semplation and resultant lateral roads from the interior we will have advanced a hundred years in development.

"It is conservatively estimated that the Rocsevelt highway will open up a sarritory, the development of which will add $100,000,000 to the taxable wealth of Oregon. The road, which is designed to connect with the coast highway system of Washington and California, will furms a link in the great boulevard from British Columbia to the Mexican border and will attract hundreds of thousands of tourists to Oregon annually.

The highway is not only as eco-president of the Peninsula Shiphulid-

Ald Offered Eastern Oregon.

The coast counties are putting forth every effort to educate the rest of the state as to the importance of constructing this highway without delay. We are also working hand in hand with eastern Oregon and the other irrigable ections of the state to pass the bill whereby the state will be enabled to lend its credit to irrigation districts by guaranteeing the interest on irrigation bonds.
