YULETIDE ENJOYED BY 200 LESS FORTUNATE

Poor of City Are Guests at Dinner of Tommy Swivel.

CHILDREN ARE MADE HAPPY

Following Meal, Large Christmas Tree Loaded With Gifts and Candy Delights Youngsters.

Little Billy and some 200 of his youthful compatriots trundled into their beds last night firmly convinced that this is a pretty good world after all. Those unmistakable lines of poverty and of want which had creased their little faces and brows with the fateful brand of environment were smoothed away with Yuletide happiness. Their childish dreams of Christmas had come true.

For these little waifs—innocent victims of domestic misfortune in all its forms—were the guests yesterday of Tommy Swivel—big-hearted Tommy Swivel, to whom Christmas day is not complete if he cannot lighten the load of some careworn mother and brighten the thorn-strewn path of the little tots whose daddies have died, leaving nothing but a memory as the sole heritage for his flock.

Mothers Made Happy.

Widows were there with their babes in arms; women who a year ago had not felt the searing iron of poverty. They were the ones who had come to witness the answer of their prayers for their youngsters. And when they gathered about the dinner tables, heaped high with food, they could not restrain their feelings. It was a touching incident to see three of these unfortunate women leave their plates of food untouched and rush from the dining-room to cry alone in their happiness.

Tommy Swivel, host, and his complete complement of loyal assistants were kept busy from noon until dusk began to clothe the city with its ghostly shadows entertaining their 200 little guests. Many there were who arrived before noon, though the dinner was scheduled for 2 o'clock. And there were others, and many of them, who did not reach the Chamber of Commerce dining-room until well toward 4 o'clock. The women who brought their flocks in late made humble apologies. One little mother, her head covered with a faded shawl of blue, arrived long after the others had eaten and left. She had a big washing, she explained, that had to be delivered early this morning, and the work just had to be done.

Tree Is Decorated.

The Christmas dinner was by no means the chief item of interest. A large Christmas tree, gorgeously decorated, called forth various and typical exclamations of delight. And the bags of candy and nuts and fruit were thrice welcome. And what a din those happy youngsters made when the horns were passed around!

Both before and during the dinner Mrs. Herman Politz sang songs to the youngsters. There were many songs of childhood which she sang to them and the tots joined lustily in each chorus. Mrs. Warren E. Thomas served as accompanist for Mrs. Politz.

Then there were the hurdy gurdy, the merry-go-round, the chute-the-chutes and other forms of amusement which kept the youngsters delighted and busy during the hours of the afternoon.

As each child filed from the building, Santa Claus stood at the entrance of the Oregon building passing out Christmas gifts to all. There were dolls and Teddy bears and books and games, toy soldiers and guns and all other toys which lighten the heart of Young America. Each child received at least three presents and they wended their happy way homeward their arms laden with the good things they had received. To those youngsters whose mothers are compelled to lean upon the protecting arm of the widow's pension bureau it was "the day."

TO REMOVE DANDRUFF

Get a small bottle of Danderine at any drugstore for a few cents, pour a little into your hand and rub well into the scalp with the finger tips. By morning most, if not all, of this awful scurf will have disappeared. Two or three applications will destroy every bit of dandruff; stop scalp itching and falling hair. —Adv.

CHILD GETS SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at Tongue! Then Give Fruit Laxative for Stomach, Liver, Bowels.

"California Syrup of Figs "Can't Harm Children and They Love It.

Mother, your child isn't naturally cross and peevish. See if tongue is coated; this is a sure sign the little stomach, liver and bowels need a cleansing at once.

When listless, pale, feverish, full of cold, breath bad, throat sore, doesn't eat, sleeep or act naturally, has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, remember a gentle liver and bowel cleansing should always be the first treatment given.

Nothing equals "California Syrup of Figs" for children's ills; give a teaspoonful, and in a few hours all the foul waste, sour bile and fermenting food which is clogged in the bowels passes out of the system, and you have a well and playful child again. All children love this harmless, delicious "fruit laxative," and it never fails to effect a good "inside" cleansing. Directions for babies, children of all ages and grown-ups are plainly on the bottle.

Keep it handy in your home. A little given today saves a sick child tomorrow, but get the genuine. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

BRITONS' HOLIDAY IS CUT

VISIT OF WILSON FORCES STAY IN LONDON.

Statesmen Afraid to Leave Metropolis for Fear They May Miss President on Arrival.

BY JOSEPH W. GRIGG.

(Copyright by the New York World, published by arrangement.)

LONDON, Dec. 25.—(Special Cable.)—Not many British statesmen got far away from London today for the celebration of the first unwarlike Christmas since 1914, because President Wilson's arrival tomorrow spelled a debacle for the usual out-of-town Christmas festivities of royalty and the many leading men who will participate tomorrow in the welcome.

Some members of the government with homes near London were enabled to get away because of their possible return tomorrow morning, but many others who intended to spend several days in remoter parts of the country remained in London and in so doing found time to apportion a part of their Christmas for informal discussions.

Tonight there is a trend Londonward of hundreds of persons who are unwilling to postpone until tomorrow their journey because of the possibility of missing President Wilson's triumphant entry into the British metropolis. Already "standing room only" would be a good motto at most hotels, for the metropolis is bulging with an unprecedented population.

Dover, where President Wilson will land at noon tomorrow, likewise is filled up. If the weather holds good the President will have the biggest aerial escort across the channel any visitor to England ever had. Many air squadrons will accompany his special train as far as London. Along the whole route from Dover it promises to be a triumphant journey, because the populace of all the town lining the railroad will hail him with flags and shouts. From well-informed quarters tonight it was learned that the President in all probability will be informed of the full scope of the British league of nations plans during Thursday's informal discussions.

Southern European issues as well as the Russian situation are expected to call for prolonged discussion on the following day. It is believed that President Wilson already has made clear in Paris conversations that he is against military intervention in Russian affairs and those who believe this point to his Mexican policy. There is much speculation about any remarks on Ireland which the President may make in the event the Mayor of Dublin and the Irish committee come here during his visit to present an address and an invitation to visit Ireland. His answer to labor's address is being eagerly awaited by the labor leaders.

NATIONAL PARTY IS ACTIVE

SPOKANE TO GET INLAND EMPIRE HEADQUARTERS.

National Chairman Coates Says Campaign Will Be Made for President in Year 1920.

SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 25.—(Special.)—The National Party will establish an Inland Empire headquarters in Spokane next year and maintain it until after the presidential election in 1920. From here organization work in Eastern Washington and Oregon, Western Montana and Northern Idaho will be conducted.

The foregoing announcement was made today by David C. Coates, former City Commissioner and now National Chairman of the National Party with headquarters in Chicago, who arrived in town Tuesday for a holiday visit with his family.

Mr. Coates will go to Seattle before returning to Chicago, in order to confer with party members as to a state chairman for Washington. Since Will Everett resigned as state chairman the National party has been without a state head here.

"The National party everywhere is branching out and getting organized," said Mr. Coates. "We are doing much preparation work in anticipation of active participation in the Presidential election two years hence."

FIRE TRUCK KILLS YOUTH

Three Injured When Auto Crashes Into Side of Building.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25.—A boy was killed and two women were seriously injured today when the driver of a municipal fire truck, attempting to dodge a child playing in the road, crashed the machine into the side of a building.

The dead, Peter Doyle, 10; injured, Mary Scanlon, 24, leg cut off, internal injuries; and Hannah Scanlon, 21, contusions and internal injuries.

The boy was caught beneath the wheels of the truck and the women were crushed against the side of the building.

HUNS ARE HELD DANGEROUS

ARMISTICE SIGNED TOO SOON, IS BELIEF OF GENERAL.

In Another Week American Army Could Have Unfolded Its Real Strength on Battle Line.

BY CYRIL BROWN.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by arrangement.)

MAYENCE, Dec. 24.—General Mangin, at his headquarters in the Palace of the Grand Duke of Hesse, said today:

"Germany is still untrustworthy and potentially dangerous. Its army is again taking up arms and its officers resuming their functions, and we must take no chances. The occupation must last a very long time."

Indicative of the fact that General Mangin is taking no chances, he told the World correspondent that he is now working harder than ever, doing war work until 2 A. M.

He added:

"It is the same old Germany. The armistice came too soon. The war should have continued at the very least a week longer. In another week I should have been in Metz and the following week on the Rhine."

General Mangin praised the American First, Second and Third, Divisions, which fought under him. He said there were no better troops in the world. His sole criticism was the staff work due to its inexperience.

"The war ended before the American Army could unfold his real power," he said, "but all France knows what the American Army would have done."

Pleading for a continuance of the close friendship between America and France, General Mangin warned against German propaganda. "Germany's sole remaining hope," he said, "is to drive a wedge between the allies."

General Mangin praised the discipline of the troops attached to the Mayence sector, saying all, including two divisions from devastated Northern France had entered Germany without a thought of revenge and had conducted themselves toward the German populace accordingly. "There has not been a single complaint to reach me," he said, adding that the Germans were taking advantage of the humanitarian leniency of the French.

ARMY OFFICER IS SUICIDE

COLONEL WILLIAM E. PURVIANCE INHALES GAS IN HOME.

Wife Discovers Husband in Gas-Filled Room, but Is Too Late to Save His Life.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 25.—Lieutenant-Colonel William E. Purviance, officer in charge of recruiting for the United States Army for Southern California and a portion of Arizona, was found by his wife late today in a dying condition in a gas-filled room at his home here. The officer was lying on the floor with his face covered by a funnel and a rubber tube which was connected with an open gas jet, his wife said. He was rushed to the Emergency Hospital, but died before medical aid could be given. Relatives declared that he had been suffering from sickness for some time.

Lieutenant-Colonel Purviance, who was 53 years old, entered the Army in 1892, after graduating from the Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia. He rose rapidly to Captain, Major and Lieutenant-Colonel, being retired with the latter rank in 1912. At his own request he was returned to the service in 1917 as a recruiting officer.

Before being retired in 1912, the officer was connected with the Medical Corps of the Army. He was in charge of the medical depot at Fort McKinley, Manila, P. I., during the Spanish-American War and later served as chief surgeon at the Presidio, San Francisco.

HARMONY HELD ASSURED

President Butler Sends Message to Columbia Students.

NEW YORK, Dec. 25.—A Christmas message was sent to all Columbia University men in France by Nicholas Butler, president of Columbia University, it was announced today.

"Those who have offered their lives are now called upon to offer their minds and souls," the message said in part. "The sacrifices of war are over, but the sacrifices of peace are only now to begin. These are sacrifices that will put behind us selfishness, greed and willingness to exploit the souls and bodies of other men. These are sacrifices that will turn our minds away from bigness, from unknown and from accumulations, to character, to quality and to spiritual power. We should no longer think of large nations and small nations, but only of free nations, joyfully competing together in service to mankind in revelation of new and unsuspected powers of helpfulness and progress."

BISHOP NICHOLS TO RETIRE

Increased Duties and Advancing Age Given as Reasons.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 25.—Bishop William Ford Nichols, head of the diocese of San Francisco, will retire in 1919 from active duty, according to an announcement in the Pacific Churchman, official publication of the coast for the Episcopal Church.

Increased duties of the office, together with advancing age, are given by Bishop Nichols, who is 72 years old, as his reasons. He accepted his present post in 1890.

Mexico May Change Religious Laws.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 25.—Still another proposed constitutional reform was added today to the long list initiated by the executive. This proposes derogation of sections 7 and 8 of article 130, which provide that State Legislatures fix upon a maximum number of clergy who shall be allowed to conduct religious rites, and that all clergy shall be native-born Mexicans.

Edward Lee, of Milwaukie, Wounded Three Times at Chateau Thierry, Arrives Home.

BATTLE-SCARRED BOY HOME FROM FRANCE

Edward Lee Wants to Forget Frightful Conflict.

YANKEE HOSPITALS LAUDED

Mother, Elated Over Return of Her Son, Unintentionally Forgets to Asknowledge Greetings.

"You will please excuse me, Mr. Adams, but I forgot all about wishing you a merry Christmas. You see, I am so elated with the present I am to receive today that I did not think to extend the season's greeting. For my wounded soldier boy arrives on this train. That is the only present I want this Christmas. I cannot tell you how wonderfully happy I am."

The speaker was Mrs. W. E. Morand, of Milwaukie, and she was addressing R. L. Adams, 1232 East Glisan street, at the Union Depot shortly before the arrival of the train from San Francisco at 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Adams had volunteered to drive Mrs. Morand to the depot to meet her returning soldier hero-son, Edward Lee. Five minutes later mother and son were locked in loving embrace and the reunion was an affecting one.

Youth Is Thrice Wounded.

"I have all the souvenirs I want of that dreadful country," confessed Private Lee, as he hesitatingly indicated three tell-tale scars from shrapnel, "without bringing back a gas mask or a helmet. One who has been over there does not wish for the possession of anything that will remind him of the frightful conflict. He only wants to forget the war. Its horrors and the devastated region in which it was fought."

At midnight, August 5, during the Chateau Thierry drive, Lee received three wounds from shrapnel. One fragment of the projectile buried itself in the top of his head, another shattered the bones and carried away a section of his right wrist, while a third pierced the fleshy part of his left hand. After receiving first aid treatment it was four days before he reached the base hospital, where he remained until late in October, when he was invalided home. He reached New York October 21 and by gradual stages made the journey across the United States to the Presidio at San Francisco, where he received treatment for more than a month.

Yankee Hospitals Lauded.

"They sure do take good care of the wounded from the time the injury is suffered until the patient recovers," added Lee, testifying to the efficiency of the hospital division of the United States and allied armies. "The hospitals are wonderfully equipped and in charge of some of the very best physicians and surgeons and experienced nurses. Aside from the professional skill of these attendants, I dare say it is their uniform good nature and radiation of smiles and sunshine that is responsible for restoring to health many wounded soldiers."

Lee enlisted in Battery B in this city in June, 1917, and was later transferred to Battery A and attached to the 147th Field Artillery in which he attained the rank of first-class private. He left Clackamas with his organization for France in the following September and, until incapacitated by his injuries, saw much active service. On the night he was wounded two fellow privates, both California boys, were hit by shrapnel, one being killed outright and the other suffering serious wounds, from which he later recovered.

Soldiers in Good Spirits.

Lee is the first wounded member of either of the two batteries organized in this city to return home, and he is here only on furlough. He will return to the Presidio in a few days for an operation made necessary by the injury to his skull. Thereafter he will be sent to Camp Lewis for discharge.

"The enlisted men of the two outland batteries have been singularly fortunate in that few have been injured, although they have figured prominently in several important actions," said Lee. "Captain Johnson, of Battery A, had virtually recovered from his injuries sustained when his horse fell on him several weeks ago, when I started for home. Lieutenant Fuestel died from injuries suffered the day after I was wounded. Otherwise the health and spirits of the men in the organization were the best."

Battery Cited by General.

Among the other Portland lads in the battery to which Lee belonged was J. F. Sullivan, who, wounded, also returned to the United States with Lee, but he had not recovered sufficiently from his injuries to come to Portland for the holidays. Another Portland boy in the battery is William Adams, son of R. L. Adams, who returned to the firing line a month before the armistice was signed after having been confined in a hospital for some time as a result of shell shock.

In a letter to his father, received yesterday, young Adams predicts that he and other members of his organization will arrive home probably next July. He also relates that the battery has been cited by General Pershing three times for meritorious work.

ARMY MEN VISIT RHINE

Excursion Trips Planned for Officers on Leave.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE RHINE, Dec. 24.—(By the Associated Press.)—Excursion trips on the Rhine, requiring three to five days, have been planned by the American Third Army for officers and men on leave. Arrangements are complete for requisitioning three large river boats, each with accommodation for 300 to 400 men.

The plans also provide for short recreation trips, and for this purpose a fleet of from 10 to 15 steamers has been requisitioned.
