Citing history to show that "no foe from abroad has been able to crush us," Governor Burnquist enumerated three movements, which "are now being promoted in this country" and which "are indicative of the present danger." These te gave as the Industrial Workers of world, socialism and the Non-Parti-

"The notorious organization called the Industrial Workers of the World," he said, "has for its well-known purpose the revolutionary destruction of our political institutions. "The end," he continued, "des. ed by the more radical of these discontented elements is the establishment in America of a bolshevik government similar to that in Russia. They believe in the rule of the minority and that that mi-nority should be the proletariat."

The less radical seek, he said, to en-act legislation placing all industrial institutions under governmental owner-ship, control and operation, "resulting ultimately in the complete surrender of indivdual rights."

Ample government authority now exists, the governor pointed out, to prevent any industrial monarchy and curb detrimental individual fortunes. Counter-education is "the only way in which to check such permissible promulgation of socialism." Persons "who are here to advocate establishment of a bolshevik government ought at once to be deported to Russia, where they can enjoy the kind of government they desire. Their philosophy is similar to that of the war lords of Germany."

Concluding, Governor Burnquist said every effort should be made to climinate "this threatening menace" in a peaceful manner. But if this were not ponsible, force, he asserted, when used in a righteous cause, "is the best instrument we have for the maintenance of law and order and for the preservation of our government and the lives.
