COUNCIL REVOKES LICENSE

ORPHEUM RESTAURANT HIT BY CLEAN-UP CAMPAIGN.

Mayor Baker Serves Notice That City Intends to Stand Behind Health Bureau.

One of the first steps taken by the city council in a determined effort to bring about a "clean-up" in Portland restaurants and cafes was the revocation of a license held by the Orpheum restaurant, 225 Madison street, operated by C. Allen.

According to evidence presented to the city council by Gordon Lang, chief sanitary inspector, Mr. Allen ignored the notices given him by the city health bureau to make changes held necessary in the interest of sanitation. These requests were made repeatedly, according to Mr. Lang, but no efforts, he said, were made by the owner of the restaurant to comply with them.

City Commissioner Mann, in charge of the health bureau, said he expected to have other similar cases before the city council soon.

"We are not molesting the restaurant owners who comply with the law and do not bother those who are attempting to comply with our suggestions," said Commissioner Mann. However, we have issued notice to clean up in all places where conditions warrant a change, and new licenses will not be issued on July 1 to any restaurant unless it is in absolutely clean and sanitary condition."

Mayor Baker said that the public was entitled to cleanliness in all restaurants and that the city council would stand behind the health bureau in its efforts to bring about the desired clean-up.

REALTORS CRITICISE CODE

BUILDING REQUIREMENTS CONSIDERED TOO DRASTIC.

Ben Selling at Luncheon Matches $3000 Subscription by Members to Victory Loan.

A total of $6900 was added to Portland's victory loan subscriptions at the luncheon of the Portland Realty board yesterday, through word from Ben Selling that he would match any subscriptions made. When this was announced $2900 was promptly subscribed.

On the initiative of J. Fred Staver, the realtors voted to appoint a committee to work for constructive changes in the new housing code, some provisions of which are considered too drastic. L. R. Bailey, architect, called attention to the fact that, for instance, under the present wording of the code it would be unlawful to build a small breakfast room in a house, and that corner lots in a residence section even such fine residences as those of Laurelhurst wouldn't comply with requirements.

Eugene E. Smith and Oscar W. Horne, labor members of the last legislature, spoke in favor of the reconstruction programme to come before the voters June 3. Mr. Smith emphasized that the programme should be considered an investment, not a debt. He especially favored the proposal to guarantee irrigation bonds.

Mr. Horne said this is the first time when the big interests and labor have agreed on the same programme for developing the state. He said labor would vote solidly for the whole reconstruction programme. He discussed at length the building part of the programme, and declared that if this building is undertaken the example will be contagious and will result in another era of building. He also spoke warmly in favor of the Roosevelt highway project.
