

JUSTICE TO GERMANS PROMISED BY ALLIES

Peace Treaty Protocol Explains Six Points Raised.

SECRETS ALLOWED HUNS

Punishment for Criminal Acts in Liquidation of Property Provided; Indemnity Refunds Permitted.

PARIS, June 22.—(By the Associated Press.)—A protocol to be added to the peace treaty, explanatory of the six points raised by the Germans, reads: "Firstly, a commission will be named by the allied and associated governments to supervise the demolition of the fortifications of Heligoland in conformity with the treaty. This commission will be empowered to decide what part of the constructions protecting the coast from erosion should be preserved and what part demolished."

Divulgence of Secrets Banned. The protocol refers to German private interests in railroads and mines in shanting as distinct from German state interests.

Fourthly, the commission on reparations, provided for by annex 240 and paragraphs 1, 2 and 4 of annex four, cannot exact divulgence of secrets of manufacture or confidential information.

Protection Promised Huns. From the signature of peace and the four months following, Germany will have an opportunity of presenting for the examination of the powers documents and propositions, with a view to hastening the work relating to reparations, thus shortening the investigation and hastening decisions.

Sixthly, prosecutions will be expedited against those committing criminal acts in connection with the liquidation of German property and the powers will receive any information and proofs that the German government shall be in a position to supply on this subject.

Contradiction Is Denied. In the reply on the six other points raised, the most interesting question dealt with consistently is the relation to the league of nations. The reply denied the German declaration that the terms of the peace treaty with regard to the league are contradictory.

It says the covenant of the league declares that members of the league shall take the necessary steps to assure and guarantee the maintenance of liberty of communication and transit, and also equitable commercial treatment of all members.

Germany when admitted to the society, the reply says, "will share in the benefits of these stipulations with other countries. Nevertheless, during the period of transition following peace it is necessary to take into account the special conditions which are laid down on page 43 of the memorandum. The obligations imposed on Germany are therein shown to have the character of reparations measures and their maintenance for five years, far from being incompatible with the principle of equitable treatment, have as their object to assure the application of that principle."

FALL OF GERMANY IS SAD

(Continued From First Page.) of the masses this majority had disintegrated into nothing more than a powerful and fighting minority, a solution appeared in the forcing of the Scheidemann government to resign.

This plan was knocked out unexpectedly when a second straw vote showed that the small majority of the national assembly against the plan of not signing at all was now solidly in favor of unconditional signing.

Liberals Take Definite Stand. With this situation, the liberals were the first to regain their self control. With one dissenting vote the party ballot showed itself to be solidly against unconditional signing. So the liberals thereupon formulated six conditions under which they would be willing to sign the Versailles treaty, subject to allied approval.

But these conditions practically amounted to not signing at all, for they involved reconsideration by the allies of the six principal points in the peace treaty. The vote, therefore, was tantamount to renewing and continuing the negotiations indefinitely.

The Catholic centrists were next to regain their equilibrium and to try to patch up the wide split in the caucus. True to their policy of seeking the middle line, the centrists succeeded in uniting most of their members in the national assembly on a compromise formula for signing conditionally, the principal conditions, inspired by the crafty Matthias Erbsberger, being that

GERMANY COULD NOT AGREE TO SURRENDER

Germany could not agree to surrender for trial by the allies of the unnamed military and political leaders, nor would Germany subscribe to sole guilt for the war.

For a time on Friday morning it appeared that the bulk of the majority socialists and clericals would agree on a common formula for conditional signing and the two parties together form a new government without the participation of the democrats on this conditional basis, subject to the mental reservation that if the allies refused their conditional signature, they would end by signing the treaty unconditionally, but under rhetorical protest.

But during Friday's proceedings both the centrists and the majority socialists lost their nerve when they figured out how small their majority would be in the public showdown in the national assembly. Both parties accordingly shrank from shouldering the responsibility for signing. They tried all during the day to lure the liberals back into the old government combination and to re-establish the former large coalition majority in the national assembly, but the liberals refused to come in again, except on the basis of their six points.

Saturday morning it appeared that the liberals, clericals and majority socialists would agree on a formula for signing conditionally. These conditions involved four principal points—a national basis, West Prussia, immediate admittance into the league of nations, no subscription to sole guilt for the war, and no surrender of the former Kaiser and unnamed military and political leaders, but with the promise to place these latter on trial before a German tribunal.

HUNS' NEW CABINET SWEAT-BORN AFFAIR

Week's Toil in Blazing Weimar Weather Price Paid.

PEACE TERMS SOLE ISSUE

Creation of New Government Proved Difficult in Extreme but End Finally Is Achieved.

WEIMAR, June 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—Germany acquired a new cabinet only after nearly a week of literal sweating in blazing Weimar weather. The signing of the peace terms naturally was the only question around which the cabinet construction hinged and the government, which went on record as considering the terms unacceptable, found a surprising following behind it.

The first party ballots, however, seemed to make the signing of the treaty inevitable, for the powerful majority socialist party voted two-thirds for ending the suspense. With the independents supporting them, the conservatives as a party behind them, and the centrists on the fence, the result appeared a foregone conclusion.

But the conservatives suddenly swung around and declared for non-signature; the centrists wavered and imposed conditions and the democrats temporarily balked any hope of a majority by stubbornly persisting against the extradition by the entente of the former emperor and other German notables.

Democrats Refuse to Hedge. This was the stumbling-block, for the democrats could not be budged from the attitude which they held through the belief that a revolution would break out in protest by the people should Von Hindenburg, Ludendorff and other idols be humiliated.

Count Von Bernstorff played a prominent part in the proceedings, not only as president of the German committee, but according to persistent rumors, as the possible successor of Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau, for there was a powerful group that wished him to suffer the poetic justice of signing the terms, after he had helped to bring the United States into the war.

Count von Bernstorff, however, resisted and after having been appointed in the morning to the cabinet, refused to accept the appointment or have anything to do with the matter.

Opponents Weaken Later. Later in the day the centrists dropped their demand for modification of the terms and expressed their willingness to sign. The democrats also weakened to such an extent that 21 of their 65 members in the assembly went over to the side in favor of the signature.

The first ministry headed by Herr Bauer lasted exactly one hour. It crashed on the stubbornness of the democrats and Von Bernstorff's flat refusal to head the ministry of foreign affairs.

Dr. Dernburg, who had been named as minister of finance, declared he could not cooperate. The democrats then reduced their demands to one point on which they were adamant, namely, that the former German emperor, Von Hindenburg and Ludendorff must not be delivered to the entente for trial.

Bauer Cabinet Rebuilt. Eventually the Bauer cabinet was reconstructed, with Dr. Hermann Mueller, the majority socialist leader, as minister of foreign affairs, and Matthias Erbsberger as minister of finance and vice-premier.

In his first speech in the afternoon Premier Bauer outlined his programme to the peace committee of the assembly. Count von Brockdorff-Rantzau will leave Weimar tomorrow for a vacation in his private capacity.

Herr Bauer, the new premier, hitherto has scarcely been mentioned for the position. Prior to his appointment as labor minister he was secretary of the labor unions of Germany. He is rated as a long-headed, conservative socialist.

BERLIN, June 21.—(By the Associated Press.)—Gustav Adolf Bauer, who succeeded Philipp Scheidemann as premier, is second chairman of the general commission of the federation of labor unions. He was elected to the reichstag in 1912 from Breslau and appointed minister of labor under Prince Max last October. He is an authority on labor legislation and workers' insurance.

WOODLAND, Wash., June 22.—(Special.)—Charles Brashear was instantly killed yesterday afternoon when his automobile went off the grade a short distance out of LaCenter on the Pacific highway to Woodland. The machine turned completely over and the young man's body and face were badly mutilated.

Brashear was about 22 years of age and a graduate of the Woodland high school in the 1916 class. He was in the navy and just before his death was employed as a clerk in the LaCenter State bank. He was born and reared on Lewis river near Cougar. His father and mother live between Woodland and LaCenter on the Pacific highway.

International Situation. (By the Associated Press.) GERMANY'S new cabinet, headed by Gustav Bauer, has asked for and been given a vote of confidence by the German national assembly at Weimar, and the assembly has announced its willingness to sign the peace treaty.

The offer has been communicated to the members of the peace congress in Paris who have discussed its provisions, including reservations made by the Germans against affixing their signatures to the document while it contains clauses acknowledging the responsibility of the German people for the war and demanding the trial of former Emperor William.

All the requests of the Germans for further alterations have been definitely rejected by the allies and Germany now must give her acquiescence to the treaty as it now stands before the expiration of the time limit Monday afternoon on pain of having the allies further invade her territory.

All laid readiness on the part of the allied troops in the occupied areas. More than 600,000 soldiers are concentrated there and are only awaiting the word to march eastward into Germany if the Germans prove obstinate. About 100,000 Americans are included in this force.

Preparations also are being made at Versailles to hold a session of peace conference during the present week, at which the Germans may affix their signatures to the treaty in the Zamony Hall of Mirrors in the Trianon palace.

While the hall has been ordered prepared by Tuesday, the belief prevails in Paris that the ceremony will not take place much before Thursday.
