details were handled with exceptional ability. Notwithstanding the 'flu' epidemic, the demands of an unusually busy Christmas season, the subsidence of the war enthusiasm, and other drawbacks, the women workers kept at their task until they finished it, and the large number of members enrolled tells the story of their achievement. In some cases the captains covered their districts as many as four times to make sure that no one was missed.

Christmas is the coming of the highest and best in the human life. The key to the life of Jesus Christ is that he came for us. The best of his life was always for others. From the first public miracle to the last act of his life he was always for others. His first miracle was to relieve a family of social embarrassment; his last act on the cross was to give hope and promise to a dying malefactor. Every recorded act of Christ was for others. He that was greatest was servant of all. The king-liness of character was the kingliness of Christ. Not a king of rank or of high sovereignty, but a helper, a redeemer, a deliverer and a saver of men. "Never in all the centuries has the real Christmas been so large and true as this past year. Millions of the best men, God-touched and Christ-inspired, have gone and have given for others. The winning of the great war has been a complete victory for the best of humanity, a God-touched and Christ-in-spired humanity."
