

$20,000 ROLLED UP IN WESTOCK CAMPAIGN

Optimistic Reports Made in Drive for Stockholders.

KIWANIS CLUB IS IN LEAD

Building Committee, in Charge of Erecting Pavilion, Will Meet at Luncheon Today.

With several teams yet to be heard from and returns only partially checked, District Manager Henry E. Reed, in charge of the Pacific-International Livestock exposition's drive for stockholders, last night announced an approximate total of $20,000 in cash and pledges on the $75,000 quota—the goal of the campaign conducted by the six big civic clubs of the city.

Yesterday the Kiwanis club, with upward of $5000 of its $6375 quota on hand and several large subscriptions in prospect, leaped to first place in the race of the six clubs, each of which has a definite share of the $75,000 allotment to secure. Colonel H. G. Colton, in charge of the Kiwanis workers, expects to "go over the top" by noon today.

Optimistic Reports Made. The East Side Business Men's club, under the leadership of Colonel L. M. Lepper, is close on the heels of the Kiwanis club, with more than two-thirds of its $3275 quota now on hand. The Progressive Business Men's club, with Colonel H. R. Blauvelt in charge, is also making a splendid showing, with considerably more than one-third of its $20,325 quota on hand and several hard-working captains and their campaigners not yet heard from.

The Rotary club workers, under Colonel R. J. Huntington, have garnered more than $2000 of their $13,950 quota. Most of the amount is in small, scattered subscriptions. The Realty Board, with a late start, now has an enthusiastic campaign under way, in charge of Colonel Paul Cowgill, who reports many substantial subscriptions secured by his workers. Among these are $250 from the Gauld company, $100 from the Wadhams & Kerr company, and $50 from the Pacific Coast Blount company.

Building Committee to Meet. Lieutenant-Colonel Miles Standish, commanding the Ad club campaigners, made an optimistic report last night, but could give no definite estimate of the percentage of the $24,250 quota already secured. He reported a $500 subscription from Clouet & Devers turned in by Captain Alfred A. Aya and several other substantial blocks of stock sold.

Tomorrow at noon the newly-appointed building committee, which will have charge of the construction of the big pavilion and other permanent buildings on the 15-acre exposition center, will meet at luncheon at the Benson hotel.

The personnel of the committee is as follows: Frank Robertson, prominent Oregon stockman and Portland bond dealer, chairman; J. C. Answorth, president of the United States National bank; Fred S. Stinson, owner of the Hollywood park, near Seattle, and breeder of Holsteins; C. C. Berkeley, of the Baldwin and company, Haystack; Leslie Butler, of the Butler Banking company, of Hood River; Natt McDougall, of A. Guthrie & Co., and Frank Brown, president of the Pacific-International Livestock exposition.

PORTLAND PLANS TO ORGANIZE AERO CLUB

Fliers Interested in Commercial Development.

SECOND CONFERENCE SET

Permanent Organization Wanted in Oregon to Encourage All Phases of Aviation.

With 20 trained fliers already returned to their homes in Portland and with a number of business men interested in possible development of commercial aeronautics, plans are being formulated for a real aero club. A second conference has just been called to develop interest in the movement, the aero committee of the Victory Rose Festival association taking the initiative.

It was announced yesterday by Milton R. Klepper, chairman of the committee, that a rousing meeting to consider the need for a permanent aero club in Oregon is to be held Tuesday evening, April 8, at the Chamber of Commerce. Everyone is invited, the announcement states, "whether it be from a sportsman's or commercial standpoint, and regardless of whether they have done flying themselves." A report from the committee previously named to investigate the need and demand for a club will be received and discussed.

Five Portland fliers have been named on a sub-committee which is interesting itself more particularly in getting expressions from the fellow aviators of this city and vicinity. Flying Cadet Clarence M. Eubanks is chairman of this committee. The other members are Lieutenant William D. Pearson, Lieutenant L. R. Mullineux, Lieutenant S. C. French and Flying Cadet R. C. Barnes.

These men have all had much experience as army and naval aviators. Lieutenant French was an instructor and is said to be one of the most expert aviators on the coast. There are other men in Portland who advanced far enough in the new science to be named instructors. When the remaining aviators still in the service are released there will be a colony of imposing size in Portland.

Permanent Club Wanted. "Some of these men are as much interested in development of commercial phases of aviation as are certain far-seeing business men who are lending encouragement."

"The work we have immediately in hand," said Cadet Eubanks, "relates to flying features at the Rose Festival, but we are looking far ahead of that. We want a permanent aero club for Portland and the state of Oregon. We want a club which is much broader than a mere association of fliers interested themselves in aviation as a sport. Portland is an ideal place for the development of commercial aviation and the manufacture of airplanes. Portland will fall behind the times if it does not jump in at once and promote a club which will sponsor and encourage all phases of aviation in every possible way."

Whole State to Be Embraced. Serving with Chairman Klepper on the general aero committee are ex-Governor Oswald West, Eric V. Hauser and Herman W. Boyer. The committee also has a list of a number of citizens and business men who have reported that they will assist in the movement to promote aeronautics and aviation. The name proposed for the permanent organization is "The Aero Club of Oregon." While the club would center in Portland it is intended that it shall embrace the whole state, possibly having auxiliaries in many towns and thus making up individuals interested in the future of the flying game.

BERRY CHANGE UNPOPULAR

Hood River Growers Not in Favor of Substitution.

HOOD RIVER, Or., April 4.—(Special.)—While strawberry growers of the Hood River valley will follow the advice of W. H. Paulhamus, well-known canner, and increase their plantings of berries the coming year, none of them will substitute the Marshall variety for the Clarke seedling, as Mr. Paulhamus has suggested. The Hood River growers will make no effort to attract the canner, except in so far as their cultivation is concerned, and these will be utilized by local canners.

The United States and Canada were the first countries to establish standard time, November 18, 1883. European countries began to adopt it about six years later, Belgium and Holland being the first. The railroads took the lead.
