Representative McArthur Deplores Presidential Stand.

SENATORS FEEL AGGRIEVED

Portland Man Says Opposition to League Is Strengthened Because Wilson Pursues Course Alone.

Light on the senatorial opposition to the league of nations, as advocated by President Wilson, and on the anti-administration sentiment that is growing with each refusal of the president to yield an inch from his position in the matter, is afforded by Representative C. N. McArthur of Oregon, who arrived in Portland last night.

Representative McArthur will join his colleagues of the naval affairs committee upon their arrival tomorrow, and tee upon their arrival tomorrow, and will accompany them to Astoria, where they will inspect the proposed submarine and aviation base recommended by the Helm commission. He expects to return to Washington about April 10.

"There is a growing conviction among a large majority of the American peo-ple," said Representative McArthur, "that there should be an international organization for the prevention of war, but there is an equally strong convic-tion that the league of nations proposal should be separate and distinct from the peace treaty. "As matters stand, the United States senate will reject the peace treaty if the league of nations constitutions is appended to it or interwoven with it. More than half of the membership of the senate is opposed to the linking the senate is opposed to the linking. When Treat, that already has begun to

of the peace treaty, he not only endangers the prospects of early peace, but also those of the international antiwar organization. Constitutional Provision Ignored-"The president has persistently ignored the senate in all of his negotiations, notwithstanding the provision of our federal constitution that in matters pertaining to treaties, the presi-den must act 'by aid and with the ad-vice and consent of the senate.'
"This exhibition of 'one-man govern-ment' is not in keeping with the spirit of America and is especially unfor-tunate at the time, when it endangers the consummation of plans for permanent peace.

"That which the American people desire above all else is immediate peace with Germany, and the bringing home of our soldiers. Senators and repre-sentatives have been flooded with letters and telegrams, asking that boys be brought home without further delay.

"More than four months have elapsed FATHER NOONAN ADVANCES since the armistice was signed, yet we have a million and a half men in Europe, who are anxious to get home and who are delayed in coming because of the long-winded discussions at Paris.

It can very well bepostponed many at hand affects peace negotiations with Germany. It can very well bepostponed until the immediate business at hand is concluded. Its postponement for a brief period would permit of consideration upon its merits, and also open the way for amendments and concessions which would make it acceptable to the American people and to all peoples interested. It is too important a proposition to be attached as a 'rider to the peace treaty.

The primary purpose of my visit to Oregon at this time is to assist in showing the members of the committee the need of adequate naval defenses at the mouth of the Columbia river. I shall also accompany the committee to Puget sound for an inspection of the Bremerton navy-yard."
