

SAVING OF MILLIONS MOVED AT OLYMPIA

Acting Governor Tells of Conference With Publishers.

ECONOMY RULES ADOPTED

Senate Resists Attempt to Give Administration of Mothers' Pension Act to School Boards.

OLYMPIA, Wash., Feb. 20.—(Special.)—Under the eyes of a gallery representation from all the women's welfare organizations of the state, the senate today resisted an attempt to place administration of the mothers' pension act in the hands of school boards instead of county commissioners. The change was proposed in senate bill 26, sponsored by Senators Wray and Hastings.

Alteration of the mothers' pension act was resisted by the welfare organizations generally on a theory that it would turn disbursement of pension allowances over to school teachers.

Advocates for the change argued that school teachers had the best opportunity of observing whether children were properly clothed or fed and their reports on these conditions to school boards would afford the quickest means of applying relief. Senator French took a reef out of this contention by observing that the teachers would be off the job three months in the year. Senator Loomis supported a suggestion to amend the present mothers' pension act to allow its benefits in cases of abandonment or imprisonment of a father and Senator Hall finished the new bill by moving its reference back to the judiciary committee for the substitution of a new bill preserving the present act and providing for deserted children.

Appropriations Repeal Blocked.

Before adjournment Senator Smith introduced a bill applying the mothers' pension provisions to wives abandoned one year who can satisfy a judge they have made the required legal efforts to locate missing husbands and to compel support of the children. The mothers' pension act provides $15 per month for the first child under 16 and $10 each for others up to a total of $54.

By quick action in the senate today action to repeal appropriations by which armories have been authorized for Aberdeen, Walla Walla and Everett was delayed still further and probably blocked entirely.

A point of order raised yesterday against repealing the appropriations acts on the ground that they have not yet become laws and cannot until 90 days after the session has adjourned, was overruled by the judiciary committee, which action apparently opened the way for immediate repeal of the three appropriations, amounting to $325,996. If the economy forces had the vote.

Before the economy forces could take advantage of the situation Senator Cornwall of Walla Walla moved that the armory bills be referred to the appropriations committee pending final action and the motion carried. Senator Smith of Everett, one of those most interested in sustaining the appropriations, is chairman of the appropriations committee and now has the bills in his keeping, together with various other appropriations all senators are more or less interested in.

Saving of Millions Expected.

While no official statement has been issued as to results of Acting Governor Louis E. Bell's economy conference last night with leading publishers of the state, the acting governor today said he believed it would save the state several million dollars at least. It is understood this will be accomplished by the newspapers' demands for only necessary appropriations.

As the matter of the appropriation programme has been taken care of and the omnibus bill, carrying the state's outlay of cash for the biennium is nearly ready to be introduced, the lobby crowd has fallen into a pessimistic frame of mind and is beginning to disintegrate.

As a result of legislative investigation.

ANNEXATION MOVE LOSES

Measure Introduced to Create Senate Commission for Legislation of Boxing.

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 20.—(Special.)—Refusal of the house of representatives to pass an amendment to the constitution of office to four years, representatives of office to four years, efforts to block a general county division enabling act to remove from the legislature the problem of creating additional new counties, the recommendation by the senate that there be created in Idaho a state constabulary and the introduction of a bill to create a senate commission in that body to legalize boxing, were the outstanding moves in the legislature today.

Experience Argument Used.

The term legislative resolution, requires a two-thirds vote to pass. A majority voted for the measure. In attacking the resolution one member declared he would not be mean enough to force a second term in the legislature or many one. The argument for the measure was that more experienced men would make the states laws.

No bills were introduced in the house as Wednesday was the 45th and last day allowed for doing so, except from committee or by unanimous consent. The state affairs committee modified its report on the feeble-minded institute at Nampa. Wednesday it recommended that no appropriation be made for the institution. Today it recommended that no appropriation be made for new buildings only, but that funds for maintenance be allowed. An effort to have all reference to the sanitarium stricken from the report failed.

Annexation Is Defeated.

A lively fight took place in the house over the defeat of the Nash bill proposing an enabling act to permit residents in a portion of Ida county to be annexed to Franklin county. Monson of Franklin county, championed the bill declaring all the residents in the territory were anxious for the annexation. Hall of Oneida, charged that he was a "nigger in the woodpile" and said all Franklin county wanted was part of Oneida county's forest reserve. He said Oneida county had been cut up until it had eight children and many grand children, but Franklin, one of them, had been the "hardest kid of them all to wean." The bill was defeated by a vote of 27 to 24.

SALEM, Or., Feb. 20.—(Special.)—State department commander arvey Wells of the United States army veterans listed a star today to the effect that the organization which he represents has no connection whatever with the United American war veterans, which has been made the subject of investigation by a committee in Portland. Mr. Wells warns soldiers not to affiliate with any organization until the men are generally home from overseas and then to abide by their wishes.

In a statement today, Mr. Wells said: Veterans of all wars are on the eve of a gigantic organization which will be international, if not world-wide, in its scope and will embrace the veterans of all the wars in which the United States has participated. Such an organization in the United States alone will have a membership of upwards of 4,000,000. It will embrace the veterans in civil, Indian, Spanish-American, China relief expedition and the present world's campaigns at arms. They will represent the highest ideals of Americanism and good citizenship and will wield a tremendous power for good government.

The Grand Army of the Republic and the United Spanish Veterans have exercised a great influence for good during their existence. It is presumed that many of the surviving members of these two patriotic organizations will join in the membership of the major organization yet to be founded, but there is no inclination or likelihood of the abandonment of these organizations.
