His death is reported to have occurred February 16, after the convening of the 16th congress of Russian soviets which continues its meeting in Moscow, Sverdioff was one of Premier Lenine's strongest supporters.

PARIS, March 24 .- During February more than 13,000 persons, or about 11 per cent of the entire population, died in Petrograd, according to Russian police statistics received in Paris.

American relief workers who left Moscow February 12 say deaths in that city early in February averaged 4000 daily. They say conditions there were similar to those in Petrograd, where smallpox, typhus, starvation and the "hunger plague" were raging un-checked. The Hungarian revolution and the eported alliance of the new government with the Russian soviet, which is considered here as a grave menace to Europe, has given rise to new criti-cism here of delays in the peace con-

The Globe, referring to the situation in Hungary, says:

"That is the natural consequence of the delay of the peace conference in making peace, and if the delay continues we will have worse consequences still. All this discussion of the league covenant before even a preliminary peace has been reached simply encourages the spread of the bolshevik disease and gives our chief enemy opportunities for intrigue." Commenting on the action of Hungary, the Times says:

In view of certain menaces which statesmen and the German press have freely employed and of the close relations between some Hungarian and German intriguers, it is susceptible of more explanations than one.
