

USE OF SLOUGH AS SEWER IS OPPOSED

Residents Believe Menace to Health May Develop.

FAILURE OF PLAN FEARED

Danger That Sufficient Flow at All Seasons of Year Cannot Be Maintained Pointed Out.

Opposition to utilization of Columbia river slough as a sewage outlet for the contemplated Peninsula sewer system as planned by City Engineer Laurgard is developing.

According to members of the city council, the opposition is two-fold: residents along Columbia slough being opposed in the belief that the use of the waterway as a sewer outlet will become a menace to health and residents of the proposed sewer district opposing the project because they claim that there is danger that the Columbia river slough has not sufficient flow at all periods of the year to properly dilute the sewage and that the plan may develop into a failure after money for preliminary work has been expended.

The city council has entered into a contract with the officials of the Multnomah county drainage district to dig a channel from the Columbia river slough to the Columbia river for the purpose of increasing the flow of the slough. Under the provisions of this contract, the city officials must decide by May 1 if they will carry out the contract and in the event that they agree to dig the channel they must be virtually completed by January 1, 1920.

This preliminary work will cost approximately $100,000, a sum which will cost property owners in the proposed sewer district about $8 per lot. Later it is planned to construct a sewer system emptying into the slough.

Since April, 1911, when the first move was made to provide sewer facilities in the Peninsula district, there has been continuous work in the way of surveys and other actions on the part of the city to determine if there is sufficient flow in the Columbia river slough throughout the year to properly handle the sewage from as large a district as the proposed Peninsula district.

After exhaustive study and the accumulation of a large amount of valuable data, pertaining to the sewer project, J. C. Sharp, former city engineer of sewers, submitted a report to former City Commissioner Deak which he stated that it is objectionable to use the slough as a sewer outlet on account of the probable annual expense.

The proposed project will come before the city council for discussion soon and it is possible that outside and interested engineers will be secured to pass upon the desirability of using the slough as a sewer outlet before authority is granted for the expenditure of a million dollars necessary to handle the preliminary work of the project.

City Commissioner Barbur has favored the slough project mainly because it seems to provide the means to dispose of the sewage of the proposed district at a minimum cost to the residents of the district. City Engineer Laurgard is confident that his plan is feasible and is now working out data which he states will prove this.

Precipitation in Umatilla County in February Above Normal. PENDLETON, Or., March 4.—(Special.)—Rainfall for February was considerably heavier than the average and every drop went into the ground, according to the weather observer here. The total for the month was 1.59 inches as compared to the normal rainfall of 1.44 inches. A rainfall in February, 1918, of but .68. Rain was recorded on 21 days during the month. OVERSEAS CANADIAN VETERANS ARRESTED

Wife Who Alleges Desertion Follows Him to Portland.

DEPORTATION TO BE RESULT

Lieutenant James Gallagher, Speaker in Many Patriotic Campaigns, Is Said to Have Criminal Record.

Lieutenant James Gallagher, overseas veteran with the Canadian forces and lately speaker in many patriotic campaigns in this country, was arrested yesterday by immigration authorities. He is being held under $500 bonds and will be deported to Canada as an undesirable alien, according to Immigration Inspector R. P. Bonham.

The arrest came yesterday as the climax to a two months' search by Mrs. Gallagher, who has traced her husband from Calgary, Alberta, and through many coast cities until she located him in this city last week.

A criminal record in Canada will be faced by the lieutenant upon his return. According to records, he has been arrested four times and served a term of six months, all on "bad check" charges.

A story of non-support, arrests, bad faith and evasion was that told by the lieutenant's wife following his arrest. "We were married in 1913 in Calgary, where he was with the Canadian Oil company," she said. "Later he was discharged because of dishonesty. I was told—and I had to help support him. Early in 1915 he was arrested twice in one week.

"The next week he decided to enter the army and I gladly followed him, which released him. He came back with many empty honors. In January, 1918, after I had given him money, he went to Vancouver, B. C., and later to the states, where he used his uniform to gain a living.

"Last winter I got word that he was on the coast and started out to find him. I came to Portland in January and entered on a still hunt, meanwhile getting work as a nurse's attendant.

"It was not until last week I finally located him. He spoke before a veterans' organization in the courthouse last Thursday night and when I tried to see him he slipped away. After that I decided not to try to settle matters by talking things over, but so I took the matter up with the authorities. We traced him to the Multnomah hotel, where he was arrested yesterday.

According to reports, Lieutenant Gallagher has been working as an efficiency engineer in the past few months here. He was prominent in many speaking campaigns and secured various lecture engagements by this means.

Last fall John K. Kollock of the state council of defense received telegrams from the Canadian consular quarters asking that the lieutenant be barred from making talks in this country. Acting on instructions, Mr. Kollock stopped the talks, but later Lieutenant Gallagher is said to have made several speeches in the fourth Liberty Loan, making a speech at the strike headquarters.

He fought at Vimy Ridge, the Somme and at Ypres, being gassed at the latter place. He brought home autographs of Queen Mary and King George, said to be souvenirs of a visit to Buckingham palace.

Mrs. Gallagher is the daughter of H. Thierren, wealthy rancher of Brandon, Manitoba.

FIRE ALARM DISREGARDED

Cottage Grove Home Damaged When Soldiers Return. COTTAGE GROVE, Or., March 4.—(Special.)—A fire started in the home of Amelia Shortridge house on the west side Saturday just as the train bearing the boys of the 6th was pulling into the station. Most of the members of the fire department thought the fire whistle was merely in honor of the boys but, but few responded to the call. The fire started in a wood box which had become overheated from being too close to the stove. The damage was about $200.

The house was occupied by the Bud Ishmael family and the flames were discovered by the little girl of the family, who called her mother from the back porch to save the little baby who was playing in the room. Boone Shortridge, son of Mrs. Shortridge, was among those on hand to welcome the soldier boys and was greatly surprised when informed some time after the fire had been extinguished that the fire was at his mother's house.

GOLD HILL STRIKE MADE

Returned Soldier and Uncle Uncover Valuable Ore. GOLD HILL, Or., March 4.—(Special.)—Corporal Edwin Freeman, of Gold Hill, at the beginning of the war a member of the old 7th company, coast artillery of Medford, and during the war stationed with the big guns at the mouth of the Columbia river, lost no time arriving home after being relieved from service.

With his uncle, Benjamin Hayes, who has spent the last few years in the deep gold-ore mines in Arizona, he took a working lease on the Lucky Hart group of gold mines six miles north of Gold Hill. After working less than two months the two men uncovered many thousand tons of $100 ore on a pay about 100 feet below the old works which has, in recent years, produced $150,000 in gold bars.

KELSEO, Wash., March 4.—(Special.)—Sergeant Nat Smith, a Kelso boy in company K, 361st infantry, who was awarded the distinguished service medal for bravery in action in the Argonne battle, landed at New York yesterday with a casual company. Smith was wounded in the Argonne while leading his men in an attack on machine gun nests, and the situation was so critical he continued to lead the attack, although wounded, until all objectives had been gained. His mother, Mrs. Emma Smith, formerly lived in Kelso, but now resides in Seattle with her daughter.

AGITATORS TRY TO BLOCK WORK AT AUDITORIUM. Soldiers and Sailors Quickly Remove Dance Floor When Would-Be Strikers Are Ordered Out.

An attempted strike of disgruntled agitators failed to interfere with the work of removing the dance floor at the municipal auditorium Tuesday morning, although it did rob Hal M. White, manager of the auditorium of a full night's sleep.

A large force of men had been secured through the United States labor bureau, the majority of the crew being former soldiers and sailors, to work at the auditorium. One crew had been placed to work at 11:30 and about an hour later members of another crew, scheduled to begin work at 2 o'clock, attempted to agitate a plan of a strike.

"Throw the 'wobblies out,'" shouted a former sailor. Manager White quickly jumped into the fray by announcing that anyone who did not desire to work could "get out quick." The undesirable were then weeded out and the crew composed almost exclusively of former service men, jumped into the work and by 7:30 the job was completed.
