Helping Solve Today's World Food Problem

UNCLE SAM has a big problem. It's a man-sized job to feed our own people, and, at the same time, ship within the next 12 months 20,000,000 tons of foodstuffs, and perhaps much more, to stave off starvation in Europe. True to form, he is grappling it with the same grim determination that marked his participation in the war.

In solving this, one of our great national problems, Armour and Company, and similar large food purveying concerns, will play an important part. As Manager of the local Armour Branch House, I am glad to feel that I am one of an organization which is helping to carry through this great program—glad that we, here, can really aid.

Our activities start at the sources of production, where we have conveniently located our plants. These serve to collect foods at their choicest where nature produces them best. They are prepared and then transported under refrigeration to where they are most needed, thereby equalizing the national food supply over both the country and the seasons so that nothing will be lost. This, in addition to the vast quantity saved for export.

But the functions of Armour and Company are not limited to collecting, preparing and distributing food products. Special bureaus, or departments, are maintained whose work is of a practical educational character. Soil studies, the breeding of better cattle, the selection of seeds, rotation of crops, and the thousand and one problems that confront the producer are subjects of special research. Again, our Department of Food Economics is showing hundreds of thousands of housewives how to use foods most efficiently, without waste. From first step to last, Armour efficiency prevails.

All Armour meats are Government inspected.

The Armour Branch Houses are the arteries through which these foods reach consumers. Your local Branch House helps to supply this community with its food requirements in as efficient a manner as experience, necessary capital, trained ability and modern facilities will permit. And, because all our four hundred Branch Houses are part of one great national organization, we are able to work together, thereby releasing a big volume of food for foreign use, as well as supplying our community needs.

Looking at it in this way, you will realize that you can order all the Armour foods you need and yet be sure you are not depriving others.
