and the latter is across the street at the Imperial. Mr. Jones is holding almost continuous conferences with Ben Sheldon or Herbert Gordon, while ever and anon some Representative strolls in to discuss the outlook.
