Yankees Regain Ground.

Tuesday, the Bolshevists opened terrific fire from three and six-inch guns and launched a counter-attack against the buildings held by Americans in Kadish. So hot was the artillery fire that the Americans were withdrawn temporarily from the village. The line, however, was not taken back very far and the new positions were firmly held.

The enemy did not occupy Kadlah because the barrage fire from the American guns made the place untenable. Shells falling on the frozen ground as far as they would under normal conditions.

The Bolshevists are fighting more savagely here than effewhere to hold their positions.

The Petrograd road leads southward to Plesetskays, a large village on the Vologda railroad, which is the enemy's Onega fronts.

Allied positions on the Onega front near the village of Pechura were attacked by the enemy yesterday. This attack was centered on a Russian naval brigade, which held its positions inflicting heavy losses without apparently losing a man.

The speech of President Wilson in the Roman Parliament removes the last vestige of doubt as to the wide divergence existing between his viewe and those of M. Clemenceau.

The President states specifically: There cannot be another balance of ower," because, "that has been tried and found wanting."

Clemenceau's Words Recalled.

M. Clemenceau told the French Chamber of Deputies "there was that system of alliances which I de not reounce," and insisted that if equilibrium, "spontaneously produced in the course of war," had existed before in the shape of a defensive alliance between the United States, Great Britain, Italy and France, the war would not occurred."

In interrupting the Premier's speech the Socialist radical deputies couched their denunciations of the "old system" curiously enough , in practically ame terms used a few days later by Mr. Wilson.
