by cause it to vote in favor of bonds with the feeling that if it did not that many pu-pils would not be properly housed and in danger of some form of sickness or disease.

Bond Issue Opposed.

As stated, there is no argument sgainst the need of additional school buildings in Bortland, as nothing has been done in that direction of moment during the last four years on account of the 8 per cent limitation, which has prevented money being raised from traxifion in excess of the operating requirements of the schools. But the committee does object to the means adopted for financing the requirements through an issue of bonds, for the following reasons:

It has been the pride of American citizenship that the education of our children in our public schools has been without cost to the pupils, whereas the issuance of bonds for that purpose puts the cost of education in our public schools has been without cost to the pupils, whereas the issuance of bonds for that purpose puts the cost of education in our public schools has been without cost to the pupils, whereas the issuance of bonds for that purpose puts the cost of education in our public schools bond sare now outstanding, while in other cities of comparable size the school bond indebtedness runs from $3,000,000 to 10,000,000. Should we not strive to preserve that ratio instead of reducing it, and passing on to posterity a debt that we should assume and pay now?

The bond issue proposed of $2,500,000 in of $5,000,000 in the bond issue proposed of $2,500,000 in in 20 years, it also that it is sure to add or reducing it should be supposed to the $2,500,000 principal, will ottal somewhere between four and five million dollars.

We believe that the question of making our public educational facilities keep pace with our population is so vital to the future economic welfare of our city that monetary considerations of present cost cannot be the deciding element in the present issue, and that because of the admitted necessity of further buildings wherein properly to house the over-increasing school population, now far beyond the present capacity, are most strongly of the opinion that said bond issue should be passed.

"The school patrons must recognize that we will be compelled to ask for an additional two-mill levy, even if the bond issue carries, to provide for the normal growth of our schools, which is progressing at the rate of 2000 pupils a year.

"Those who suggest the two-mill levy as an alternative to the bond issue, are succeeding only in muddying the water and confusing the issue. It should be understood that the $2,500.

8000 issue would take care of the coming year's needs, and of nothing else.

"Moreover, if a special election were to be called and the two-mill additional tax voted, it would be more than a year before building could begin. The needs of the present are imperative. They will not admit of this delay. The attitude of those who suggest it isn't sound at all."
