days is not an occupation one would choose on account of its exhilarating attractions. Peace making has taken the clusive qualities of the will-o'-the-wisp.

First, an ever receding date was fixed by report for the opening of the real work that brought President Wilson across the Atlantic. At first an optimistic bunch of American jburnalists eagerly accepted one after the other of these pleasing predictions.

But as tomorrow regularly dashed their unsophisticated hopes they sank into a state of hardened distrust of everything and everybody, until now it is hard to place faith even in the officially promised meeting on January 18.

Yet, waiting for the peace conference, remote and hopeless as it appeared must not be confused with waiting for peace itself. That is quite a different pair of sleeves. There is to be a con-ference after all, but will it issue in

If you rely for your political pabulun on the Paris boulevard press you may feel inclined to conclude that not Presi-dent Wilson but Machiavelli would be the appropriate presiding genius of this political gates representatives of the dominions ighly in-including New Foundland, which has conference. These French politica writers, brilliant, scholarly, highly informed, most ingenious of argument and gifted of expression, seem to be entirely devoid of the faintest illusion as to the possibility of preventing humanity from indulging to the end of time in its periodical holocaust.

Memories of War Dulled.

Not alone is the league-of-nations plan impossible in their eyes, but it is a foolish and undesirable one to boot. Men have carried on this way from the beginning, and yet the world is a fairly agreeable place to live in at intervals and men must continue to go on the same fashion, "per omnia saecula sae-culorum" (for all time).

During the days of searching agony, when defeat impended, the horror and when defeat impended, the horror and anguish of war as well as its penalties were sharply realized, and it was solemnly vowed that never again should humanity be menaced by such abominations. But only a few weeks after victory the terrible memories of war are being dulled in the minds of those boulevard casuists, the old militaristic creeds and shibboleths are infull blast, and war, it seems almost suggested, is not such a bad thing after
