

OMSK GOVERNMENT NOT YET RECOGNIZED

Allied Message to Kolchak Somewhat Ambiguous.

AID MERELY IS INTENDED

Aim Is to Assist Omsk Leader in Setting Up Authority to Meet Approval of Powers.

BY LINCOLN EYRE. (Copyright by New York World. Published by arrangement.) PARIS, June 15.—(Special Cable.)—Tendencies of the allied press, notably the French nationalistic organs, to interpret the message of the allied and associated powers to Admiral Kolchak as a recognition of his government, is giving some concern to the authors of that document.

Guarded intimations were conveyed today to correspondents by British, American and French officials, that the somewhat ambiguous text is open to varied construction. A French official remarked that had the Omsk government been formally recognized it would undoubtedly have been invited to send a delegate to the peace conference. British officials pointed out that analysis of the phraseology of the message would disclose that the allies had merely promised aid to Admiral Kolchak, to enable him to construct the kind of government they could approve.

Experts Against Recognition. From Americans at the Hotel Crillon I learned that the commission of experts had advised against recognition of Admiral Kolchak's government and they had no reason to suppose the president had acted against their advice.

Prince Lvov, chairman of the Russian political conference, consisting of Russian statesmen of moderate views, now in Paris, has written to Premier Clemenceau, asking that the powers take no definite stand in regard to Russia without consulting the Russian people. The prince and his associates fear the peace conference might consent to the separation of certain Baltic countries from Russia.

A delegation from the newly-formed Georgian republic asks that its citizens also have a voice in the reconstruction of Russia.

The big four—the Japanese envoy not being present—accepted the limitation of the Hungarian frontiers, as advised by the foreign ministers, but Bela Kun's troops continue to advance into Czechoslovakia. ALUMNI BANQUET IS GAY

FORMER REED STUDENTS HOLD ANNUAL FESTIVITIES.

Brief Addresses, Dealing With Interesting Topics at Home and Overseas, Are Feature.

Reed college alumni held the largest reunion in its history Saturday afternoon following commencement exercises, when at a banquet given in the college commons by Miss Elizabeth Reed, members from every graduating class met for their annual reminiscent festivities.

Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler was the guest of honor and proved an entertaining after-dinner speaker. His mock-seriousness on "food essays" was one of the jolly features of the gathering. Dr. Norman F. Coleman told of the Reed alumni he had met overseas while in the Y. M. C. A. at Seattle and related many an anecdote of their doings. Miss Josephine Saunders told of her experiences in England and France as a reconstruction aide. Miss Saunders returned last week after an absence of eight months. She was formerly an assistant in the Reed course for aides. Miss Eliza G. presided at the luncheon. Miss Louise Huntley welcomed the class of 1919 and Miss Maye Palmer, as the senior president, responded. After the happy informality of the luncheon the alumni organized for the coming year.

Officers elected were: Marvin Howes, '18, president; Juanita Parker, '16 and Margaret Walton, '17, vice-presidents; Bessie Nelson, '17, secretary; and Frank Flint, '18, treasurer. The board of directors for next year include the names of Dean Webster, '16, Carol Wurtenburger, '18, Hazel Howard, '17, and Clyde Beale, '17. Marvin Howes, W. G. Eliot, '19, Pauline Alderman, '17, and Esther Johnson, '18, were elected as a nominating committee.

When word was received here of the accident to the machine in landing, arrangements were made for mechanics to leave London immediately to make repairs.

London May See Plane.

Word came from Clifden this afternoon that the pilot and the navigator of the biplane were leaving for Galway, whence Lieutenant Brown planned to travel by train to London, arriving there Tuesday morning. Captain Alcock, however, hoped to be able to fly to London in the machine which made the record flight as soon as it could be repaired. It was planned to have him give an exhibition over London in the machine, if possible.

The Aero club received a message from Clifden not long after the transatlantic fliers landed, signed by them which merely stated that they had completed the flight in 16 hours and 12 minutes. They requested instructions from the club.

In reply the club telegraphed Captain Alcock: "Keep machine intact until observer arrives."

Marks to Be Identified.

The air ministry stated that certain marks were put on the airplane at Newfoundland which must be officially identified by a member of the royal air force before the flight is declared to have been officially completed.

It was said at the ministry that it was probable one of its officials would leave Dublin in an airplane to relieve Alcock and Brown. It was hardly believed there that the machine could be repaired before several days had passed and it was thought both the aviators would proceed to England by train. Alcock and Brown stood the trip well.

FURTHER FLIGHTS PROMISED

Interest Now Turns to Speed Contests Over Ocean.

ST. JOHNS, N. F., June 15.—The triumph of the Atlantic by Captain "Jack" Alcock and Lieutenant Arthur W. Brown will not deter other raiders here from emulating the feat, according to announcement made by aviators today.

The London Daily Mail's $50,000 prize for the first non-stop flight having fallen to the Vickers-Vimy machine, crowds of the other airplanes being assembled here are devoting their attention to a contest for the speediest voyage across the ocean. They expect the British air ministry of private enthusiasts to offer speed prizes.

News of the arrival of Alcock and Brown in Ireland spread like wildfire and caused great jubilation. The British interrupted trans-oceanic flight. Great Britain was able to even the score by triumphing in the non-stop passage.

HOLLWEG SLAMS GOSCHEN

FORMER HUN CHANCELLOR EXPLAINS BELGIAN INCIDENTS.

German's Version Differs From Accepted Reports Regarding "Scrap of Paper" Talk.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by arrangement.) LONDON, June 15.—(Special Cable.)—Former German Chancellor von Bethmann Hollweg, gives in his memoirs the following version of the "scrap of paper" incident, according to a Brussels dispatch to the Daily News from Ernest Smith. He does not deny that in the course of an interview on August 4, 1914, Sir W. E. Goschen, the British ambassador, reminded him several times that violation of the neutrality of Belgium would be a decisive act in the relations of England and Germany.

"If you compare it with the terrible event of a German-English war," the former chancellor says he replied to the British ambassador, "The Belgian neutrality treaty is only a scrap of paper." "My blood boiled," he adds, "at this hypocritical insistence upon Belgian neutrality, while shutting one's eyes to the fact that a declaration of war by England would mean the ruin of the world."

"Truly, compared to such a declaration, the violation of Belgian neutrality seemed insignificant. Mr. Goschen might have added to the report of his interview that when he left me he burst into sobbing."

ITALY TIRED OF WRANGLE

ADRIATIC QUESTION IS PROVING VEXATIOUS ONE.

Indications Now Are That Orlando Will Demand Execution of London Treaty.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by arrangement.) LONDON, June 15.—(Special Cable.)—A. Beaumont cables to the Daily Telegraph from Milan: "Premier Orlando arrived at the station of Oulx some journalists with whom he had a free conversation. He was asked at once: "What about the solution of the Adriatic question?" and replied: "Italy can accept only one of two things, either the compromise scheme of M. Tardieu or the execution pure and simple of the pact of London. No other solution is possible."

"We have discussed the matter until we all are tired of it. We are getting gray hairs at the conference. Even Wilson seems to have aged considerably during the past few months."

"The Gazette del Popolo of Turin is informed that the compromise of M. Tardieu has definitely failed and there remains now only for Italy to demand the execution of the pact of London."

The Tardieu compromise would make Fiume and nearby territory an independent state, with Italian control of its foreign affairs, and give Italy Zara, Sebenico, several islands and the mandate over Albania.

FRENCH CABINET WORRIED

POLICY CONCERNING AFFAIRS IN RUSSIA ASSAILED.

Debate in Chamber Has Become Extremely Bitter—Difficulties Are Increasing Daily.

(Copyright by the New York World. Published by arrangement.) PARIS, June 15.—(Special Cable.)—With Marcel Cachin, the socialist leader, questioning the cabinet in regard to its policy in Russia and revolutionary outbreaks on board the French warships in the Black sea, debate in the chamber of deputies has again become extremely agitated.

The cabinet met signal defeat, and had not Minister Coillard taken back his request for a vote of confidence, the Clemenceau government would have fallen on the simple question of fixing a date for fresh interpellations concerning the strikes in Paris.

Although often interrupted by the conservative right, Cachin actually attempted a defense of the Russian revolution. He went so far in his passionate outbreaks that French officers in one of the galleries shouted: "You are a lot of bandits. Cachin; you ought to face a court-martial."

No sooner had order been restored than it was renewed in a heated dispute between Jean Longuet, the bolshevik ambassador, and his colleague, Lobe, of the unified socialist party. Longuet declared Lobe had insulted the reg flag. This incident was naturally pleasing to the followers of the Clemenceau administration.

Both Ministers Leygues and Pichon won the approval of the majority of the chamber by their answers to interpellations. Minister Leygues had refused amnesty to the mutinous sailors on the ground that 24 hours after giving promise of order they renewed their revolutionary manifestations.

PICNICS ON BEACH MANY

BALLOON ASCENSION SPECTACULAR FEATURE.

Hundreds of Dancers Crowd Floor on Bank of Columbia; Few Bathers Brave Water.

Although the weather seemed threatening, many picnic parties went to Columbia beach yesterday. Miller, the aeronaut, made an ascension on the ground that 24 hours after giving promise of order they renewed their revolutionary manifestations.

The balloon race was particularly spectacular, as Miller and his aides had built an unusually hot fire under the bag to make the flight a high one. The balloon rose quickly from the ground and Miller hung on until he had some several miles southeast of the park and nearly 2000 feet high.

A speeding ambulance on the interstate highway started the report that the aeronaut had been badly hurt in making a landing, but this was corrected an hour later when, without a scratch, he came out of a grove on the banks of the sloughs. The balloon went into the water, but was recovered later in the day in good condition.

The crowd which visited the big park on Sand Island found it in much better shape than on the opening day last Sunday. In the grove were many campers and picnickers. The grounds are now open to campers, who need merely apply at the park to make arrangements for a summer's stay on the island.

Tables and benches and a gas kitchenette help to make lunch an enjoyable affair. The youngsters who were disappointed last week when the miniature railway and the merry-go-round were not operating, found them going full blast yesterday.

Hundreds of dancers began arriving in the middle of the afternoon and by evening the floor, said to be the largest in Oregon, was crowded. From now on the Cotillon orchestra will be on hand for the dances every night, rain or shine.

Some bathers there were, and the white sand beach is getting wider with the receding of the waters. In another ten days bathing should be very popular.

What It Costs To Advertise. The cost of successful advertising on a national scale is amazingly small. If you were to spend one cent per family per year for advertising, your expenditure for the year would be about $20,000. The average total expenditure for advertising space (in fifty-six leading magazines) is less than one-quarter of this sum. In other words, the average national advertiser buys less than $50,000 worth of space per year, or less than one-quarter of a cent per family in the United States. The largest user of space spends about a million per year in national publications—five cents per family, or one cent per person in that family. This advertiser does a business of about $120,000,000 per year—or a sale per family of $5—one dollar per person. Of course an advertising appropriation includes expenditures in addition to the cost of space that are most necessary but relatively small in amount. Good advertising pays. Advertising space in the Butterick publications is for sale by accredited advertising agencies. Butterick—Publisher The Delineator Everybody's Magazine Two dollars the year, each.
