

Morning Oregonian

ESTABLISHED BY HENRY L. PITCOCK. Published by The Oregonian Publishing Co., 135 Sixth Street, Portland, Oregon.

Subscription rates—Invariably in advance: Daily, Sunday included, one year, $18.00; Daily, Sunday included, six months, $10.00; Daily, Sunday included, three months, $5.50; Daily, without Sunday, one year, $13.00; Daily, without Sunday, six months, $7.50; Daily, without Sunday, three months, $4.50; Weekly, one year, $3.50; Weekly, six months, $2.25; Sunday and weekly, $2.50.

MINORITY RULE. The Oregonian notes that various explanations are made for defeat of the $2,500,000 school bonds at the special election last Saturday.

LIBELING THE DEAD. It becomes a duty to set right so reliable an authority as the New York Herald, which remarks bitterly: "That 'the law is an ass' is nowhere better than in his good name."

WILL THE WORLD GO DRY? The World League Against Alcoholism, which was formed at Washington the other day, will seem less chimerical to the prophetically inclined than did the Anti-Saloon league which was formed twenty-six years ago.

INTENSIVE FARMING. High prices for farm produce are unlikely to result in better, or more "intensive," farming, in the judgment of Professor Benjamin H. Hibbard of the University of Wisconsin.

Those Who Come and Go. "If you won't mention my name I'll tell you about conditions in San Francisco," offered a Portlander. "Cocktails cost 60 cents, a highball four bits and straight whiskey 25 cents a drink. The barrooms are crowded all day and all evening. The cabarets are open until 2 A. M., and it is uncomfortable trying to get through the crowd. In the popular eating places it costs about $10 for a meal, and there is a tax on everything. Every night is like a New Year's eve in San Francisco, although despite the steady and constant consumption of the rapidly diminishing stock of wine and beer...

Half the time at least he is right. With many things to be done, it is not to be expected that he is likely to find the line of greatest profit by expanding his acreage. Eventually, however, the land must be put to the test, and the farmer will be wisest who moderates his tendency to reach out too far. That which the agricultural expert most fears is that soil robbing methods and careless tillage will produce a condition not easily repaired after a few years.

AN UNEMPLOYED KING. Of the army of unemployed in Europe, the unemployed kings excite least sympathy, and ex-king Constantine of Greece least of all. He deliberately tried to betray his people into the hands of their enemy, the Kaiser, of whom he has asked help, though William, too, is out of a job. Constantine's case is worse than those of the other deposed monarchs, for they inherited absolutism, while he is the second in line of a dynasty of kings over a people who already had a democratic constitution when his father acceded to the throne.

FREE TRADE IN GOLD. A highly effective measure to restore normal trade conditions is the establishment of free trade in gold, which has been ordered by the federal reserve board. This action has already caused considerable exports of gold bullion, which reduces rates of exchange and thus facilitates foreign commerce.

THE MAIN POINT OF DISAGREEMENT. Difference of opinion in the senate on the league of nations has centered principally on article 10. This article is of so great a nature that it is quoted once more: "The members of the league undertake to respect and preserve against external aggression the independence of all members of the league. In case of any such aggression or in case of any threat or danger of such aggression, the council shall advise upon the means by which this obligation shall be fulfilled."

What the Elks will do with the doughnuts, nobody knows; but if they make every man they meet buy one for a dollar and compel him to eat it on the spot, the hole in the affair will not have been made in vain.

There may be anarchists who want to assassinate Alfonso, for mind of the anarchist runs that way. Alf has not been doing anything to deserve such fate, however, but he scares easily.

Referring to Senator Borah's threat to form a third party, where are the third parties of yesterday, as the poets would say?

Three days to the big drought—tem, three—but not so here, where drought is part of the system. The allies can get the ex-crown prince when they want him—even in Prussia. Burleson claims $17,000,000 profit in 1918. Other hold-ups have not reported. Nobody knows until he has had enough whether 2.75 beer is intoxicating.
