

MAJOR RASCH HOME FROM BATTLEFIELD

Officer Declares War Improves American Citizenship.

DOOM OF RADICALS SEEN

Sudden Stillness Occasioned by Armistice Welcomed by Veterans; Casualties Are Heavy.

"Lord help the bolshevik. I. W. W. or any delinquent persons who get in conflict with any of the boys of the 91st. The war has made us all stronger and better Americans than ever and we won't stand for any disloyalty."

Major Rasch, known to Portlanders for years as assistant superintendent of the waterworks, as a member of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club and other organizations, said he is glad to be back. "No place like home," he said, "and Portland is the loveliest spot in all the world."

Colin Dymont Met. Last June, as captain in company L, he went overseas. He landed at Le Havre and went to "cattle cars" to Chaumont, near General Pershing's headquarters, where the men trained in July and all August, and then back to Portland Saturday after active service at the front.

Major Rasch, known to Portlanders for years as assistant superintendent of the waterworks, as a member of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic club and other organizations, said he is glad to be back. "No place like home," he said, "and Portland is the loveliest spot in all the world."

"I got used to the noise of the airplanes, to the roar of artillery, but not to the sudden hush and quiet when the armistice came. We were in Belgium at the time. The boys just heaved a sigh of relief. They were thankful. There was no shouting, just a wonderful quiet."

Casualties Are Heavy. "How did I get the promotion from captain to major? I don't know. It was after the Meuse-Argonne battle."

Major Rasch, formerly in the automobile business here, who has been taking instructions in airplane operation at the Boeing works in Seattle, Mr. Walker was very anxious to enter the government service when the United States declared war, but he was beyond the age limit by several years and his application was rejected.

In an ascent last week with his instructor, their machine reached a height of 6000 feet and in descending made the spot several months ago when bringing a machine to the harbor as soon as his course is completed, within the next two months.
