OBJECTIONS TO CODE MADE REALTY BOARD REPRESENTATIVE FAVORS CHANGES. Meeting of Housing Committee With City Commissioner Barbur to Be Held January 9. Objections to certain sections of the proposed housing code caused a postponement of a meeting of the Portland Housing Committee Association with City Commissioner Barbur scheduled to be held yesterday afternoon. The meeting will be held January 9. The objections were made by E. B. McNaughton, representing the Realty Board, who said that although the code drawn up by the Portland Housing Committee had merit, a few changes would increase its value. The proposed code for Portland was copied after the Minneapolis housing code, which has been in successful operation for a number of years. A committee appointed by the Portland Housing Association made numerous modifications to meet local conditions. Prominent builders, architects and realty men were then called into conference and other changes were made. The purpose of the committee is now to secure City Commissioner Barbur's approval on behalf of the public works department of the city, after which it will be referred to the City Council for a public hearing and final action. The code is directed mainly at preventing Portland from becoming a city of tenements and providing Portland residents with fit places in which to live.

VANCOUVER OPENS CLUB COMFORTABLE QUARTERS PROVIDED FOR SOLDIERS. Men Returning Home After Being Mustered Out Will Be Made Welcome at New Rooms. VANCOUVER, Wash., Dec. 26.—(Special.)—The clubrooms of the War Camp Community Service at 608 Main street are nearly completed and will be opened to the public for the first time at 10 o'clock Saturday morning. Residents of the city are invited that day to visit the clubrooms, but after that civilians will not be permitted, except on special occasions. The club will be unusually comfortable, has three pool tables, many writing desks, lounging places, easy chairs, phonograph and piano. The floor is hardwood and may be used for dances. There will be various kinds of games, including checkers, cards, chess and indoor baseball. In the front will be offices and a reception-room, where ladies may meet their relative soldiers. The club will be open for all returned and discharged soldiers no matter where they may have been in the service, and these men will be as welcome as soldiers in the service. Nearly 2000 men went to war from Vancouver and Clarke County, and of course most of them are coming back to their homes, and these will be given a warm welcome at all times, and everything in the club will be free, including the pool tables. A co-operative employment bureau will be maintained in connection with the club, as the War Department has agreed upon a co-operative plan with the War Camp Community Service throughout the country.
