

BUSINESS HARMONY IS ORCHESTRA PLAN

Symphony Organization Turns Affairs Over to Guarantors.

EVERY OFFICER RESIGNS

Players, Hoping for Continued Financial Support, Insist Factional Troubles Ended.

Clear skies now appear to hover over the future destinies of the Portland symphony orchestra.

Lack of Harmony Seen. It appeared from the speeches delivered in a session of two and a half hours that serious differences of opinion have existed for some little time past between members of the symphony orchestra and the board of underwriters as to the future government of the orchestra.

The board of underwriters refused to work with an orchestra player unless they, the underwriters, were empowered to manage all affairs of the orchestra.

Conferences have been proceeding between committees of this board of underwriters and symphony players, for a few days past, but without result.

Letter Brings Up Action. In view of my inability to serve the Portland Symphony Orchestra in a capable and efficient manner, owing to my failure to realize the requirements and necessities of such an organization, and lest my motives and purposes should be misunderstood by the generous and noble-hearted members of the orchestra who have shown me such a true realization of the permanent and well-established orchestra, I have concluded, after carefully considering the matter in relation to the orchestra, and I hereby tender my resignation as a member of the board of directors and as a director of the orchestra.

President Eichenlaub presided at yesterday's meeting, and handled the situation diplomatically.

It was explained that the committee of orchestra members who had interviewed the underwriters was composed of M. Christensen, chairman, George E. Jeffery, William Wallace Graham, H. G. Knight and Frank Eichenlaub.

Former Leader Explains. Mr. Christensen made his report of what took place at the meetings with guarantors and concluded: "The imputation was made that I had packed the meeting of June 19, when officers were elected, but that is not so. It is also alleged that I had manipulated matters so that I was elected conductor by a vote of 18 to 3, but the truth is I never asked one man to vote for me. I would resign willingly if my action in so doing would not be misunderstood. It might seem that I retired under a cloud. I have the best interests of the orchestra at heart, and if I thought this would clear away the difficulty I would resign."

During the painting of the Broadway bridge, a 10-day job, the draw spans will be raised only one at a time.

COUNCIL MEN SURPRISED

ORDINANCE NEARLY PASSES AS TWO ALDERMEN CHAT.

Commissioner Bigelow Objects to Vote on Salary Increase Measure. Mayor Gives Advice.

Numerous reports between members of the city council during the progress of a council meeting yesterday were interrupted by the near-passage of several ordinances providing for salary increases. Incidentally Mayor Baker, who presided at the meeting after an absence of three weeks, warned his colleagues that attention to council affairs would lead some of them to grief some day. It happened like this: A general agreement is said to have been reached by all members of the council, setting tomorrow as the day on which to consider proposed salary increases for city employees. Several such proposals were on the regular council calendar and were read by Council Clerk Grutza.

At about the same time Commissioners Mann and Bigelow were engaged in a spurt of comedy over a previous ordinance which had been the cause of some debate.

"Barbur, Bigelow, Mann, Perkins, mayor—five," motioned Grutza. "What's that?" "Hold on," yelled Commissioner Bigelow, half rising out of his seat and frantically waving his right arm. "I don't know if I want to vote in favor of that ordinance. What is it?"

"It's all right," assured Commissioner Perkins, who had introduced the ordinance in question. "It authorizes a slight increase for employes in my departments."

"That was to be heard Friday," came the seriousness of the situation. "I don't wish to be recorded as voting for that measure, Mr. Mayor."

"Well, the ordinance can go over to Friday," said Commissioner Perkins; "that suits me all right."

"You boys should pay some attention to these matters," was the advice of Mayor Baker. "Some day you will come to grief through your inattention, because some day when this happens I will not recall the vote. It will stand just as it is. In this case, the ordinance will go to third reading and come before the council for final consideration on Friday."

And the visitors in the council chambers smiled, while Commissioner Bigelow blushed and Commissioner Mann chewed vigorously upon his unlighted cigar.

AUTO DRIVER UNDER FIRE

Council to Investigate Charges Against V. C. Knight.

A special hearing before the city council on the revocation of the automobile for hire license held by V. C. Knight has been set for Tuesday afternoon, June 24. Knight is accused by Elmer Amidon of attempting to

CHURCH AND CONTINUES OVER SUNDAY

Among the speakers are: Dr. Guy Talbot and Rev. Roy B. Guild of New York city; Rev. H. A. Van Winkle of Oakland, Cal.; Dr. John H. Boyd, Rev. Harold Griffith and Rev. W. W. Willard of Portland, and Rev. W. P. White of Albany. Miss Alice Judd of Salem is convention soloist.

Seasons each morning will begin at 10:30 with a Bible study period. Special sessions for junior workers will be held tomorrow at the First Congreovercharge several out of town people who engaged Knight's machine for a trip over the Columbia river highway.

Amidon, who was with the strangers, refused to allow payment of the alleged overcharge and as a result Knight obtained a warrant for the arrest of Amidon, but the case was later dismissed in the municipal court.

Members of the council said yesterday that any automobile driver who attempted to extort money from strangers who entered the city should not be permitted to operate within the city of Portland. Knight denies the charges made by Amidon.

President James A. Garfield was shot by Guitau July 2, 1881, at Washington, D. C., and died September 19, of the same year, at Long Branch, N. J.

There are two tastes in tea: the tea-taste and the tannin-taste. When you make your tea, the tea-taste develops first; the tannin after it.

Common tea, made from the older leaves of the tea-plant, has a low-grade of tea-taste, and even that is quickly smothered by the tannin.

Fine tea, made from young tender leaves, has an abundance of rich real tea-taste, which develops in the cup, before the tannin gets started. Very little tannin in fine tea.

Schilling Tea is the fine practical economical tea of this country.

There are four flavors of Schilling Tea—Japan, Ceylon-India, Oolong, English Breakfast. All one quality. In parchment-lined moisture-proof packages. At grocers everywhere.
