

NC-4'S RECORD BEATEN BY FRENCH AVIATOR

Roget, in Attempt to Cross Atlantic, Flies 1348 Miles.

JOURNEY WITHOUT STOP

Machine, Which Starts From Paris, Damaged in Landing and Trip Is Abandoned.

CASA BLANCA, Morocco, May 25.—Lieutenant Roget, a French aviator who left Paris early yesterday morning in the first leg of a projected trans-Atlantic flight by way of Dakar to Brazil, landed at 6 o'clock last night at Kenitra, 30 kilometers from Rabat. His machine was damaged in landing and the trans-Atlantic trip will have to be abandoned.

Roget came down on very difficult ground. The machine had left Villacoublay, France, at 5:10 o'clock Saturday morning, carrying as passenger Captain Coli, who previously had crossed the Mediterranean. Coli was slightly bruised when the machine came down. The entire trip was covered without a stop. The aviators arrived last night at Rabat by automobile. As their machine cannot be repaired here the aviators will return to France by steamer.

Lieutenant Roget seems to have beat the record of the American navy seaplane NC-4, which in its recent flight to the Azores covered 1930 kilometers (1121 miles), while Roget flew 2170 kilometers (about 1348 miles).

PONTA DELGADA, May 25.—(By the Associated Press.)—There is no immediate sign of an impending let-up in the unfavorable weather which has prevailed for 50 hours over the whole of the Lisbon coast since the projected flight of the American navy seaplane, NC-4. Therefore it is considered impossible to start on this leg of the journey before Thursday, according to the weather experts.

Strong northwest winds with clearing weather, but with occasional rain squalls, are predicted for tonight and Monday. The NC-4 has been removed to an anchorage farther inside the breakwater. She is being carefully guarded by a steam launch which continually circles around her.

PARIS, May 25.—Lieutenant Roget, according to a dispatch to the Temps from Rabat, flew 2200 kilometers in 11 hours and 50 minutes at an average speed of more than 185 kilometers (about 114 miles) an hour.

Mitchell, Enterprise, Or.; Effie Gibson, Long Beach, Cal.; Grace Paul Hendricks, Caldwell, Idaho; Lida Janant, Lodi, Cal.; and Palmer Ford, Butte, Montana. Tonight the seniors of the Bible University have charge of the services at the church, four members delivering a sermon upon one theme. Tomorrow is graduation day, the exercises being planned for 8 o'clock at the Christian church.

ARGONNE VETERAN SLAIN

James Kendrick Shot During Fight With Police Officer.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25.—James Kendrick, a former soldier who went through the Argonne forest drive unscathed, was killed here early today by a bullet fired from the revolver of Policeman John T. Kelly. Until his discharge several weeks ago, Kendrick was a member of the 32d infantry, which recently was welcomed here. According to Kelly he had been summoned to a restaurant to quell a disturbance created by Kendrick and five companions. He said he drove the youths from the place at the point of his revolver and that the weapon was discharged accidentally when Kendrick attempted to wrest it from him. The bullet penetrated Kendrick's heart.

WOOD LINE-UP IS GROWING

(Continued From First Page.) Joy rides or junkets of some kind. There have been times since the armistice was signed when Mr. Lane was the only member of the president's official family who could be found at home. The others have been either disporting themselves in Europe or away from Washington on "official business."

But no sooner is Secretary Lane's name mentioned for the presidency than we hear that he is under a handicap; that he has not been as partisan as some of the president's advisers think he should have been. When Mr. Wilson had some thought to give to himself as a sure panacea for wars and economic ills of all kinds, the secretary of the interior never joined with the other members of the cabinet in an immediate "Me, too," chorus. He has always reserved the right to study even the president's ideas before giving them his unqualified indorsement.

His worst offense, however, has been his high estimate of the late Colonel Roosevelt. The public tribute which he paid to Colonel Roosevelt, which is considered a classic, was most displeasing to administration leaders, who thought that any good opinions that Mr. Lane held of Colonel Roosevelt might in better taste have been withheld so long as he was a member of the cabinet or, at least, confined to a private letter to the widow of the former president.

As to Mr. Lane, presidential ambitions are not worrying him. He cherishes his ambition. He would like to go to the supreme court bench, an honor that probably would not be denied him should Associate Justice McKenna decide to retire. Justice McKenna, like Mr. Lane, is from California, and it is the impression that if the former decides to leave the bench his robe will fall on another Pacific coast man.

An investigation of the war risk insurance bureau is sure to follow the break between Colonel Henry D. Lindsley and Secretary of Treasury Glass, which was followed by Colonel Lindsley's resignation as chief of the bureau. The war risk bureau stands out as the worst bungled of all the bureaus of the government during the war and has been the cause of widespread dissatisfaction. Thousands upon thousands of letters from wives, mothers and other relatives of the boys in the service regarding allotments, compensation and insurance piled up in the bureau and went unanswered, and many of them are not yet answered. The chief cause of this was that the responsible positions in the bureau were practically all filled by political favorites of the administration who knew nothing about the business of which they had suddenly been placed in charge. Having taken the places with the idea that they were being given government sinecures to pay them for political services, their hearts were not in the work and they did not even undertake to grasp what it was all about. Colonel Lindsley, himself a veteran of the late war and an experienced insurance man, was placed in charge, and the change was instantaneous. He had an interest in his fellow veterans and their families and he began to demand that more attention be paid to the inquiries that came in from the soldiers' relatives.

This soon started friction, because he was too insistent that the welfare of the soldiers be looked after promptly. He found that much of the fault lay at the treasury department. He said so, the result being that he is out of the job, but there is something more to follow. Colonel Lindsley is president of the newly organized American Legion, and the several hundred thousand soldiers who are in line for membership in this organization are determined that the mismanagement of the bureau which Colonel Lindsley sought to overcome shall not be covered up.

COOS HAS FIRST HOBOS

Two Boys, 18 and 21, Break Long Ban of Professional Tramp.

MARSHFIELD, Or., May 25.—(Special.)—The professional hobo and the seeker for adventure and hunger who go about the country looking for hand-outs was almost unknown on Coos Bay until two youths, 18 and 21 years of age, came into the city the other night, on a route from Los Angeles, "somewhere," and asked the city police for lodgings. Walter Bigler and John Noah had been speeding northward along the coast in intermittent jumps and some work had been done along the route. They landed here without funds. They were lodged in the jail over night and the next morning referred to the many private and public works where wages range from $4 to $5 per day for the most unskilled laborer.

COOS PLACER CLAIM SOLD

John Smith Disposes of Mining Property for $10,000.

MARSHFIELD, Or., May 25.—(Special.)—John R. Smith, a mining prospector who has delved in the out-of-the-way places in Coos and Curry counties for the past seven years, has disposed of a placer claim on Rock creek, southern Coos, for $10,000. Mr. Smith has investigated every mineral belt in districts mentioned and opened many prospects. While thus engaged he took from his Rock creek property sufficient coarse gold to maintain his camp and assist in the cost of his trip to the coast between this country and the centers where mining men hold out. He has other holdings of chrome, copper and platinum.

LABOR CONDITIONS GOOD

WASHINGTON SUPPLY AND DEMAND EVEN, SAYS REPORT.

Employment Office at Seattle Reviews State Situation in General Report.

SEATTLE, Wash., May 25.—Labor conditions in Washington at the present time compare most favorably with conditions prior to the war, according to state-wide reports received at the office of Lawrence Wood, federal director of the United States employment service. Indications point to increased labor demands during the coming summer months. Aside from a small surplus in Seattle, the supply and demand in various sections of the state are approximately equal, it is said.

There is a shortage of track workers in every part of the state. The lumber industry of the coast is short some hundreds of men. Bellingham reports the supply and demand for farm laborers and casual laborers about even, with a shortage of 100 in the woods. Aberdeen reports the supply and demand about equal. Spokane has a small surplus of farm laborers; a surplus of 200 road workers, with the demand increasing; a heavy demand for miners and a surplus of miners who refuse to work for the wages offered, and the supply and demand about equal in miscellaneous trades. Tacoma reports shortages of mechanics and railroad workers of various kinds, and other slight shortages in casual and common labor occupations. Walla Walla reports a slight shortage of hay hands and a demand for cooks. Supply and demand in other lines is balanced. Wenatchee reports a slight surplus of farm laborers and a shortage of railroad laborers. Yak-

ANTI-SOCIETY WAR ON

WORKERS OF FAIR SEX PROTEST 10 O'CLOCK LAW.

"What Is Sauce for the Goose Is Sauce for the Gander," Quotes Mary Donnelly, Agent.

NEW YORK, May 25.—A delegation of 250 women employees of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company appeared before Governor Smith at city hall yesterday to protest against the newly enacted transportation law which bars women from working after 10 o'clock at night and which had cost them their jobs.

A half dozen women employees who testified declared they preferred night work, explaining that this arrangement made it possible for them to do their housework. They denied that night work tended toward immorality. Before the hearing started, Mary Donnelly, representing the women ticket agents, issued a statement criticizing "society women" for their activities with respect to working women. "The sooner the society women understand they must keep their hands off the working women, the sooner the working women will be better off," she declared. "If this law is carried out, there can be no cabarets, no grand opera and the society women must let their household maids go by 10 o'clock at night for we intend to show them that what is 'sauce for the goose, is sauce for the gander.'"

TOBACCO DISRUPTS MEET

ATHLETES USING WEED ARE BARRED FROM SCHOOL COMPETITION.

MARSHFIELD, Or., May 25.—(Special.)—Tobacco disrupted the annual high school meet, according to reports emanating from the various schools which, since the agreement of last fall, have adopted the policy of not permitting students who use tobacco a place in the trials. It appears that Superintendent Goetz of North Bend started the reform in high school athletics and Myrtle Point and Coquille joined with North Bend in the crusade to eliminate students who smoke the seductive cigarette. This was the situation until North Bend, Coquille and Myrtle Point organizations got together and declared they would compete and leave out Marshfield and Sandon, the schools that would not be bound by the agreement which was to be forced upon them. The meet, therefore, will be held with the three teams competing.

He registered there as L. M. Baldwin.
